Chief Stanton brought his 25th annual report to a close with an expression of appreciation of the co-operation of the city officials during his years of service among them.

WILL RAZE OLD CHURCH FOR NEW AT STORRS

(Special to the Bulletin)

STORRS, July 6—The old Storrs church, which since 1848 has served as a place of worship for those of the Storrs community and since 1881 for the same purpose for Connecticut Agricultural college students and faculty, will soon be torn down to make way for the proposed Storrs church, which will be built with funds raised in a state-wide campaign by the Connecticut Federation of Churches.

This was the announcement here today, which in addition said the present structure had been sold to Christopher Manick of Willimantic, who plans to wreck the building for its timber. The sale is made with the provision that the pulpit and chairs of the minister and deacons should be given to the Mansfield Depot chapel, and that the pews and organ should be given to the people of Eagleville, who are at present taking steps to erect a church in that part of the town.

The board of trustees of the church had offered the structure to both the college and the town of Mansfield, but the offer was not accepted. The town found that the building would be unsuitable as a school room, and there was no other use to which it could be put. Students of the college circulated a petition asking that the building be moved to a new location and used for dramatics and debating, but the cost of such a project was deemed too great to be practicable.

Sale of the old structure closes another chapter in the history of the Storrs church, which in the beginning was incorporated as the Second Congregational church of Mansfield on Dec. 1 1787. In this respect, it is the daughter of the First Congregational Church of Mansfield, and it was organized at the request of the Rev. Dr. Salter, first church minister, who felt that the pastorate was growing to too large proportions for one man. Rev. William Throop was the first man to fill the pastorate of the Second church, and he was ordained in 1744.

Rev. Aaron R. Livermore was the first pastor to serve in the present church building, which was erected in 1843, and has served the community continuously since that time. Following in line to fill the pulpit, from then to the present day, were Edward F. Brooks, Moses Cook Welch, Nathaniel Beach, Charles Morgan, Edwin Lewis, Henry Davies, Harris E. Starr, Orrin Fisher, Lewis D. Rogers, Marshall Dawson and Morris E. Alling.

CONTINUANCE IN CASE ON WET DRIVING CHARGE

In the city court Tuesday morning the case against Joseph P. Gadle, Jr., of 195 Central avenue, was continued until Wednesday morning to allow witnesses alleged to have seen Mr. Gadle to testify as to his condition prior to the accident on Franklin street, Monday night, which resulted in the arrest of Mr. Gadle on a charge of operating a motor vehicle while under the influence of liquor. Gadle's machine was in collision with the automobile of Frank Delleo of Platt avenue.

Deputy Judge H. H. Pettis was on the bench and granted the request for a continuance made by Attorney Thomas J. Kelly. But one witness was allowed to testify Tuesday morning, this being Joseph Tedeschi of Mamaroneck street, New York city, witness of the accident, who desired to return to his home Tuesday. He stated that Gadle was headed toward the city and the car operated by Frank Delleo of 15 Platt avenue was headed up Franklin street at the time of the accident. He would not swear that Mr. Gadle was under the influence of liquor but testified that the accused was unsteady on his feet following the accident.

On a charge of wilful injury to a dog Harold Shaw of 14 Twelfth street was fined $5 and costs. He paid $10.30. According to the complaint, Shaw stabbed and wilfully injured a dog owned by George F. Gardner, using an ice pick in his assault after the dog was alleged to have bothered him. The summons to appear in court was served by County Humane Officer F. E. Wyant of Norwich Town who conducted the investigation.

The identity of the driver of the car, for which Joseph Albert Jones of North Stonington was arrested on a charge of driving with improper registration, continued a mystery even after Jones was tried in police court Tuesday morning, Jones simply vouching the information that the driver was a girl friend of his, whom he was teaching to drive. Jones paid a fine of $5 and costs for his offense.

The episode cost Jones a night in the local lockup, the Chevrolet car he was using having the registration numbers belonging to a Ford coupe, a transfer card dated June 12th having been made out but not sent in to the motor vehicle department.

On the witness stand Captain Murphy testified that when a search of the Jones' car was made a bottle partly filled with liquor was found, also some women's apparel.

In court Jones requested that Lafayette Maine be allowed to defend him but Deputy Judge Pettis informed the accused that Mr. Main was not practicing in that court. It is alleged that Mr. Main paid the fine of the accused.

Eight cases where men were held on charges of intoxication or breach of the peace swelled the receipts of the court to above the $100 mark, all the offenders being residents of Norwich who had enjoyed holiday sprees.

OVER 5,000 FISHERMEN ON STATE LEASED BROOKS

More than five thousand fishermen used the state-leased trout streams during the first six weeks of the season which has just closed, according to a report by the patrol service to John W. Titcomb, superintendent of fisheries and game. The report, which covers the period from the opening of the season on April 15 to May 31, shows that the patrolmen on five streams inspected the catches of 5,801 fishermen, who had a total of 9,884 trout.

Inasmuch as the inspection often took place before each day's fishing had been finished, it is estimated that the number of fish shown in these figures is only about a quarter of the actual number taken out of the streams. On the basis of this estimate nearly 40,000 trout were caught during the first six weeks of the season. The figures in the report on the number of persons inspected are thought to show fairly accurately the number of people who used the streams.

Salmon Brook attracted the greatest number of fly-casters, there being 2,246 fishermen inspected, with a total catch of 2,721. On Renton river 829 were inspected, with a total catch of 2,026; 751 on Farmington river, with 1,568 fish, and 698 on Snake Meadow brook, with 1,219. The greatest number of fish caught in proportion to the number of fishermen inspected was on Blackberry river, with 1,456 fish and 577 fishermen inspected.

GIRLS OF SCHOOL AGE LEARN VALUABLE LESSON

Find Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound a Dependable Medicine

LOUISE LOUTHAN
ROUTE 2, CHARLESTON, ILLINOIS

From the days of the polonaise to the days of the radio, mothers have given this dependable medicine to their daughters. School girls are often careless. They get wet feet. They overstudy or they tire themselves with too many dances and parties. They get run down.

Many an active girl of today, like the demure maiden of the 1870's, has found that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound is helping her to find better health and energy.

"I gave my fifteen-year-old girl Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and it did her a wonderful lot of good. She had been out of school for four months. I read the advertisements of the Vegetable Compound, and since she has taken it she has improved and has gone back to school again. I recommend the Vegetable Compound to other mothers with girls who are not as strong as they should be."—Mrs. Alice Louthan, Route 2, Charleston, Illinois.

"My daughter was out of school two terms. I have known about Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound all my life and finally decided that she should try it. Three bottles helped her in various ways for the next couple of years."—Mrs. W. E. Gillette, 986 E. 52nd Place, Los Angeles, Calif.

"I have always been sickly, and until I was fourteen my father was very strict about my perfect attendance at grammar school. I have gone to school through hard storms and often taken cold. When I was fourteen I took to my bed and did not get up for eighteen months. Everyone thought I could not live. Just four months ago I began taking your wonderful medicine, Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and I could notice a great change almost at once. Now I feel like a new person. I wish all girls would try Lydia E. Pinkham's wonderful medicine."—Mrs. C. M. Smith, Union Village, Vermont.

SUBMARINE S-51 ARRIVED AT BROOKLYN NAVY YARD DRY DOCK LAST NIGHT

Ill Fated Submersible Was Floated From Rock in East River at 9:15 P. M. and Journey to Navy Yard Was Immediately Resumed—Thousands of Persons Massed on Shore Witnessed Floating of Craft at High Tide—Nine Months of Heart-Breaking Effort to Raise Hulk From Ocean Grave Ended When She Was Warped Into Dry Dock at 11:10 P. M.

NEW YORK, July 7.—(AP)—The navy's long battle to reclaim its dead from the sea ended tonight, the torn hulk of the submarine S-51, coffin of upward of a score of her crew, rested in dry-dock in the Brooklyn Navy yard.

Nine months of heart-breaking effort to raise her from her grave beneath the troubled waters off Block Island, R. I., where she foundered when the steel prow of the steamer City of Rome cut her open, was over.

The slow funeral voyage from the stormy New England coast which at one point came near another despairing delay, was finished at 11:10 p. m.

Five miles from the haven at which the families of the ill-fated crew awaited the dead this early morning, the hulk, in tow of a convoy of tugs and salvage vessels, went aground and the waters of the East river closed over her. Only the bright banner, flying at half-mast from her bent flagstaff, remained above the gray river.

The weary crews of the vessels which had brought the submarine from Block Island once more took up the grim battle with Davy Jones, and aided by high tide, achieved final victory late tonight when the submarine was warped into drydock number four at the yard.

SUB WAS FLOATED 9:15 LAST NIGHT

NEW YORK, July 7—(AP)—The submarine S-51 which grounded on a rock in the East river today, was floated at 9:15 o'clock tonight and her journey to the Brooklyn Navy yard was resumed.

The battered hulk of the submarine who floated off at high tide in the presence of thousands of persons massed on the shore.

One slight accident occurred when a chain broke as a navy floating crane was raising one of the pontoons used to float the S-51. Two men on the pontoon were thrown into the water, but were not injured.

The submarine rode low in the water with only the flag-mast, periscope and the top of the conning tower visible as the salvage vessels took up from the long journey from the point off Block Island where she was sunk last fall.

PILOTS ATTEMPTED TO TAKE SHORT CUT

NEW YORK, July 7—(AP)—The U. S. submarine S-51 was fast aground on an East river rock late today where it was jammed while being towed to the New York Navy yard from an undersea position off Block Island. Preparations were made to free the undersea boat tonight and have it in dry dock by tomorrow.

Meanwhile grieving mothers and relatives of the 25 men who lost their lives when the submarine was rammed and sunk last September waited at the navy yard confident the navy would complete the sad task of bringing to land for burial the bodies that have lain under the sea for more than nine months.

The navy had already accomplished what, according to Lt. Com. Edward Ellsberg, in charge of engineering details of the wreck, some navy officials at Washington had declared impossible. It had brought to the surface from its bed 22 fathoms below, gripped by six feet of sand, the hulk of the submarine that plunged to the floor of the ocean after being rammed by the iron prow of the Savannah line steamer City of Rome too suddenly for more than three members of her crew of 36 to escape death. Eight other bodies were recovered last fall.

The anti-climax to the navy's feat came when guidance of the tow had passed from its hands. Through fogs, traffic, treacherous currents and other dangers the flotilla had through its greatest dangers over a course plotted by the navigator of the Vestal, lead ship of the convoy. At Execution Rock, civilian pilots came aboard the towing and guiding tugs but the Vestal, drawing more water than any vessel in the fleet, led the way under Hell Gate bridge and through the Pot Cove Shoals. There the lead was taken from the Vestal and civilian pilots took up the task of guiding the tow through the channel to Brooklyn Navy yard.

Within ten minutes a warning shout came from the bridge of the Vestal. All eyes were turned to the tow. The Falcon was seen to drive in among the pontoons. The flag on the conning tower of the S-51, barely discernible among the eight pontoons that gave her buoyancy, showed the submersible was listing to starboard. The flag had been at half mast upright, but she suddenly seemed to be dipping colors.

The siren calls and cheers that had greeted the arrival of the flotilla were stilled None knew exactly what had happened. The chowds on the shores were wiarless. Tugs rushed to do what they could do. But the S-51, after a journey of 135 miles through many, and what were thought to be the greatest, perils, again was on the bottom.

Divers were ordered from the Navy yard. They prepared to examine the hulk to ascertain her position on the reef. Study of the area in which the boat went aground showed that a red buoy was bobbing at anchor a few feet from the dangerous rock. Officers said the pilots had attempted take a short cut, but they admitted they did not know why the attempt was made to take the vessel off the course the Vestal had followed. The Vestal was in deep water ahead of the tow when the accident occurred.

MADE VIGOROUS ASSAULT ON DEBT SETTLEMENT

PARIS, July 7—(AP)—A vigorous assault upon the Washington debt settlement and on Ambassador Berenger and a sharp attack on the experts' report and the government civilization scheme put the government on the defensive in the stabilization debate on finance in the chamber of deputies today.

Franklin Bouillon, chairman of the foreign relations committee of the chamber, declared the debt settlement amounted to "sabotage of French finances."

His confidence to a government if ratification of the accord were insisted upon, and he demanded the government take advantage of the fact that the United States senate debt funding mission had adjourned, to appeal from uniformed American to a better informed America. It was an impossible thing, he said, that the world should be offered "the spectacle of a people which had sacrificed itself in resisting the common enemy being crushed under the exactions of its allies."

M. Franklin Bouillon also attacked the French ambassador, M. Berenger, declaring:

"He was the one man in France who ought not to have been sent to Washington. While a member of the finance mission he took the American side of the argument against the French thesis."

M. Caillaux shouted: "That is not true."

The chairman of the foreign relations committee asserted he could prove his charge, and this for the time being ended the matter.

The socialist leader M. Blum, won applause from two-thirds of the chamber in an ardent attack on M. Caillaux's plan, which, he asserted, "conceals germs of inflation."

The speaker cited the experts' admission that stabilization would entail an increase in internal prices and bring them to the level of the stabilizing figure. That would mean the necessity of more money. He calculated the increase in the cost of living consequent upon stabilization as proposed by the finance minister at 50 per cent., and it would require 50 per cent more paper money issued, which would upset stabilization.

M. Blum argued that stabilization could be effected only on rising exchange, and this ought to be done by the country's own resources, without resorting to foreign loans. Therefore a capital levy was the only solution.

CHARGE NEW HAVEN MAN WITH MISUSING MAILS

WASHINGTON, July 7—(AP)—Alexander Troup of New Haven, who was recently indicted on a charge of misusing the mails in connection with the conduct of the university of the American society of dematrichology in Washington, pleaded not guilty today in the District of Columbia supreme court. CHARGED WITH CONSPIRACY TO DEFRAUD GOVERNMENT

BOSTON, July 7—(AP)—Secret indictments brought by a federal grand jury, charging a coast guard officer and a gasoline station owner with conspiracy to defraud the government, were revealed today when Charles Fauci was brought into court. Fauci, proprietor of a gasoline and oil station in Boston harbor off Commonwealth pier, pleaded not guilty to one indictment charging conspiracy to defraud the United States and a second charging him with defrauding the government.

The government was defrauded of $12,000, Assistant United States Attorney Hale told Federal Judge Morris when Fauci was arraigned in district court. Judge Morris held Fauci in $4,000. The coast guard officer has not yet been arrested and his identity was not disclosed.

Fauci had the contract to supply the Boston coast guard patrol boats with fuel and oil. The indictments charged that he collected heavy overcharges from July, 1925, until January 1926, through the connivance of the coast guardsman. Fauci, who was indicted some time ago in connection with rum smuggling in Swampscott, was surrendered today by the bondsman who supplied $5,000 bail in which he had been at liberty.

MERIDEN CHILD LOSES LEG IN AUTO CRASH

MILFORD, July 7.—(AP)—Five-year-old Wargen Trobull, 65 Park street, Meriden, was so seriously injured in an automobile accident on Seaside avenue this afternoon when the automobile in which he was riding, collided with a telephone pole that his right leg was amputated at the Milford hospital where both his mother, Mrs. Madge Trobull and his grandmother, Mrs. Esther Daniels, 354 East Main street, both of Meriden, are suffering from less serious injuries sustained in the same accident. The car was operated by the boy's grandfather, Finley Daniels, 354 East Main street, Meriden.

The party had been visiting friends in Bridgeport and was returning home when on reaching Milford it was decided to take a ride to the beaches. When the accident occurred the boy was being shifted from the front seat to the rear seat and he was pinned between the machine and telephone pole. The driver of the car claimed that he struck an obstacle in the road which suddenly swerved the car, causing him to lose control of it.

PRES. COOLIDGE SPENDS QUIET DAY IN CAMP

PAUL SMITH, N. Y., July 7.—(AP)—Cares of official life were cast aside by President Coolidge today as in the seclusion of the far flung forest of the Adirondacks he settled into a vacation arranged so as to give him rest for the year ahead as head of the nation.

Arriving at White Pine camp on Lake Osgood with Mrs. Coolidge this morning after an overnight run on a special train from Washington, the chief executive reacted quickly to his new surroundings. He evidenced a lessening of the restraint associated with the white house by joking with his associates and as he walked about the camp, in the shade of the pine, spruce and birch trees with Mrs. Coolidge, he gave every indication of enjoying the sport.

Then, responding to the invigorating air and the vacation atmosphere, Mr. Coolidge had one of the motor boats, with which the camp is equipped, brought to his private landing and with Mrs. Coolidge took a 20 minute spin about the lake. Their guide on this trip was Oscar Otis, caretaker of the camp and a lifelong resident of the Adirondacks who handled the wheel and the four cylinder engine with the assurance of an expert.

For the most part, however, the day was spent quietly by the chief executive, the task of getting settled in the new surroundings occupying his attention as attendants unpacked boxes and trunks from the white house and set the camp in order. During the entire day he and Mrs. Coolidge remained within the confines of the camp and received no visitors. Strolls in the leafy lanes, and as much rest as they could gain in the midst of house settling was their programme for the day. They planned to retire early tonight.

Although the exact time the president would arrive was not known in the Adirondacks until a few hours before his train was due at Gabriels, small crowds were at the station when the special passed in the early morning. At Tupper Lake Junction and Lake Clar Junction, a few miles from Gabriels, Mr. Coolidge stepped to the observation platform and waved a greeting.

At Gabriels a larger crowd, including many who had driven for miles from country homes and private camps, was on hand and when the President and Mrs. Coolidge alighted from the train, cheered and applauded. White house attaches who had preceded the presidential party by one or two days were on hand at the station and for them there was a cordial greeting and a personal word before automobiles were entered for the six mile run to the White Pine camps.

As the automobile bearing Mr. and Mrs. Coolidge entered the camp gate, they passed the force of marines in command of Lieutenant Fred E. Stack, drawn up at attention in full dress. Then the party swung swiftly over the ground bark road to the camp, set on a hill in the woods overlooking the lake.

MUST STAND TRIAL ON CONSPIRACY CHARGE

NEW YORK, July 8—(AP)—Federal Attorney Buckner will move the trial of Col. Thomas W. Miller, former alien property custodian, and Former Attorney General Harry M. Daugherty, to September 7, be announced today following denial of a motion to dismiss indictments against them charging conspiracy to defraud the government.

Miller, Daugherty and the late John T. King, republican national committeeman from Connecticut, were charged with conspiring to illegally transfer $7,000,000 of the assets of the American Metals Co., seized during the war, to a Swiss concern.

The indictments were returned five months ago, and if the case goes to trial September 7th, it will have established a speed record for one of its magnitude.

In refusing to dismiss the indictments today, Federal Judge Mack held that the contention of defense attorneys that "the United States had in no sense been injured by the acts of the accused," even if true, did not absolve them from fraud under the statutes.

DROWNED IN POOL AT CAPITOL PARK

HARTFORD, July 7.—(AP)—While bathing in the pool at Capitol park late this afternoon Victor Zimmerman, 16 years old, of 29 Kennedy street, an honor member of the 1926 class of the Hartford public high school, was drowned in three and a half feet of water. The accident occurred while about 100 persons were bathing, none of whom realized what had taken place. William Mandell, 17, of 105 Magnolia street, a chum of the drowned boy, was first to miss Zimmerman and called Samuel Harger, captain of the Weaver high school football team, who was employed as a life guard. Efforts to revive Zimmerman were futile.

WOMAN ATTEMPTED SUICIDE BY DRINKING POISON

STRATFORD, July 7.—(AP)—Despondent over ill health and the fact she lost her eyesight a week ago, Mrs. Margaret Stosse, 76 years of age, of Nichols street, Stratford, attempted suicide tonight by drinking the contents of a bottle of poison.

Grand Jury Indicts Five Labor Leaders

International President of Journeymen Stonecutters and Four Others Charged With Violation of Sherman Anti-Trust Laws.

NEW YORK, July 7.—(AP)—A federal grand jury today indicted Michael W. Mitchell, of Indianapolis, Indiana, international president of the Journeyman Stonecutters' Association of North America, and four other labor representatives for violation of the Sherman anti-trust laws.

The other defendants named in the indictment, all New Yorkers, are Joseph Ward, member of the executive board of the Journeyman Stonecutters' Association of North America; John Cronin, business agent of the same association for the New York metropolitan district; Thomas O. Leary, business agent for the New York metropolitan district of the machine stone workers, rubbers and helpers' association, and William J. McGeory, Yonkers, president of the Building Trades Council of Westchester county.

It is charged in the indictment that these defendants and the unions they represent, together with the Building Trades Council of Westchester county, through a combination and conspiracy control the installation of cast stone in all building work within the so-called Metropolitan district, which includes in addition to New York city, Long Island, Westchester county and Newark, all territory within a radius of 25 miles of the boundaries of New York city and all territory within 25 miles of the bounaries of New York.

More than $2,500,000 annually of the cast stone work in this area is said to be affected by the alleged combination. The unions represented by the defendants are said to include more than 1,000 skilled laborers within the Metropolitan district at wages running from $8.30 a day to $12 a day.

It was charged that the defendants employed strikes, boycotts and threats to keep out of New York all cast stone manufactured outside the metropolitan area.

The basis for action on the part of the federal government, it was explained, lies in the fact that interstate shipments of cast stone are restrained and prohibited under the allegations of the indictment.

FAVOR SOUTHERN WAREHOUSE DELIVERIES OF COTTON

NEW YORK, July 7—(AP)—Southern warehouse deliveries of cotton are favored by 166 of 284 members of the New York cotton exchange who cast their votes in an informal ballot on the question, Samuel T. Hubbard, president of the exchange, said today.

The vote does not in any way commit the exchange to the adoption of the southern delivery system, but it was taken to obtain a concrete expression from the membership on the principle. The endorsement of the plan by such a large number of the members, it is expected, may lead the exchange to authorize an official ballot, in which case a two thirds vote will be required, to insure its adoption.

Of those who voted for southern deliveries, 103 members favored deliveries at Norfolk, New Orleans, Galveston, Houston and Savannah; twelve desired to include New York as a port of delivery while Boston and Atlanta received one vote apiece. Only one member favored having three contracts, while 91 members favored two contracts.

Of those who voted against southern deliveries, three were in favor of having two contracts in the event the exchange adopted such a system while 79 members were opposed to having two contracts. One member among the opponents favored delivery at New York and New Orleans.

DECLINES TO APPEAR IN EXTORTION CASE

NEW YORK, July 7—(AP)—Frederick Rowland Hazard declined today to appear as complainant against a man and wife charged with suspicion of attempted extortion against him. The case was dropped.

Hazard, a wealthy tax accountant and son of the late president of the Solvay Process company outside of Syracuse, N. Y., caused the arrest of Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Fosnaugh after receiving letters which demanded $5,000 on penalty of "starting the works."

Mrs. Fosnaugh was a former fellow employe of Hazard's and during the time they worked together it was said that he befriended her, making her gifts estimated as high as $20,000. Later she went to California, where she purchased real estate and married her present husband, a movie stunt aviator. When she worked with Hazard she had had another husband whom she later divorced.

Shipping Board to Sell Steamship Lines

Preliminary Steps Taken Toward Sale of United States and American Merchant Lines—Both Operate Out of New York.

WASHINGTON, July 7.—(AP)—Preliminary steps were taken today by the shipping board toward the sale to private interests of the two largest government-owned steamship lines, the United States lines and the American Merchant line, both operating out of New York on trans-Atlantic routes.

The board directed its ship sales committee, consisting of Commissioners Teller, Hill and Walsh, to prepare recommendations and the sale advertisement covering the proposals for the sale of both lines and to report back to the board at an early date for its approval.

The United States lines operate, among other ships, the giant Leviathan with a gross tonnage of 59,956 as well as two other former German liners, the George Washington and the Republic. It also has the American-built steamers, President Harding and, President Roosevelt of about 14,000 tons gross and the former German liner now named the America which was seriously damaged by fire while undergoing repairs at Newport News.

The American Merchant line includes 11 ships of approximately 8,000 tons each, among them five war time army transports which were then named after French battle fields. They have been renamed the American Tanker, American Farmer, American Merchant and American Shipper and American Trader and ply between New York and the United Kingdom on regular sailings. Its other ships are the Capulin, Chickasha, City of Flint, Lehigh, Quaker City and West Canon.

SALS WIFE CALLED DOWN CURSE ON HIS HEAD

NEWPORT, R. I., July 7.—(AP)— A curse was called upon the head of Milton J. Budlong by his wife, he testified today in his suit for divorce on grounds of cruelty. It was his third day of cross-examination by Mrs. Budlong, who has dismissed her remaining lawyer and is conducting her own case. Budlong also said that Mrs Budlong was determined to be "one of the real people" in Newport society and declared to him that she would leave within a year if she did not become so.

The mysterious "Mrs. V" of Mrs. Budlong's earlier suits against her husband bobbed up again today, and the wife questioned the husband at length as to his relations with "Mrs. X." He admitted he kept up his friendship with her, took her to the theater and went to her apartment many times.

"Have you given any promise to Mrs. X. that you will not become reconciled?" Mrs. Budlong asked.

"No, but I never will become reconciled. You know that at the Plaza in New York you prayed to God to curse me because I would not deed the Reef to you and give you $100,000." (The Reef was the Newport estate purchased by Budlong from T. Suffern Taller).

"Mrs. X. was beautiful, wasn't she?" Mrs. Budlong inquired.

"I don't know that you would say so," was the reply.

In the course of the trial Mrs. Budlong asked her husband, "Did you ever say your wife was crazy?" He denied this, adding that he had advised her to see a doctor because of her nerves. He said his wife's cruelties were more acute in 1923 than previously, and that Mrs. Budlong then refused to have her meals with him.

In the only half hour when Budlong was not being questioned by his wife, his counsel put two character witnesses on the stand, Edwin Boyd Jackson, of Philadelphia, and Arthur E. Corbin, of Westport, Conn. They said they had never seen him intoxicated. Jackson told of a jibe uttered by the comedian, Will Rogers, when he and Budlong were at the theater. It referred to Mrs. Budlong's throwing her husband's shirts from their East 72nd street apartment with notes pinned to them, and Jackson declared "I hung my head in shame."

PROTEST DEATH SENTENCES FOR SACCO AND VANZETTI

BOSTON, July 7—(AP)—German trade unionists and members of the reichstag, including President Paul Loebe, of that body, protested against the imposition of the death sentence on Nicola Sacco and Bartolomeo Vanzetti, widely known radicals convicted of murder, in three radiograms from Berlin received today by Governor Fuller.

President Loebe's message read: "Recommend strongly abolition of death sentence against Sacco and Vanzetti and their re-trial as judicial error in first trial appears possible."

The other messages said: "German trade unionists and members of reichstag very excited on Sacco-Vanzetti sentence. Are convinced of miscarriage of justice. Expect re-trial."

A motion for a new trial has been filed and the death sentence has been suspended. The messages were placed on file, however, in the event the case reaches the governor.

STRIKE LEADERS CLAIM 100 "L" MEN ARE OUT

Striking Subway Trainmen Make Official Complaint That Safety Devices Are Being Eliminated by Company so That Service May be Maintained at Any Cost—Company Officials Vigorously Denied Strikers' Assertion—Only a Handful of "L" Men Out According to Subway Chiefs—Traffic Conditions Showed Improvement as Second Day of Walkout Ended.

NEW YORK, July 7—(AP)—Further improvement in traffic conditions were noted by the city authorities today as the second day of the subway strike ended.

Better acquaintance of the public with emergency routes and increased service on the unaffected subway and elevated lines were cited as major contributing factors.

Striking motormen and switchmen on the Interborough Rapid Transit met the company's announcement that "nearly normal" service was being maintained by laying before the public service commission charges of unsafe operation of the crowded trains. Crews are being used, they asserted, who have had no special technique of the intricate underground system.

Further efforts to tie up the "relieving" transit arteries were in progress tonight by the strike leaders. More than 100 elevated operators already have joined the strike, they declared, but this was described as "ridiculous" by officials of those lines.

No serious acts of sabotage nor any serious complaints from the inconvenienced public had been received by the police. The general opinion among good natured crowds jamming the unaffected transit lines seemed to be that the strike was a matter between the subway company and its employes and the public preferred to sit on the fence and watch.

Thousands or persons, of course, did continue use of the affected subway lines, at the rush hours crowding the cars in a manner reminiscent of the pre-strike days, but to a large extent they switch their patronage to trolleys, elevated lines, buses or taxis. As a result the reduced number of subway trains kept running were less crowded than almost every other means of transportation, including the sidewalks.

Clashes between strikers, their supporters and the company were purely verbal. Strikers made official complaint that safety devices were being eliminated by the company so that service might be maintained at any cost but subway officials vigorously denied this. Strike leaders claimed that employes of the Interborough Elevated Lines, not previous affected by the strike, were joining the strikers ranks in large numbers. Subway chiefs responded that only a handful of "L" men had left their posts and charged that a large group of "elevated employes," who had appeared at a strikers' meeting to swear allegiance to the strike cause were "dummies."

The safety devices which strikers charged were being tampered with on the subways are the "dead man's buttons," the "trippers," and the emergency valves.

"The dead man's button" is a button on the motorman's control handle on every train which must be continuously held down to keep the train running. It was devised so that if a motorman should drop dead the train would automatically come to a stop. It was charged these buttons had been tied down.

The "trippers" are levers in the tarcks which rise after a train has passed and prevent another train following too close behind. These also, it was charged, had been tied down.

The emergency valves strikers said, had been plugged so that the safety cord running through each train by which a conductor or passenger may stop the train was made inoperative.

Brooklyn was still the chief sufferer from the strike, interborough service having been cut off in almost all of that borough since the strike began. The result was enormously increased traffic on the Brooklyn Manhattan subway, which was not affected by the strike, and on trolleys crossing Brooklyn bridge.

MAY INCLUDE PROHIBITION CANDIDATES ON STATE BALLOT

HARTFORD, July 7.—(AP)—Formal action to have the prohibition party candidates included upon the official state ballot at the November election came today when the first petitions to this effect were received at the office of the secretary of the state and filed by Deputy Secretary Elmer H. Loungbury. Three separate petitions were filed each containing the names of 25 residents of Ledyard.

The first asked that the prohibition candidates for United States senator and all state elective offices be put upon the ballot for the November 2 election. The other two requested that the party's nominees for the general assembly, congressman from the second district, and sheriff for New London county be included.

Seventeen of the 25 signers were women.

The prohibition party is conducting a state-wide campaign to gain a place on the official ballot. Approximately 4,000 names will have to be secured for the general petition, under the state law, to allow the party to again name state and national candidates for the ballot. The law requires that a number of petitioners be secured equal to 1 per cent of the whole number having voted at the last previous general election. The total vote was 403,162 at the election in November 1924.

CUSTOM OFFICIALS SEIZE 30,000 GALLONS OF ALCOHOL

BOSTON, July 7.—(AP)—An estimated 25,000 to 30,000 gallons of Belgian alcohol was seized tonight by United States customs officials on board the steamer Cretan at Battery wharf here. It was believed to be the largest seizure ever made at this port, with a retail value set at about $400,000.

Finding of the liquor followed a search of the craft that was started at 10 o'clock this morning. Customs men boarded the steamer with a crew of 50 longshoremen, who were especially engaged to remove the cargo of waste paper in the batches.

After removing the waste paper which was baled in 500 and 800 pound lots, the customs men found a heavy wire screening and came upon a deposit of soft coal. Beneath the coal they found about 800 drums of alcohol each containing about 75 gallons, in addition they also discovered 100 bottles of brandy.

Further search of the craft will be continued tomorrow.

CAMPAIGN FUNDS COMMITTEE ADJOURNS UNTIL JULY 26TH

WASHINGTON, July 7—(AP)—Winding up for the time being its inquiry into Pennsylvania's $3,000,000 republican primary, the senate campaign funds committee adjourned today until July 26 when it will launch into an investigation at Chicago of the Illinois primary 4in which it has been charged an equally large amount was spent.

Subpoenas for a number of witnesses some of them prominent in the business and political life of Illinois, were issued today by the committee. The names of those sought will not be made public until the summons have been served as committee members do not want to give any one an opportunity to get beyond the jurisdiction of the process servers.

At an hour's session today the investigators heard Representative Morin, republican, Pittsburgh, who testified he collected no funds as western campaign manager for William S. Vare, the victor in the senatorial race with Senator Pepper and Gov. Pinchot.

Under sharp questioning by Senator King, Democrat, Utah, acting chairman, the congressman disclosed he handled approximately $47,500 for Vare managers including $24,500 given to him by Thomas F. Watson, the Vare treasurer, and $23,000 handed to him by E. N. Kenna, treasurer of the Vare Pittsburgh organization.

Morin said he gave the $24,500 to a number of men as directed by Watson and that he paid out the $23,000 to Edward R. Martin, secretary of the Pittsburgh committee, for the payment of Vare watchers at the polls in Allegheny county.

The $23,000 was kept in a safety box in the William Penn hotel at Pittsburgh. Morin said this box was in his name and that no one could get funds from it without his consent.

Questioned by King about Martin's statement that he had taken $23,000 from the box at one time, Morin said Martin had been "confused" when he testified and that no such sums had been paid out at one time.

"We will determine whether Mr. Martin was confused," retorted Senator King. "He did not appear to me to be confused."

The difference in cost of the postage for the air mail service which saved the local bank a day's interest, and the postage for ordinary mail was 12 cents.

VOTING MACHINE FAVORED BY MAYOR AND SELECTMAN

(Special to the Bulletin)

WILLIMANTIC, July 7—The six thousand voters in the town of Windham, which includes the City of Willimantic, are being invited, especially the women, to attend an all-week demonstration of an automatic voting machine at the selectmen's room of the town building. The machine can be seen and tried between the hours of 9 a. m. to 9 p. m., (standard time.) The new voting device is especially popular with the women, many of whom went to the polls in considerable embarrassment or did not go at all because of their unfamiliarity with the method of marking the paper ballot. Many, too, realized after casting their vote that they had marked the ballot wrongly. This can be blamed for the fact that such a small percentage of local women have taken advantage of their franchise. The old method of voting was a cumbersome, lengthy process. Now that the board of selectmen and the city officials have signified their approval of the voting machines it is likely that steps for their purchase will be taken at the regular meeting of the common council next Monday night. Mayor John C. Tracy and First Selectman Ernest P. Cheshire are said to be favorably impressed with the machine.

JEWETT CITY

BOROUGH FISHERMAN OUT TO CATCH GERMAN CARP

(Special to the Bulletin)

JEWETT CITY, July 7—Most of the local fishermen went one way Tuesday and that was to the upper Aspinook, where German carp disclosed themselves again to Fourth of July bass fishermen. The last reported of the several great carp that make their homes in the quiet coves of the northern reaches of the pond, was last August, when pickerel fishermen started a pair in Bennett's bay. Fred Belisle saw three in the Baldwin cove, just below the South Canterbury station Monday afternoon. He was alone in a row boat trying for bass. The first one he noticed when a movement among the lily pads attracted his attention.

No lure, fancy spoon, or night-crawlers seemed to make the least impression on the great fish, which are reported as three feet long by several fishermen who have actually been favored with close ups. Young Belisle said Tuesday that within three days he would have one on exhibition in the town. Failing to induce the largest one to bite, he threw a line over his back as he moved slowly along in the shadows, the hook caught in the fin and as the fisherman pulled in the line Mr. Carp was suddenly turned on his back. A sort of sling lasso was made Tuesday and the angling skill of the borough's experts is to be tried to secure one of the whoppers, variously estimated to weigh from 10 to 25 pounds.

Now is the time to be on the look-out to get a sight at Mr. Anax Junius the mosquito hawk dragon fly, with a three inch body and four inch spread of wings. Contrary to custom, a fine specimen alighted on a Main street window sash Tuesday afternoon, and allowed close inspection of his new green and gold coat) for an hour or more. He may be a dragon to the mosquitoes which he devours, but he is in his peculiar form and coloring a really handsome chap.

A little later, fishermen will notice the female as she hovers over the water and drops the tip of her abdomen just below the surface to deposit singly her gelatin-coated eggs. Time was when if Mrs. Anax alighted on fish line for poised on the tip of the extended rod; good luck was sure to ponce.

At a little after 10 o'clock Tuesday evening when the theatres and Chautauqua shows were over, the two audiences, upon reaching the streets, were at once interested in the great red glow in the sky off to the southeast of the town.

The fire was Marci Osga's large barn, near Bethel, not a new one recently completed but an old structure used mainly for the storage of farm vehicles and implements. A mowing machine and a light wagon were also destroyed. The insurance of $450 will even up the loss. Mr. Osga has no idea how the blaze started. After 10 p. m. Tuesday the lower atmosphere here was filled with fog, which the flames lighted up to such an extent that it gave from the borough, the appearance of a great fire. The guesses as to its locality were nothing short of wonderful, and included Westerly, Voluntown and Glasgo, with one opinion that it was 50 miles away.

Martin Davis has just completed a three stall cement block garage, built for A. M. Brown, between his North and East Main street properties.

L. M. Carpenter's long trellises of crimson rambler roses, are just coming into their fully beauty. All about the borough the ramblers of various sorts, with here and there a Dorothy Perkins, are showing attractive colors.

The 50 or more catalpa trees, in different yards about the town are in full blossom. They were all the gift of the Porteous and Mitchell company of Norwich to the school children 15 years ago.

Wednesday, June 23, this section had the benefit of a good wetting, when close to 1-4 of an inch of rain was measured in the gauges. Since then barring what the weather man calls a trace of precipitation, last Monday, there has been no rain. A drive through the farming district Wednesday afternoon, served to prove the damage to Griswold's hay crop, especially on light upland.

One of the bright little chaps of the borough, declares that he didn't fall off the horse he was riding. Ask Raymond Cathcart, he knows!

Mr. and Mrs. William MacDowell, have been in Westerly, R. I., the guests of friends in that city.

The Llera Mexican Serenaders at the afternoon and evening Chautauqua Wednesday were accorded as much applause as at any previous entertainment. They were charming and the costumes and stage hangings were splendid. In the evening Dr. Harry Hibschman gave a lecture on Are We Going Back to the Jungle? He held the closest attention of his audience. The Junior Town is the largest it has been for several years, there being more than 40 boys and girls who will take part in the last afternoon play. The officers elected are: Mayor Oliver Carter, clerk, Catherine Jodoin; service commissioner, Mildred Gilbert, Jeanne Rousseau, law and order commissioners, Arthur Tripp, Janet Wilcox; health commissioners, Anna Bugbee, Marguerite Shea; press reporter, Margery Webster. Many of the children have received pins showing the number of years they have attended Junior Town.

DANIELSON

TWO-STATE FISHING LICENSE AN URGENT NECESSITY

(Special to The Bulletin.)

DANIELSON, July 7—Something that is to be sought after is a reciprocity agreement between the Connecticut and the Rhode Island fish and game commissions relative to fishing in Old Killingly pond, near East Killingly. Part of this pond is in Connecticut and part in Rhode Island. Hardly a person hereabouts knows exactly where the Connecticut waters end and the Rhode Island begin, or vice versa. As things are now a man must have both a Connecticut and a Rhode Island fishing license to feel free and safe fishing any part of this pretty body of water. It is held that a fishing license of either state should protect a fisherman in any part of this inter-state pond. And the same applies to Beach pond, east of Voluntown. Some such arrangement has been talked about for several months and it is possible some announcement relative to it may be eventually anticipated.

NO NEW HOTEL PROMISED FOR BOROUGH THIS SEASON

(Special to The Bulletin.)

DANIELSON, July 7—Danielson will not get a new hotel this year. For months there have been negotiations that might have led to some arrangements under which a modern hotel would be constructed here, but these prospects seem to have vanished, at least for the time being. W. S. Brown, owner of the Attawaugan hotel, has had various offers for his property and some proposals relative to building a new house on the site, but none of them have appeared favorable to him and the situation remains as is. It is Mr. Brown's ambition to give Danielson a new house with fine appointments, but this does not appear to be the year for realization of the hope.

Many of the youngsters in town have solved the problem of finding a place for a swim. They ate taking chances in the treacherous waters of the Quinebaug river, noted for its swift current and quickly descending depths. So numerous were the drownings in this river a score of years ago that it was practically abandoned for swimming for years, but the boys of this generation are again taking a chance with it.

Officials continue to make a study of all the material available for developing all the facts surrounding the death of the new-born daughter of Miss Agnes Pytka, 17, of Wilsonville, still at the Day Kimball hospital and steadily regaining her strength. It is understood that officials have learned much about the case and will be prepared to ask many interesting questions at the inquest. Both Miss Pytka and Raymond Wetherbee of North Grosvenordale are being held for examination at Coroner Arthur G. Bill's inquest, which may be held next week.

Wednesday morning's meeting of Junior Chautauqua brought many children together at the Chautauqua tent and they were a happy gathering and gave free rein to their expression of delight. In the afternoon the entertainment was by the Flavelle-Haldene company and the evening program brought the presentation of the comedy drama Give and Take, altogether a very interesting day for subscribers.

At the home on North Main street at 2:30 Wednesday afternoon, funeral services for Mrs. Lora J. Sprague, widow of Penuel Sprague, were conducted by Rev. Willis mSwainson, pastor of the Congregational church at Dayville. The services were attended by numbers of relatives and friends. Burial was in Westfield cemetery. There were beautiful floral pieces. A. F. Wood was in charge of the arrangements.

The bonding house that recently purchased the $150,000 issue of school bonds of the town of Killingly has placed them on the market and they are being offered this week to banks and other financial organizations in New England. It is believed that these bonds will be taken rapidly, as they represent an excellent investment.

Killingly is nearing the end of another fiscal year. The town's books will be balanced for the year on July 31. At this time it is impossible to forecast accurately as to reduction of debt or other such things, but it is indicated that the report will be a favorable one. It would have been more so were not the town obligated to such heavy expenditure in clearing the highways of snow the past winter. In speaking of debt reduction now, one does so without taking into consideration the new issue of school bonds and thinking only of the outstanding obligations of the town prior to that issue.

As in the case every year, numbers of dogs that are without collars or tags, in some cases without either, are to be seen roaming about. This may or may not indicate that the dogs are unregistered, but the owners of such dogs are liable to prosecution in case they are picked up by a dog warden or a deputy of the commissioner of domestic animals. And at about this time each year an effort is made by officials to round up such dogs.

Evidently some of the youngsters over-bought on noise-makers for the Fourth, as sporadic explosions would indicate during Wednesday.

The following from a New York financial paper is of interest to the people in this vicinity where the Bowen family stands for so much:

"Henry C. Bowen, kaleidoscopically distinguished from the 1849 gold discovery era on toward the 19th century's ending, editor, publicist,—"friend-adviser of president after president" Horace Greeley called him—was establisher of an American family of line of achievers. Herbert, youngest of his sons was Theodore Roosevelt's comrade and won in diplomacy; Clarence made out of a weekly journal an oracle for clean government progressives; and Edward, eldest of the sons, who just on the verge of his 80th year demises, had a prosperous career in Wall street.

"Jay Cooke whom the title-givers call the Financier of the War for Union, was Edward Bowen's earliest employer—and to those who knew of the undeviating ways of Jay Cooke, employer means tutor, personal overseer, veritible step-fathership. To a fellow junior with Edward Bowen, Mr. Cooke—taking his time in the midst of gigantic financial operations—wrote like this: 'I hear you drive a tandem rig through New York's streets and parks on Sunday—attracting attention to your turnout and yourself. Please don't! It invites a wrong impression. It is not good business for yourself. It is bad business for Jay Cooke & Co. Keep the Sabbathy holy', was not written jestfully.

"Edward Bowen came to have his own stock exchange firm—Smith, Seaver and Bowen—one of whose clients, alloting its confidential undertakings, was Henry Villard, successor to Jay Cooke's visions of Northern Pacific stupendousness. Young Bowen became quickly prosperous. Further money-making prospects loomed bright and big. So—he quit. Urge of the bold, of the valient journalist father imposed the spirit of him. Brief boyhood taste of the 'writing game'—never another aspiration just the like of that—commandeered him from Wall street to the print shop.

"As editor and publisher he flourished in metropolitan success and joy until failing health dictated leisures in the country, at Woodstock in Connecticut—Woodstock woolngly beautiful, which is nature—uniquely historical, which is imprint of the Bowens."

At a recent meeting of Christ church, Pomfret, Mrs. Joseph Clarke Hoppin was chosen treasurer of the parish to succeed the late John Ash, who had held that office for many years. J. Fred Ash was elected clerk. The most important action of the meeting was the decision to abandon the present system of renting pews and adopt the method of having all pews open to the public. While this motion was carried by the majority of those present, it was decided that the pew holders not present at the meeting should be consulted before the action became final.

A Performance thrill you'll never forget

ARE you tired of "sluggish" cars? Do you want the thrill of flashing, brilliant performance . . . to be able to step out and around other cars on the road?

Then this is the car for you.

It is built for young people who are going somewhere.

They have discovered it in thousands.

It is "modern" . . . not made over. We mean just what we imply.

Many cars have been "modern" too long. Buyers of such "new" cars are due for a "shock" when they look for resale value.

The Overland Six is new all thru . . . brilliantly engineered as a unit.

It was designed for road speeds of from 45 to 55 miles per hour without wear and tear on the motor.

That's why you can run this new-type car at high speed hour after hour.

It will pickup in high gear from 5 to 40 miles an hour in 22 seconds.

It has ample power to climb steep hills in high . . . gear shifting reduced to a minimum.

It has a modern full pressure-feed oiling system.

That's one reason why the Overland Six will run longer than other cars, without a pile of repair bills.

Modern engineering has made possible a lower gravity center. The Overland Six fairly hugs the ground. Without sidesway, slipping or wandering . . . it is surprisingly safe and easy to control.

In performance this remarkable new-type car is brilliant.

The only way to appreciate it is to actually drive the car. Sit behind the wheel and experience yourself the wonderful "thrill" of its tremendous power, its lightning pickup and amazing bursts of speed.

In fairness to yourself, see this car.

Note: 4-wheel brakes are now furnished as optional equipment at slight extra cost.

WHAT YOU GET IN THIS WORLD-FAMOUS SIX

- 40 to 55 miles an hour comfortable driving
- 5 to 40 miles an hour in 21 seconds
- High torque engine . . . . ample power to master the steepest hills
- Low gravity center . . . . greater safety
- Big, broad doors 31½ inches wide . . . . by far the roomiest car of this size and weight

HIGHWAY TREES

According to the first report which has been made by the state highway department relative to the tree planting it has set out over 4700 trees as the beginning of the landscape work along the system of state highways.

This makes a start in a direction that will ultimately produce results that will speak for themselves. Probably those who went searching for these new trees would find little to-day to rave about and yet as time goes on they will come into prominence, stand forth as delightful additions to the state roads and provide shade and beauty for those who pass. It is the beginning of work that will increase each year and become an attraction.

Beautification of highways is a matter which might in many instances be left to the town through which the roads run. There should be a keen interest in the respective townships to replace as far as possible many of the fine trees which have to be sacrificed for new, wider and better roads. Each town might vie with the others in making its roads more interesting for those who are passing through or for those who are going there.

There are of course great stretches of roads where such beautification is not required, since it already exists, but there are others where it would be a big addition and a decided contrast to existing conditions, a relief to the sunbaked highways and an aid in making a more pleasing picture for those driving for business or pleasure.

The state is setting a fine example in this direction. So far its work has been limited to certain sections, and it is probable that it will be the main highways that will get the most attention in the beginning, but there is a chance for cooperation and encouragement that should not be overlooked by towns and cities for what is good for the main lines, or the state system of highways, is certainly not for other roads where the conditions require it.

FIRES ON THE FOURTH

While this country stands at the top of the list in the losses by fire, and while great efforts are put forth in behalf of prevention, there are glaring instances where there seems to be no effort on the part of the people to reduce the list of needless fires. Is it a case where they are like the little boy who wanting to see the fire department respond so started something and turned in an alarm? There are times when it seems so, and the demands which were made upon the departments in Worcester and Providence over the period of the Fourth were in keeping therewith.

While safety and sanity were being displayed in many cities Fire Chief McCarthy of Worcester declares that city gave an exhibition that it should be ashamed of. He based this criticism upon the fact that from midnight Saturday until midnight Monday there were 225 still calls upon the fire department and 76 bell alarms. Street fires were started in spite of the fact that they are in violation of a city ordinance and firemen were stoned and egged when they began to extinguish them.

In Providence the department was called upon 202 times, the largest number in a 52 hour period in the city's history. The damage was small, only two amounting to much, but there seemed to be the same disregard for fire prevention on the part of the celebrators in that city as there was in Worcester.

There is no justification for such demonstrations. The Fourth can be properly celebrated, and with due enthusiasm, without any such recklessness and disregard for the rights and property of others. It can be done even with the observance of that degree of care which will prevent fires. There's nothing about the celebration which calls for a radical waste of life and property. That doesn't indicate patriotism, but it does indicate an increasing amount of carelessness which is no credit to the community. There is no more justification for it than there is for the great wastage of human life and property losses which follow the automobile accidents where refusal to abide by restrictions not only prevails but is tolerated. The fire chief of Worcester is mild in his criticism when he declares that the city should be ashamed of its fire record on the Fourth.

OUR LATIN AMERICAN TRADE

According to a report which has been issued by the department of commerce our trade with Latin America last year showed a further gain, and therefore a movement in the right direction. We sent to Latin American countries a total of over $880,000,000 while our total trade with them reached the sum of more than $1,919,000,000, the former being a gain of 14 per cent over the previous year and the latter an increase of 21 per cent.

This report comes in keeping with expectation. There was the time before the war when, in view of our relationship in the western hemisphere, this country was not getting its proper share of the Latin American trade. Europe had gone into the field and had a control which could not be easily upset. War made it impossible for the European countries to continue to meet Latin American needs and it was necessary for them to turn to this country. That gave us a chance to get a hearing from those countries, to show them our goods and to make known the fact that we could and we desired to serve. There was no reason why we should not have years ago established better trade relations, but by the time there was a growing desire to the other countries had become so firmly established there that it was hard to get a chance.

While we did not hold all the business that we did during the war and immediately after, we are now doing three times as much business with Latin America than we did before the war and still going.

It has been necessary for us to study Latin American ways and to introduce our methods only so fast as they were acceptable. We have to learn that the South Americans desired to have their wants filled rather than adopt new products immediately. We also were obliged to establish better banking and transportation facilities and all these have played their part in making the trade report what it is. That it will continue to expand for the mutual benefit of all countries in this hemisphere is to be fondly hoped. It is tending in the direction that it should.

CITY APPROPRIATIONS

According to the discussion of the city fathers in the July session of the court of common council the action of the citizens in cutting the appropriations was not kindly received.

Instead of accepting the appropriations as the will of those providing the money and making some effort to keep within the appropriations as the fire department has for so many years, there is an inclination to go ahead regardless, create overdrafts, which have been the cause of so much criticism in the past, whether the appropriations were what were asked or whether they had been reduced, and then appeal to a special city meeting for the money which was refused at the annual meeting.

Probably the special city meeting would be in a mood to grant such a request as it has done on so many previous occasions, but a much better situation would be created if there were less gloomy talk about being unable to do the impossible and "poor economists" and a display of eagerness to meet the requirements of the citizens through the application of a little more efficiency. Under such conditions if the funds failed there would be a better temper on the part of the citizens.

What they have asked for is a better use of the city's money and if it can be shown by the stoppage of waste and conscientious effort, rather than by resentment, that they have not provided enough money they will be in a mood to listen and act accordingly. The annual city meeting asked the city fathers to change some of the methods and it will be unfortunate if it is not accepted in that spirit.

THE PRESIDENT'S VACATION

President Coolidge has gotten away from Washington as quickly as congress would let him. He will spend the next two months or so in White Pine camp in the Adirondacks, which becomes the summer white house. There he will make his headquarters quite the same as he did last summer at Swampscott, and in the time he gets which discharging the routine business of his office, will gain the relaxation and rest than the confining duties of his office entitle him to.

That the president is well satisfied with the accomplishments of the session of congress just closed is probably only what was to be expected in view of the fact that there has been much important legislation enacted, the administration's program has been furthered in most instances and the results have been gained in spite of the recognized insurgent element, the effects of which were less pronounced than in the previous session. That the president is pleased does not necessarily mean that all was done that he would like to have had done. But it isn't every session that accomplishes that. The president is gratified at the progress made and also at the fact that it was done through congress rising to its duty after needs were pointed out and not through the use of the big stick.

The president goes to White Pine camp for a change and such a rest as the reduced summer business will permit. The country recognizes his close application to business, his devotion to duties and the fact that he is always on his job, and wishes that his vacation, if it can be called such, will be as restful and beneficial as he anticipates and requires.

EDITORIAL NOTES

After a few days firecrackers will be forgotten until another Fourth.

The man on the corner says: Those in the grip of poverty never think of the trouble they miss.

Congress hasn't done all that was expected of it, but it is too much to expect perfection from congress.

Now the big question is whether July is going to be itself or whether it will furnish what June neglected.

With so many going to Europe it cannot be that they expect any immediate interruption of peaceful relations.

From the way some people act and the things other people do every day seems to be pretty much of an independence day.

Because 131.6 miles an hour have been made on the Rockingham speedway some will endeavor to beat it on the highways.

Police court business indicates that the present day beverages are quite as tangling for the feet as those before prohibition.

It will be the wish of the country that the president should have a pleasant and refreshing vacation, but the idea shouldn't be harbored that the rest in the Adirondacks is going to be without work.

FAIR PRAISE

As the members of the reading club filed out into the street after the meeting Mrs. Rundale drew near a tall, slender young woman who had attracted her earlier in the afternoon.

"Are you going my way?" she asked. "I live a few blocks north. Perhaps we can walk together. I am Mrs. Rundale."

"Yes, indeed, thank you!" replied the tall and slender young woman. "It will be very nice to have company. My name is Evelyn Barr, and I'm somewhat of a stranger in Chicago."

"I heard you tell some one that you come from Barchester, O. I wondered right away if you knew Mr. Quinell?"

"Oh, yes. Everybody in Barchester knows every one else who has ever lived there."

"Mr. Rundale and I like Mr. Quinell. We rather take to queer people. He's likable even if he is peculiar in some ways. Don't you think so?"

"Why, yes. I think he's very nice," Miss Barr smiled.

We, too find him amusing. He has such odd notions. He cerainly is a funny little man, isn't he? But my husband says he's clever in business, notwithstanding his idiosyncrasies, and I don't mind his looks, and I'm sure that he means well, and is kind. Don't you think so?"

"I'm quite sure of it," agreed Miss Barr, with another odd smile that Mrs. Rundale found perplexing. But she liked the girl, and when they parted she urged her to come in some time informally for a cup of tea.

"We can have a good visit in front of my library fire," she said.

"That will be delightful," Miss Barr smiled in the same quizzical way. "Then, perhaps, you'll tell me more about my former fellow townsman."

"Oh," laughed Mrs. Rundale. "I don't suppose he is much funnier than most confirmed bachelors. Living alone is likely to make a man eccentric and fearfully opinionated."

A few days later Mrs. Rundale was startled by some news that her husband brought her from downtown. Her first remark was that she did not believe it.

"You have to believe it," declared Rundale. "Quinell told me so himself. I don't see why he shouldn't get engaged to be married as well as any one else, though I will say he hasn't much speed."

"Who in the world is he engaged to?"

"A Miss Barr, from his home town."

"Heavens! Miss Barr."

"Yes, Miss Barr. Do you know her?"

"Slightly," murmured Mrs. Rundale "I'll send a note over to where she is staying and ask her to tea."

But the next morning was a busy one and she forgot it, and time slipped away until two weeks later, when she happened to meet Miss Barr in the street. She then insisted upon her going home with her for a little visit by the fire.

"You know," she said, as she poured the tea, "I do wish Mr. Quinell would drop in on his way home from his office. He sometimes does."

"Oh, do you think he will?" asked Miss Barr anxiously.

"I'm afraid not. He doesn't come often. I wish he did, for he's really a charming person, isn't he? So unusual. You know I was saying to you the other day that he is so individual—so different from most men. My husband and I are really quite devoted to him."

"Yes, I remember that you said you liked him," remarked Miss Barr, casually, and then she changed the subject by admiring a color etching over the mantel. "I'm hoping to collect some etchings in Paris."

"How interesting," said Mrs. Rundale, and it flashed through her mind that Paris is a wonderful place for a honeymoon.

But she kept the thought to herself, for which she was devoutly thankful afterward, when her husband informed her that Quinell's engagement was off. Quinell had said so.

"Good gracious! I hope I didn't have anything to do with breaking that engagement."

"You? What do you mean?"

"If I tell you you'll say that I talk too much," Mrs. Rundale protested. "Promise me you won't," she begged, and when she related the story of her little visits with Miss Barr he just looked at her and laughed.

"Why don't you say something?" she asked.

"Because I'm under bond not to say what I think," Rundale answered and laughed again.—Exchange.

Stories That Recall Others

Transparents

He went into a drug store and asked the clerk for some vanishing cream. She searched a few minutes and then called to another clerk: "Say, Madge, where's the vanishing cream?"

"Why, I put it over there behind the invisible hairnets," she replied.

His Reason

Raymond got a "licking", in fact, a "sound thrashing," as the oldtimers used to call it.

Here is how it happened. They had a caller at his house. As he started to leave he said to Raymond: "Won't you walk with me as far as the street car, Raymond?"

"I can't."

"Why, not?"

"Cause we are going to have dinner as soon as you go."

From Small Beginnings

Amariah Brigham, a Great Physician

Many a boy and girl has puzzled over English grammar and been unable to master its intricacies. Amariah Brighham, lacking the advantages of school, procured a text book in grammar and mastered the subject in a single day of intensive study. That one fact shows the quality of the man's ability, and the determination with which he took upnew work. The great asylum for the insane at Utica, N. Y., is a tribute to the ability and the determined work of Amariah Brigham, the man.

In the beginning of the man's life he seemed to lose all opportunity. His father, a poor Massachusetts farmer, died when the boy was only 11. An uncle, with whom he went to live, died when the boy was 14. Thrown upon his own resources he was obliged to become a clerk in a store. Thus it happened that he was not able to do as other boys did and attend various educational institutions.

Fortunately for him, and for the world, young Brigham became clerk in a bookstore. There he had one opportunity—that of reading good books. He read wisely and well, with such good result that he was able to become teacher in a small school. Having started himself on the road to learning he now turned to more intensive study. Associating himself with a physician he took up the study of medicine, to which he devoted himself with all the energy and perhinacity that he had shown in studying grammar. At 22 he was a practicing physician and soon gained a large practice. With justice the people said, "Dr. Brigham knows what he's talking about." In every case he found new opportunity for study and research.

Restless in his determination to learn he traveled in Europe and studied more. For many years he was superintendent of the New York State Lunatic Asylum in Utica, N. Y., and editor of the American Journal of Insanity. He published various books resulting from study on cholera, diseases of the brain, the spinal column and the nerves, and other books on "The Influence of Mental Cultivation on Health," and "The Influence of Religion on the Health and Physical Welfare of Mankind." In all his life he was a student, an investigator and one who helped others.

Stories of quests by Americans for big game in the jungles of Africa have been brought to New Orleans by Avra Melvin Warren, United States consul at Nairoba, Kenya, who is at home on leave of absence. "When I left there had arrived ten parties of Americans eager to shoot," said Mr. Warren. The consul explained that the sport is one for the wealthy. The average cost of a month's shooting is $2,000. The license to shoot is $500 and a special license must be procured to kill the elephant and rhinoceros.

His son, Sir Sydney Freemantle, has already attained the rank of admiral and stands at the top of his profession, while a grandson is just entering upon his naval career as a sub-lieutenant.

TWO WOMEN PRAISE SAME MEDICINE

Both Helped by Taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

"After the birth of my little daughter I was very badly run-down. I could not think of going to a hospital, but grew steadily worse, being compelled to stay in bed two or three days each week. A friend of my sister's told of the good Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. had done her, and my sister bought me two bottles of it. I had not taken all of one bottle when I was up and able to do some work. I am truly a booster for Lydia E. BURGESS BEDTIME STORIES

Danny Finds He Has a Neighbor

Who doesn't like his neighbors may,
If he desire, move away.
—Old Mother Nature.

This is perhaps easier done by the little people of the Green Meadows and the Green Forest than by human folk. It is a privilege that they all have. Yet, strangely enough, often they do not take advantage of it. Even when they have dangerous neighbors they will remain rather than move. You there is a love of these little people there is a love of home surroundings so great that it will even overcome fear.

When Danny Meadow Mouse discovered that he had a neighbor under the bathhouse at the seashore where he had hidden he was startled. Foolishly, he had spoken aloud. He had said, "There must be a lot to see here," and a voice had replied. "There is." It was bad enough to be startled, but it was worse to discover who the speaker was. It was a Skunk. Yes, sir, it was a Skunk. It wasn't Jimmy Skunk, whom Danny had known back at Farmer Brown's, for this one was nearly all black. Danny saw this in the first hurried glance. He scurried across to the farther side, for he knew that a stump Meadow Mouse is sometimes enjoyed by members of the Skunk family. "Who are you?" he squeaked.

"I'm Jimmy Skunk," replied his neighbor.

"You're not either," squeaked Danny. "I left Jimmy Skunk back at Farmer Brown's, and he has a big white stripe down the middle of his back."

"That's all right," replied the stranger good-naturedly. "I'm Jimmy Skunk just the same. I may not be the Jimmy you know, but I'm Jimmy just the same. Anyway, that is what people call me. Who are you and where did you come from?"

"I'm Danny Meadow Mouse and I came from the Green Meadows," replied Danny.

"How'd you get here?" inquired Jimmy Skunk.

"I was brought in a great Man Bird."

"I'm Jimmy Skunk," replied his neighbor

replied Danny, and told Jimmy Skunk what had happened. Jimmy knew what the great Man Bird was, for he often had seen airplanes and had learned to know that they were not to be feared; that they were man-made and not real birds.

"Are you going to stay?" asked Jimmy.

"I don't know," replied Danny. "I don't know as it is safe to stay."

"Oh, it's perfectly safe," replied Jimmy. "I won't hurt you. If you have never been to the seashore, there is a lot to see here."

"I—I would like to see it," replied Danny. "I know all about the Green Meadows, but I don't know anything about the seashore. That is why I am afraid. You see, I won't know what to be afraid of, or what enemies to watch out for."

"Oh," replied Jimmy, "just you stay near me and you won't have anything to be afraid of." He spoke quite confidently. He spoke just as Jimmy Skunk back on the Green Meadows always spoke. It was clear to Danny that this Jimmy was just as independent as the other Jimmy. "I guess it runs in the family," thought he. Aloud, he said, "Aren't there any Hawks here?"

"Oh, there's one now and then," replied Jimmy carelessly.

"Aren't there any Owls here?"

"I suppose so, but they don't bother me," replied Jimmy.

"I don't suppose there are any Foxes?" said Danny in an anxious-sounding voice.

"Why, of course there are," replied Jimmy Skunk. "You don't suppose that with such good living as can be found along the seashore there would be no Foxes, do you? But as I said before, don't worry. Just you keep along with me and there will be nothing to fear."

"Thank you," squeaked Danny. But inside he felt anything but sure that there was nothing to fear.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Bringing Up Children

Mr. Editor: Is there nothing that will make a large number of parents of the children of today realize their responsibility? That will make them wake up to the fact that the future welfare of this country depends upon the training or lack of training of those children in the home? The child that is allowed to have its own way in all things, whose desires and passions remain uncurbed and unchecked from infancy, is not brought up. It is a selfish come-up that is almost sure to be a source of trouble or detestation to good people, often times a menace, and occasionally developes into a criminal. This is not the ravings of one or a few cranks but is a fact that is being brought to the attention of the public by those of both press and pulpit who have stamina enough to stand by their convictions in opposition to what seems to be the tendency of the times.

Is this condition the result of our lax or inefficient immigration laws in the past 30 or 40 years? Have we become so corrupted by the vast hordes of undesirable aliens that have come to us in that time that we are in danger of losing our identity? Is it a case of locking the barn after the horse is stolen?

Whatever the cause it is high time that all descendants of those whose ancestry takes them back to those patriots who made this country the land of the free and the home of the brave stood forth prominently in defence of those old disciplinary rules of child training which made of our ancestors law-abiding citizens and staunch, honorable men.

BEGIN NORWICH CAMPAIGN FOR JEFFERSON MEMORIAL FOUNDATION

About 50 persons responded to the invitation of Mayor Waters to attend a citizens meeting Wednesday evening at his office at the court house to discuss the question of a local public subscription towards the Thomas Jefferson Memorial Foundation for which the Norwich quota is $2,000. The mayor called this meeting at the earnest request of the special representative of Governor Trumbull, A. W. Bartlett. A nationwide effort is being made throughout the country to raise enough funds to purchase and forever maintain as a patriotic shine, Monticello, the home of Thomas Jefferson. To this end every governor of every state has been called upon to help raise a sufficient fund to carry out this highly patriotic movement.

Governor Trumbull stated in his letter to Mayor Waters—"Connecticut's answer is, we will rather lead than join in such a patriotic movement." This sentiment is truly applicable to Norwich.

The mayor firmly believes that Norwich will do her full share to assist Governor Trumbull in upholding the honor and respect which Connecticut has always enjoyed in any nationwide patriotic movement. Regardless of party politics, the purchase of the home of that great patriot and statesman, Thomas Jefferson, is a fitting and lasting tribute of a grateful people to the eternal memory of the man and scholar who wrote the constitution of the United States. The people of Norwich have never failed to recognize true worth and high ideals of our statesmen. We are called upon at this moment to contribute our share to this nationwide patriotic movement of helping to raise a nation's public subscription for a historic ideal.

The subscription blanks were distributed to the committee and the solicitation will begin at once. Every contributor to this cause will sign the Honor Roll which will be preserved in the home, Monticello. Public subscriptions will be received by the solicitors, at any of the local banks; by the mayor; and may also be sent to Guy E. Dolbeare, treasurer, who is secretary-treasurer of the Norwich Savings Society. It is obvious that every one cannot be seen by the solicitors and the public is requested by solitors and the public is dequested to this appeal directly to the mayor or treasurer Dolbeare. The Norwich subscriptions will be sent to Gov. Trumbull who will forward Connecticut's contribution to the national officers. All subscriptions should be in the local treasurers hands within the next ten days. This is the governor's wish.

The following was Governor Trumbull's letter to Mayor Waters:

State of Connecticut Executive Chambers, Hartford.

Mayor Miller R. Waters,
Norwich, Conn.

Dear Sir:—The state of Connecticut has been invited by the United States commission, created under act of congress, to join in the nation-wide celebration of the 150th anniversary of the Declaration of Independence, and in the coincidental commemoration of the 100th anniversary of the death of Thomas Jefferson, the author of this great document.

Connecticut's answer is, "We will rather lead, than join in such a patriotic movement."

The commission, which is known as the Sesqui-centennial of American Independence and Thomas Jefferson Centennial Commission of the United States, has in all 19 members including the president and vice president of the United States, and the speaker of the house of representatives. Connecticut has the distinction of having two representatives in the persons of Senator George P. McLean and Congressman John Q. Tilson. A very interesting educational and patriotic programme has been prepared by this commission, which we shall endeavor to follow and observe throughout the state. To this end I am now appointing a commission for the state of Connecticut consisting of those prominent patriotic citizens with whose assistance I wish to carry the message to the people of Connecticut.

I have chosen you for appointment as a member of this commission for Connecticut, and I assure you that I will be gratified to have your co-operation. This is, as it should be, a non-partisan, wholly American effort, which commands the united support of all patriotic citizens. I know that you will heartily endorse my wish, as governor of the state, to have Connecticut distinguish itself in a demonstration of that patriotic spirit which has always distinguished our state from the very days of its early settlement and through all the days of our Revolution, in which we helped to found and establish our beloved country.

May I have your early acceptance, so I may call a meeting of the committee without any delay?

Assuring you of my appreciation of your co-operation, I beg to remain,

Sincerely yours,
JOHN H. TRUMBULL.

NORWICH SOLDIERS WILL GO TO CAMP TOBYHANNA

Burdick, 192nd Field Artillery, will leave the local state armory and entrain for Tobyhanna, Pa., where they will remain in camp until July 24th.

Battery B is to take about 80 men and the Combat Train will number 70 men when they leave for camp. The two companies assembled at the state armory Wednesday evening to get things in readiness for the annual camp.

The companies leave Norwich at 8 o'clock Saturday morning and will be joined at New London by the band and two companies in that city. Two special trains will transport the Connecticut guardsmen to Tobyhanna, one train being made up at Norwalk.

The three service trucks for use of the local companies at Tobyhanna left Norwich on Monday night, going to Hartford and then to Danbury where they joined the fleet of 35 trucks which is to go to Tobyhanna. PONEMAH MILLS PRESIDENT DIES IN RHODE ISLAND

Charles Otis Read of Pawtucket, R. I., president of the Sayles Finishing Co. Inc., at Pawtucket, of the Ponemah Mills Co., at Taftville and of the Hamilton Textile Co., at Pawtucket, died at 8 o'clock Wednesday morning at his summer home at Warwick Neck, R. I. He was in his 80th year and had been in failing health for the past three months.

He was born in Norton, Mass., Dec. 31, 1846, the son of the late Charles A. and Lucy Newman Read. He came to Pawtucket with his parents when an infant and attended the Pawtucket public schools. After serving as a clerk in the Pawtucket post office for a few months he entered the employ of the Gorham Manufacturing company, where he remained two years. In 1868 he entered the employe of the W. F. & F. C. Sayles company, now known as the Sayles Finishing Company, Inc.

Starting as office boy he later became superintendent, then general manager and, upon the death of Frank A. Sayles, president of the concern. He had been president of the Ponemah Co., for a number of years and was one of the outstanding financial and textile leaders of Rhode Island.

GIVEN $150 FINE WITH SUSPENDED JAIL SENTENCE

In the city court Wednesday morning Joseph P. Gadle, Jr., of 195 Central avenue was fined $150 and costs and given a jail sentence of 10 days, the latter sentence being suspended for one year on being found guilty by Deputy Judge H. H. Pettis, on a charge of driving an automobile while under the influence of liquor. Gadle paid $160.62 and did not appeal the sentence of the court.

Gadle was arrested about 1 o'clock Tuesday morning after the automobile he was driving was in collision on Franklin street near the corner of Pond street with a machine driven by Frank Delleo of 16 Piatt avenue. Immediately after the accident Delleo declared that his machine was standing still at the time of the collision as he had brought it to a stop on the right hand side of the street when he saw the Gadle car coming so close to him that he knew his machine was going to be hit.

Gadle entered a plea of no guilty, though his attorney, Thomas J. Kelly, and testimony of the state and defense was then introduced.

The first witness for the state called by Acting City Attorney Telley E. Babcock, was Officer Patrick Shahan, who testified that Gadle was under the influence of liquor and that his breath smelled of liquor. Officer Shahan testified that Gadle staggered about. Further testimony by the officer was to the effect that he drove Gadle's car to police headquarters from the scene of the accident on Franklin street and that when he arrived he placed Gadle under arrest for driving while under the influence.

Corroborating Officer Shahan's testimony were Serg. John T. Casey and Officer William Sharvan.

In his own defense Gadle testified that he was coming down Franklin street, headed toward Franklin square shortly after 1 o'clock Tuesday morning and near the Troy Steam laundry noticed an automobile approaching from the opposite direction, cutting across the street to the left. He testified that he was unable to bring his car to a stop and turned to one side to avoid hitting the other car, but a collision could not be avoided. His impression was that the approaching machine, driven by Frank Delleo, 37 of 16 Piatt avenue, was trying to make the left hand side in order to park.

In regard to his driving while under the influence of liquor, Gadle entered a denial to the charge, testifying that he was dazed from the shock following the accident. He also denied that he had been drinking, stating that he had been visiting at the home of Percy Willis and had left the latter's home shortly before the accident.

Percy Willis of 426 Asylum street, witness for the defense, testified that Gadle had been visiting him at his home and had left there between 12.30 and 12.40 o'clock in the morning. Gadle at that time had not been drinking and had had nothing to drink that evening.

In summing up the case, prior to rendering judgment, Judge Pettis stated that the court possessed evidence from three officers, each of whom had had experience in judging whether or not a man was under the influence of liquor. These men had seen Gadle immediately following the accident, he said, and were positive in their testimony in regard to Gadle being under the influence.

He continued by saying that the only contradicting testimony was that of the accused himself, who said he was not under the influence. Whether the accused was the cause of the accident or not does not enter into this case, said Judge Pettis, but I don't feel that I can disbelieve the testimony of the three officers. I find the accused guilty under the circumstances and impose a fine of $150 and costs and 10 days in jail suspended for one year.

Attorney Kelly argued that the testimony of Willis should bear some weight but Judge Pettis put this aside by stating that according to Willis's own testimony Gadle had left his house some 20 minutes previous to the accident which allowed time for the accused to "fill up". The owner of the other car in the collision was not summoned to testify.

Marcelino Giordani, 42, of 3529 Twelfth avenue, Brooklyn, N. Y., proprietor of the Twelfth Avenue Nursery, was presented before the court on a charge of operating a motor vehicle without having it registered and without possessing an operator's license.

Giordani testified that both the license and registration were at his home in New York, claiming that he had both necessary articles. Judge Libby, to give the accused a chance to prove his claim, continued the case, placed Giordani under bonds of $100, provided in cash by the accused. The court further stated that if the accused was correct the case would be nolled.

Giordani's arrest took place Wednesday morning at an early hour when he cut to the left of a traffic beacon on Franklin square. Officer John O'Neill made the arrest when the accused could not produce the registration and license to drive the truck, in which was the family of Giordani and several others.

JUDGMENT FOR $7,500 FOR POLCARO'S DEATH

Judge Earnest C. Simpson of the superior court handed down a decision Wednesday for Thomas E. Donahue of New London, administrator of the estate of Antonio Polcaro, giving judgment for the administrator to recover $7,500 damages from Claude Z. Jette of Killingly and Norwich for the death of Polcaro in an automobile accident on Oct. 29, 1924 on Stanton hill between Groton and Mystic, McGann Bros., of New Haven, in whose employ Polcaro was at the time of the accident are to recover the amount which they have paid on a workmen's compensation claim for Polcaro's death.

Polcaro was riding in an automobile which Jette was driving when it hit a tree and Polcaro was fatally injured. One of the claims made by the defense was that Polcaro could be charged with contributory negligence because he had furnished liquor to Jette before the ride, so that it affected Jette's operation of the automobile, but Judge Simpson finds that this is not supported by the evidence.

In his memorandum of decision Judge Simpson says:

It is found that the defendant was negligent in the manner in which he operated his automobile, thereby causing the death of the plaintiff administrator's intestate. It is also found that said intestate was in no way negligent materially or essentially contributing to the injuries from which he died. The claim that the deceased by giving the defendant intoxicating liquor had caused the defendant to become intoxicated or under the influence of intoxicating liquors to such an extent as to affect his operation of his automobile is found not to be substantiated by the evidence.

The issues are therefore found in favor of the plaintiffs and judgment rendered for them to recover of defendant the sum of $7,500.

It is also found that said intestate Antonio Polcaro, at the time he received the injuries resulting in his death, was in the employ of the plaintiffs, McGann Bros. of New Haven, and that on Jan. 22, 1925 the compensation commissioner for the second congressional district upon the application of Mrs. Anna Polcaro, widow of said intestate, found that "the fatal injury in question arose out of and in the course of decedent's employment and that it was not contributed to by any intoxication or serious and wilful misconduct on his part," and therefore made the following finding and award:

"Thereupon, it is hereby awarded, adjudged, and decreed that the respondents assume payment of $100 towards the funeral expenses, as well as the payment of any reasonable medical bills incurred because of the injury in question, and that the respondents shall forthwith pay to the claimant through her attorney compensation at the rate of $18 per week from Oct. 30, 1924 to date of this award in a single lump sum, as considerable compensation has accrued since the date of the injury, future payments to be made on a weekly basis at the same rate per week, from the date of this award during the remainder of the 312 week period, and to be paid to the claimant directly at whatever address she may from time to time furnish, this award being subject to modification in case of the re-marriage or death of the claimant."

It is further found that no appeal has been taken from said finding and award and that the same has not otherwise been vacated or set aside, but has become final under the terms of the workmen's compensation act of this state, and that to the date of June 24, 1926, the co-plaintiffs, McGann Brothers, has paid on account of said finding and award and funeral expenses the sum of $1,612.

Judgment is therefore rendered for the plaintiffs, McGann Brothers, to recover the sum of $1,612 and $100 allowance for attorney fees, which amount is found to be a reasonable allowance therefor, and their costs taxed at $——, and that the plaintiff, Thomas E. Donahue, administrator, recover of the defendant the face of the judgment, $7,500, less the said $1,612 and the $100 allowance for attorney fees and the costs taxed in favor of McGann Brothers.

MANY OLD TIMERS TAKE PART IN MATHEWSON MEMORIAL BENEFIT

NEW YORK, July 7—(AP)—Famous diamond figures of yesteryear returned to the scene of memorable baseball struggles today to honor the memory of Christy Mathewson.

The occasion, Matty day, drew 70,000 fans to the Polo grounds to see former teammates of the great pitcher play a three-inning contest, followed by a full nine-inning game between the New York Giants and Washington Senators. The receipts, to be contributed to a fund for a Mathewson memorial at Bucknell university, Matty's alma mater, were estimated at $20,000.

The stands rang with cheers for such old favorites as Hooks Wiltse, Rube Marquard, Fred Tenney, Arthur Devlin, Roger Bresnahan, Joe McGinnity and other former comrades of "Big Six," who died at Saranac lake last October. "Matty's team" emerged victorious against a line up which was termed the "opposition" by a score of 4 to 3.

A vein of humor spiced the event. Rube Marquard astounded player and fan alike with a steal of second; Roger Bresnahan snared balls behind the platter with his bare hand, and Johnny Evers, umpired the game from a second base position. Bob Emslie, a arbiter for a score of years, ruled behind the plate.

Commissioner K. M. Landis, dashing from Chicago to arrive just in time for the game, joined a group of notables including Mayor Walker, Colonel Jacob Ruppert, President John Heydler of the National league, President Clark Griffith of the Senators, President William Baker of the Phillies, President Emil Fuchs of the Braves and Vice President Steve McKeever of the Robins.

The Giants defeated Washington, 8 to 6, but only after Walter Johnson had left the mound. The "Big Train" worked two innings and fanned four men, then sprinted for the clubhouse. A home run by Goose Goslin with two on gave Washington a lead in the seventh but in the Giants' half of the inning Meusel and Lindstrom poled successive homers for enough runs to win.

Score:

New York (N)	0	0	2	1	0	0	3	0	2—8	13	1

KUCK BREAKS TWO WORLD'S SHOT-PUT RECORDS

NEW YORK, July 7—(AP)—Two world's shot-put records, established almost two decades ago by the late Ralph Rose, fell tonight at a benefit for the Cathedral of St. John the Divine in Yankee stadium. Both new marks were established by John Kuck of the Kansas State Teachers' college.

After shattering Rose's record of 57 feet 8 inches for hurling the 12-pound ball by six and 3-4 inches Kuck picked up the eight-pound pellet and tossed it 68 feet, 7 5-8 inches, more than a foot beyond the old mark of Rose 67 feet 7 inches.

Completing his triumph in the weight tests, Kuck won the 16-pound throw with a heave of 48 feet 8 1-8 inches, leading Herb Schwarze of Wisconsin newly-crowned champion, and Bud Houser of the Hollywood A. C. in the three tests.

Kuck won his fourth event of the meet when he hurled the javelin 204 feet, 9 1-2 inches. Kuck's heave was more than two inches further than the more than two feet further than the best cast of Charley Harlow of the Hollywood A. C., 202 feet 4 1-4 inches. Johnny Myrra of the Olympic A. C. was third with 195 feet 1-2 inch.

Beaten in his championship debut at Philadelphia on Monday by Phil Osif, the Haskell Indian, Ove Anderson of Finland came back tonight to race 100-yards ahead of his nearest rival, Robert Curry of Loughlin Lyceum, in the 3,000-metre grind. The time was 9:14 3-5. There were only three starters, J. H. Stewart of the Newark A. C., placing third.

Sten Pettersson of Sweden, scored his first American track triumph with a victory in the 110-metre high hurdles. He led Charles Werner of Illinois A. C., and Carl Christiernsen of the Newark A. C. across the line in that order, finishing in time of 15 2-5 seconds.

In an opening 100-metre sprint special Dehart Hubbard, representing the local Century A. C., nosed out four rivals to win by two yards over Chet Bowman, former Syracuse star. Hugh Pinney of the Los Angeles A. C., in third place, finished ahead of Louis Clark, Newark A. C., and Adrian Buckner of the Century A. C. The time was low at 11 1-5 seconds.

The mid-west scored in a400-metre event when Kenneth Kennedy of the Illinois A. C. breasted the tape first in a blanket finish, with H. A. Hagen of the Chicago A. A., second, and George Stephenson of the Illinois A. C., third. The winner's time was 50 4-5 seconds.

Pettersson triumphed again in the 400-metre hurdles, defeating two rivals in 58 2-5 seconds. E. Spencer of the Olympic A. C., was second and W. Reich of the Newark A. C., third.

The colours of France also floated to triumph with a leap of 6 feet 1 inch by Pierre Lewden, Paris athlete, in the running high jump. Lewden soared over the bar inches higher than Charles Major of New York, while Charley rews of the Century A. C., was third.

EAST ENDS SWAMP BON TONS IN LOOSE GAME

The East Ends swamped the Bon Tons in Wednesday's twilight game by the score of 23 to 3.

At the start, it looked as if the game would be close, the Bon Tons getting off to a three run lead in the first two innings, while the East Ends were unable to score. From the third on, however, the game turned into a slaughter with the East Ends doing all the hitting. Something as to how the game went along may be seen from the fact that 10 East Enders batted in the third inning for 5 runs, sixteen batted in the fourth for 13 more runs, while nine stepped to the plate in the fifth for 5 more counters.

Harry Mills pitched for the winners and allowed but four hits and fanned six. Harry was also the hitting star, gathering five hits, one a double out of five trips to the plate. Dinty Moore made the first home run in this years league, when he hit to centerfield in the fifth.

Tonight's game will start at 6:30 p. m. sharp.

PRES. FUCHS WILL MAKE PUBLIC STATEMENT TODAY

BOSTON, July 7—(AP)—Secrecy tonight still surrounded the investigation of the Boston Braves finances, revealed last night. The only concrete fact was Manager Dave Bancroft's announced suspicion that the turnstile count at Braves field had been manipulated for some one's financial benefit.

Judge Emil Fuchs, president of the National League baseball club, was due to return from New York tomorrow, and no announcements previous to his arrival were expected.

Edwin L. Riley, secretary of the club, said tonight that he would hold a conference with Judge Fuchs tomorrow, and referred all inquiries to the latter. He would only admit the truth or published reports that Judge Fuchs, Bancroft and he had spent all yesterday in a conference with police officials.

Judge Fuchs has admitted that the investigation has been in progress for several days, and that a private detective agency has been at work for some time on the case.

Judge Emil Fuchs of the Boston Braves said at New York today that he will make public in Boston tomorrow a formal statement as to investigation into his club's affairs. He refused to discuss the situation today.

RED CHAPMAN CLAIMS TITLE VACATED BY KAPLAN

BOSTON, July 7—(AP)—Charlie Cardio, manager for Red Chapman, will claim the world's featherweight title for the Chelsea fighter, he announced today.

Kid Kaplan, who abdicated the throne yesterday because of inability to make the class limit of 126 pounds, was to have fought Chapman at the Queensboro stadium, on July 27 with his crown at stake. The contracts were signed and forfeit checks of $3,500 a piece provided.

"The title rightfully belongs to Red Chapman, he being the challenger," says his manager. "As Kaplan forfeits the title bout with him, I am pretty sure the New York boxing commission will uphold me in this case. I am going to let Chapman claim the title, and fight any boxer the commission picks for him." Cardio will notify the commission of his claim at their meeting this Friday.

SLATTERY RETURNS TO RING AGAIN TONIGHT

NEW YORK, July 7—(AP)—Thwarted in his quest of light-heavyweight honors, Slattery of Buffalo returns to the Madison Square Garden ring tomorrow night in an attempt to scale pugilistic heights by way of the middleweight division.

His opponent in a 10 round bout, Bob Sage of Detroit, will find the eastern sensation of a year and a half ago refreshed by a European trip and reduced by dieting. Friends of the Buffalo boy, stunned by his knockouts at the hands of Dave Shade and Paul Berlenbach, forecast a shifter, speedier Slattery at the lower weight.

Sage, an unknown quantity of the east, has as his chief claim to distinction a good performance against Jack Delaney and a two round knockout over Tommy Burns.

TWO TROTTING RECORDS MADE AT SAGE PARK

HARTFORD, July 7—(AP)—Two trotting records are claimed as the result of the performances of Tippie Volo and Plain Mary at Sage park, Windsor, this afternoon, the second day of racing at the Sage park meeting of the Bay State circuit.

TOMMY ARMOUR SETS RECORD ON EVE OF NATIONAL OPEN GOLF TOURNAMENT

COLUMBUS, Ohio, July 7.—(AP)—Stage rehearsal for the national open golf championship today over the 6,736 yard links of the Scioto Country club brought the prediction from a number of stars that the man who wins the title in the 72-hole struggle ending Saturday might not have to break 300 strokes.

While this view was taken on the eve of the championship play by many after trying out the difficult course, the day brought forth proof that the undulations of the treacherous fairways may be conquered, for Tommy Armour of Washington scored 35-33—68, equalling the course record held by George Sargent, club professional. In fact if the figures could be made official, they would constitute a new mark, for the links have been lengthened somewhat.

That nothing like an average of 68 is probable in the four rounds of title play was shown by the fact that such sterling performers as Bobby Jones, British open and American amateur titleholder, took well over 80 for the first round today and any number of other golfers of excellent standing had trouble to keep around 80. Jones did much better in the second circuit, however, approximating 74, with several putts unholed.

Harry Hampton of Memphis, John Golden, of New York, and Al Espinosa, of Chicago, scored 71 each, or one under par.

Armour had five birdies, but was one over par on the 180-yard fourth. All the other 12 holes were scored in perfect

AUTO LAW VIOLATION CASES COME UP IN NEW LONDON COURT

(Special to the Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, July 7—Archa W. Colt of Norwich was fined $5 in the police court this morning for parking his automobile in Main street, on the 3rd inst. for a period of more than 30 minutes and for leaving the car more than 12 inches away from and not parallel to the curbing. Mr. Colt declared that he was not guilty, while Officer Clyde Murphy represented on the witness stand that the car was 18 inches from the curbing and was trailing out into the street, so that trolley cars were hindered. The officer represented that another car was behind that of Mr. Colt and that the car referred to was scraped by a trolley car, else the Colt machine would have been crushed. Officer Murphy mentioned that the Colt car was a Chevrolet so that led Mr. Colt to declare that he did not own a Chevrolet, but an Overland. That led Officer Murphy to produce the registration of the Colt car and the figures were the exact numbers of the Colt machine.

Anthony Rinaldo was fined $5 for leaving his truck parked all night in Truman street in a restricted area. A neighbor complained to the police and Rinaldo was arrested. He did not attempt to deny the facts, but said there was a car parked close by.

Arthur Brown of Gales Ferry appeared, charged with intoxication. He admitted that he was rightfully accused, but said he had not been arrested during a long period. He said he came to New London once in a while and when he came yesterday he "took one drink too many." He asked to be allowed to go back to work and his request was granted.

A couple of traffic ordinance violations were before the court, but judgment was suspended in each case.

WOMAN TRIED TO VAMP HIM, COAST GUARD SAILOR CLAIMS

(Special to the Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, July 7—Lazardo Bognes, a sailor on one of Uncle Sam's coast guard vessels, was in the police court this morning, charged with making an assault upon Beatrice Pombonne, residing at 63 Golden street. Lazardo claimed in court that the case was a "frame-up" and as best he could explained what happened. The woman is the wife of a sailor also. Her husband is away at sea. She represented that Lazardo appeared at her home last evening and demanded that suits of clothes he had in the rooms should be handed over to him. Mrs. Pambrenne was scantily attired she said when she answered the door, but she responded to the knock and opened the door just ajar. Then, she said Lazardo grabbed her and threw her down. She kicked, scratched and bit him and finally got away. Then the police were called. Lazardo told a very different story, which was to the effect that he went after his clothing and that the woman answered his ring at the door clad only in underclothing. She threw her arms around Lazardo's neck and pulled him into the room. Lazardo declared that he pushed her away and she fell. He said he was very fond of her and that she sought to have him break a betrothal that existed between himself and a young girl in the Canal Zone. The testimony was so conflicting that Lazardo was fined $20. He reflected after the court session that he was being made a "goat" of and says he has the letter the Pambrenne woman wrote to his fiancee, asking her to break the betrothal.

The funeral of John N. Carroll, former deputy sheriff, was held this afternoon at 3 o'clock at 48 Shapley street and was attended by many mourners. The services were conducted by Rev. Charles E. Spaulding, pastor of the Methodist Episcopal church. Relatives acted as bearers. Burial was in Jordan cemetery.

Charles B. Whittlesey has sold a building lot on Vauxhall street to Catherine K. Birmingham.

Archibald S. MacFarlane has sold a house and lot on Cape Ann court to Lorenzo H. Tyler.

Ellen O'Connell, sometimes known as Nellie O'Connell, has sold a house and lot, corner of Broad and Morgan streets, to John J., and Nora O'Connell, Spring Garden, New York.

An automobile owned by Ralph Little, sailor attached to the United States coast guard destroyer Mojave, state pier, and which was stolen at the pier Monday night was found abandoned at 1 o'clock this morning on Hobron street, by Patrolman Edward Riordan. The auto was taken to the police station and this afternoon it was claimed by its owner.

At the meeting of Groton grange Friday night an unusually large attendance of visitors is anticipated, members from all parts of the state already having signified their intention of being present. The grange is to receive a visit from Charles M. Gardner, high priest of Demeter and it will be the first attendance of Mr. Gardner at a grange meeting in the eastern part of the state. A committee consisting of Miss Myra Perkins, Mrs. O. K. Phinney and Charles M. Adams is arranging for the entertainment of the high priest and the visitors.

An automobile operated by Sadie E. Parker, 55 Evergreen avenue and a car operated by John Masterton, Waterford, collided this evening at the corner of Bank and Truman street. The former's automobile was damaged, but the automobile of Masterton escaped with but trivial injury.

Complaint of a vigorous nature was made to the police this evening because of the nauseating stench arising from a group of wet garbage piles at Ocean Beach. The principal alleged offender against the health laws was Max Fern, proprietor of a restaurant at Stuart avenue, where it is claimed that the stench was greatest. An effort was made to find Health Officer Benjamin N. Pennell that he might conduct an investigation but the health officer could not be located.

The New London line steamer Richard Peck brought an exceptionally small passenger list from New York to this port this morning. The major portion of the passengers were en route to Chesterfield.

WARD IS BROUGHT BACK AFTER ARREST IN DARIEN

(Special to the Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, July 7—Sergeant John J. Cavanaugh returned to New London this evening with Harold Leroy Ward, United States Coast Guard, state pier, charged with theft of an automobile. Thep risoner will be presented in the police court tomorrow morning. In default of bail of $500 Ward was made a prisoner at the New London police station tonight. He is in a much weakened condition because of the attempt he made to commit suicide at Darien, following his arrest for the theft of the automobile. Ward stole a touring car owned by William Barnes, of Waterford from Meridian street where it had been parked. Accompanied by two chance acquaintances, one of whom he met in New Haven and the other in Bridgeport, he was arrested in Darien and had the automobile in his possession at the time. When placed in a cell at the Darien police station, Ward requested a cup of water and when it was given him he slipped a bichloride of mercury tablet dissolved into it and drank the contents. The poison made him deathly sick and he was removed to Darien hospital, where he remained until Monday when he was discharged. Following his discharge he was re-arrested for the New London police. Sergeant Cavanaugh was sent to Darien this afternoon to take charge of the prisoner.

PETITION CIRCULATORS MEET AND ORGANIZE

(Special to the Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, June 7—This evening at 8 o'clock in the hall of Loyal Order of Moose, Main street, the circulators of the petition which calls for a referendum vote that the present form of government be re-adopted, held a meeting attended by about a score of voters, principally those instrumental in the circulation of the petition. The meeting was called to order by former Selectman Lawrence Cook, who nominated Matthew Keenan as chairman, the nomination being unanimously seconded and Mr. Keenan was made permanent chairman. Mr. Cook was made secretary and Thomas Grogan, a former aldermsn and former member of the police and fire committees of the court of common council, was made treasurer. A committee of five was nominated for the purpose of complying with the city charter that such a committee should present the petition to the city council through the city clerk. Cornelius Donohue nominated Matthew Keenan, Lawrence S. M. Cook, Thomas Grogan, Peter Loiscano and Joseph Connelly as such committee and they were elected without a dissenting vote. Following this election the meeting adjourned. It is understood that the petition will be presented to City Clerk Julian D. Moran tomorrow or Friday that he may determine the eligibility of the signers and the petition will be presented to the city council at its meeting Monday night next. It is also understood that the council immediately upon its reception of the petition, will fix a date early in September for the special election.

The regular election for members of the city council under the present form of government is fixed to be held during the second and third weeks of September, so that the special election because of necessity, must be held prior to that time. If the issue is voted down, the citizens will vote for the election of three members of the city council and the city manager form of government will continue to prevail. Otherwise the republican and democratic town committees will hold caucuses and will make nominations for the filing of the various city officers, the same was the case prior to the adoption of the present form of government. Should the municipal form of government be selected by the voters as the proper government for the conduct of the city's business, but a week or two at the most would exist for nominations to be made and up to the present time there have been no names mentioned as prospective candidates for office. Principal among these offices would be that of mayor.

HOTEL ATTACHED FOR $64,000 JEWELRY SUIT

Property of the Hotel Bond Co., in Hartford was attached this week following the filing of two suits totaling claims for $64,000, instituted by two jewelry concerns seeking to recover the amount lost when jewelry valued at approximately $70,000 was stolen from the hotel, November 25, 1925. Attachments were filed Tuesday with the town clerk and the complaint detailed the story of the robbery alleged to have been perpetrated by a porter of the hotel, Jerome Alfred Murray, 30 years old, now at large.

Cross and Berguelin, Inc., of No. 15 Maiden lane, New York city, claiming $4,000, and the Brassler Co. of New Jersey, claiming $60,000 are the plaintiffs.

On the night of Tuesday, Nov. 24, 1925, three New York jewelry salesmen left their sample cases with the clerk at the Hotel Bond. According to the clerk's report, the cases were locked in a compartment in the rear of the desk for safe-keeping. This had been the customary procedure of the jewelry salesmen and the hotel, it was said.

The porter, Murray, had access to the desk in the course of his duties. He had been employed by the hotel for only five days prior to the robbery and was supposed to have references from the Hotel Kimball, Springfield. Later it was said to have been proved that these references were forgeries.

When the jewelry salesmen called for their cases the following morning, the jewelry was missing. A large assortment of watches, watch chains, bracelets and various gift goods which were being placed with Hartford jewelers for the Christmas season were included in the loss.

Murray was seen boarding a train bound for Boston the same morning the theft occurred. Since that time he has not been located. T. H. Tomes, secretary of the Cross and Berguelin Co., said at the time of the robbery that the goods in the care of his company's salesmen were covered by insurance.

WEDNESDAY'S STOCK MARKET

NEW YORK, July 7—(AP)—Speculation for the advance continued in most of today's stock market, but prices were forced to absorb considerable selling by a number of standard industrials and specialties whose quotations were irregular but the rail and industrial averages moved higher on the day. Total sales were smaller as compared with Tuesday's, with pool activity rather than expanding public interest accounting for the larger volume of business.

Outside the stock market, chief financial interest centered in the establishment of new low records for all time by French and Belgian francs and the continued over-subscription of the $40,000,000 Flat company bond issue. Chesapeake and Ohio 4½s and first preferred and Pere Marquette common advanced 4 points to or above the preferred and prior preferred issues jumped over six points to 90 and 90, respectively, all new 1926 highs. Chesapeake and Ohio common and first preferred and Pere Marquette common advanced 4 points to or above the preferred and prior preferred issues jumped over six points to 90 and 90, respectively, all new 1926 highs. Chesapeake and Ohio common advanced 4 points to nearly 3 points higher. Southern Railway touched a new high record for all time at 120. Other rails moved within rather narrow and irregular limits. Net railway operating income of class one railroads for May totalled $66,120,501, as compared with $76,170,623 in the same month last year.

Industrial common dropped back a point to 101 7-8 on heavy realizing. General Motors advanced over a small fraction of the record high of 151 1-2, established yesterday, and then eased to 150 for a fractional gain on the day.

Steel Iron Pipe was again the outstanding feature, soaring over 12 points to a new high for the year at 223. Net gains of two points or more also were recorded by Allied Chemical, American Express, Bethlehem Steel, By-Products Coke, Case Threshing, National Lead, New York Canners, United Fruit and Weston Electrical Instrument, several of which exceeded their previous 1926 peaks.

Selling pressure was effective, however, against Atlantic, Gulf and West Indies, International Combustion, Munsingwear and Pullman.

Commodity prices were irregular. Grain and cotton futures advanced sharply on reports of unfavorable weather. Raw Sugar was unchanged and coffee futures declined 3 to 13 points.

Sterling money renewed at 4 1-2 per cent. Call money remained at that rate all day. Sterling exchange and commercial paper were unchanged.

Trading in shares of Spanish companies, which were admitted to the list yesterday, was featured by the weakness of French and Belgian francs which sold down to 3.93 and 3.53 1-2 cents, respectively, the irregular features of the foreign exchange market. Demand sterling held firm at just below $4.86. Scandinavian currencies also displayed a firmer undertone.

CHICAGO GRAIN MARKET

CHICAGO, July 7—(AP)—Fresh upturns in the value of wheat today went han din hand with reports of increasing crop damage northwest. Besides the effect of persistent drought and excessive heat, black rust developments attracted special attention. Closing quotations on wheat were unsettled, 1-2c to 1 1-8c net higher, with corn 5-8c to 1 7-8c up, oats at 3-4c to 1c advance and provisions varying from 10c decline to a rise of 5c.

As much as 2c a bushel new gain in the price fo wheat was shown today at times. Selling to realize profits took place on the bulges, but enlarged buying followed whenever the market sagged. This buying was in the face or predictions of rain northwest within the next 24 hours among the reports on which the buying was based was one saying that wheat had been badly burned for a distance of 90 miles north of the Canadian Pacific main line between Caron and Swift Current. Another despatch told of wheat in northeastern South Dakota that gave promise of a fair crop ten days ago and that now is too poor to harvest.

Corn displayed independent strength owing to adverse official crop reports from Kansas and Missouri due to lack of rain. Oats in the northwest were said to be heading short.

Provisions derived firmness from the upward trend of cotton, oil and of grain.

BOND MARKET

NEW YORK, July 7—(AP)—Bond prices held firm in today's colorless trading, which was forced to compete with new financing in attracting investment interest. High grade rail liens, following the upward trend of the carrier stocks, made the best showing, with a good demand also developing for several foreign industrial obligations.

Two interesting bond issues—the $10,000,000 Flat loan and a $12,000,000 block of Florida Power & Light 5s—were well received. Exceptional interest was shown in the Italian Motor company offering because of the speculative possibilities in the stock purchase warrrants attached to the debentures, and the issue was quickly oversubscribed.

Dealings in German bonds were the chief feature of the foreign list. The General Electric 7s crossed 102 to a new peak price and Rhine Westphalia 7s advanced nearly a point. French and Belgian obligations held relatively steady despite the collapse of these exchanges to record low levels.

Most of the gains in the railroad group were limited to fractions, although Lehigh Valley 4 1-2s and Louisville & Nashville 5 1-2s jumped more than a point. Atchison, Baltimore and Ohio, Southern Railway, Wabash and Southern Pacific issues for the most part worked moderately higher.

The demand for representative industrial issues included Bethlehem Steel 6s, Brier Hill Steel 5 1-2s and Botany Hills 6 1-2s. California Petroleum 6 1-2s and U. S. Rubber 5s, some of which sold at the year's best prices. American Writing Paper 6s and certificates rallied about four points each to 1926 tops.

Interborough Rapid Transit issues were further depressed by the subway strike developments but other local tractions held their ground.

EXPECT TO HAVE DISABLED PUMPER IN COMMISSION AGAIN BY SUNDAY

A representative of the Seagraves company, manufacturers of Engine No. 1, was in Norwich Tuesday looking over the pumper damaged in responding to the fire at Armour's building on Commerce street Monday afternoon, with driver Julian Gale at the wheel. As a result of the examination a new axle has been sent for and will probably arrive from Columbus, Ohio, during the latter part of the week. When the axle arrives with additional parts needed the pumper will immediately be put into condition and it is expected that by Sunday it will be ready to respond to alarms.

While waiting for the new rear axle the engine has been jacked up and the front wheels removed and sent to a local establishment for necessary repairs, thus putting all four wheels into first class condition while the pumper is temporarily out of service.

NORWICH HAS TWO POSSIBLE AVIATION FIELDS

Aviation and the need of a landing field for airplanes was the subject of an interesting talk given by James L. Case, president of the Norwich chamber of commerce, at the weekly meeting of the Norwich Rotary club held Wednesday noon at the Wauregan hotel.

In his talk Mr. Case said that with the establishment of the New York to Boston air mail service Norwich, although not in the direct path of the flyers should have a landing field, where the mail planes and other commercial airships could land.

Quoting from Secretary Hoover's speech recently delivered in Washington in which Mr. Hoover reviewed the nation's progress during the past quarter century, Mr. Case said that in this period there had been some of the most wonderful of inventions and developments among which was the development of the airplane both as an instrument of warfare and as a commercial project. Aviation is really in its infancy and as the years go by it is becoming one of the necessities of modern civilization.

In seeking a landing field, Mr. Case said that the chamber of commerce had appointed a committee to make a survey of the surrounding country in an effort to locate such a field. This committee has found two such fields and an effort should be made to develop one or the other. In closing Mr. Case said that three things were necessary for the development of Norwich and that these three things were these: First, natural resources, of which Norwich has many; second, vision, the vision to see into the future; and third, initiative, of which Norwich people have plenty. These three things will put Norwich on the map.

The two fields referred to by Mr. Case as having been selected by the chamber of commerce committee, Wilson Austin, chairman, are located at Preston Plains and on the Cobb farm on the road leading from Norwich Town to Taftville.

At the business session of the meeting President E. A. Harris presided and Grosvenor Ely was the song leader. Secretary Jewett read the attendance report, showing that only 20 of the members had a perfect attendance record for the past quarter. The matter of badges was again revived and the action of the board or directors in securing new badges was ratified.

The musical part of the meeting was greatly enlivened by a duet number by Dr. C. A. Spear and C. A. Gates. Henry J. LaFontaine rendered three delightful solos. The Water Boy, a negro convict song, Cargoes, and The Fields of Ballee Claire.

The meeting closed with the singing of the Star Spangled Banner.

BOY WAS PINNED UNDER MOTOR TRUCK

Quick work on the part of Michael O'Neil, driver of the Dodge truck owned by the water department, saved Sabino Plancenza, 11 or 121 Franklin street from serious injury and possibly instant death. Wednesday morning about 8 o'clock, when the boy, riding in an express wagon, ran down the grade beside the United Congregational church and into Chestnut street, tipping over directly in front of the approaching truck.

Mr. O'Neil was accompanied by Frank Barrington when the boy shot out in front of the truck. He applied the brakes immediately, bringing the truck to a stop within a few feet, but not before the front axle had struck the boy and double his left leg up in such a manner as to make it impossible to remove him from beneath the machine. Employes of the Norwich Record and other men employed in the building went to the assistance of the men in the truck and lifted the front end of the machine so the boy could be dragged clear.

Young Plancenza was taken into the newspaper counting room and the ambulance summoned from the Backus hospital. An X-ray was taken to ascertain the full extent of injury to the boy but as far as could be seen he had escaped with only slight cuts and bruises and he was allowed to return home later in the morning.

But for the fact that the truck was proceeding at a slow rate of speed and that Mr. O'Neil acted quickly in stopping the machine the boy would have gone under the right forward wheel and met serious injury if not instant death.

NEED TWO LICENSES TO FISH AT BEACH POND

Unless a sportsman can keep either within the waters of Connecticut or Rhode Island, he will need two licenses to fish in Beach pond at Voluntown, since the pond is partly in each of these two states.

It had been reported that Connecticut and Rhode Island authorities had entered into a reciprocal arrangement by which either state's fishing license would cover in the waters of the other. In order to ascertain the accuracy of this report, President Arthur E. Story of the Norwich Fish & Game association consulted with Connecticut authorities Wednesday and learned that no such arrangements between the states existed. This means that anyone expecting to fish the whole pond will need to have both a Connecticut and a Rhode Island license to be within the law.

STOCKING STATE STREAMS WITH FISH TO CATCH

Supt. John W. Titcomb of the State Fish and Game commission, reports that during the season he has planted 4,514,000 shad fry, which is nearly a million more than last year. During the period before the planting he collected approximately six million eggs.

He has collected about 44,000,000 yellow perch eggs and distributed them in the Connecticut and other rivers of the state.

Along the shore, principally in New London and Fairfield counties, about 20,500,000 of hatched smelt have been planted.

The department is now at work stocking streams about the state with trout that are between seven and nine inches long. These will be fit to be caught next season.

PLAYGROUND SEASON IN FULL SWING IN CITY

The swings, see-saws, chutes, etc., which arrived at the new Jail Hill playground the latter part of last week have been set up and were in use on Wednesday. With this apparatus in place the registration at this ground should show a tendency towards going upwards and the Jail Hill center should rank well up with the leaders.

Sand boxes have been placed at the various centers and they will be filled as soon as possible.

The boxing matches which were a feature of the Greeneville playgrounds last season have again been started this year, the first one having been held on Tuesday evening with about 150 spectators present.

The opening of the American baseball league schedule set for Tuesday morning at the Academy campus with the game between the Thamesville and East Side grounds teams was postponed because of inclement weather and will be played at a later date.

The morning sessions of the playgrounds of the city were not held on Tuesday because of rain. However, all grounds were open on Tuesday afternoon.

The baseball team of the Greeneville grounds will meet today to elect a captain for the coming season. Greeneville will open her league season on Friday afternoon with Lake street, at the Academy campus.

A meeting of the instructors was held in Supt. Earle E. Brigham's office in the city hall on Wednesday morning. Plans for the work for the season were outlined. All of the instructors were present at the meeting. The weekly meeting which is usually held on Tuesday was carried over to Wednesday this week because of the holidays.

The squads in the different activities carried on in the grounds have put in diligent practice during the past week in preparation for the opening of the league schedules. Indications point to close races in all leagues as the teams seem pretty evenly matched this season.

Parents and guardians are again urged to see to it that children attend the playgrounds sessions daily. Competent instructors are placed at all grounds and the children will benefit greatly by attending the playgrounds that the city has provided for them.

Laurel Hill and the Falls grounds teams will play the opening game of the American baseball league at the Academy campus this (Thursday) morning at 9.30 a. m. A fast contest is expected.

DRAGGING AT POQUYOGH FOR DROWNED MAN'S BODY

Several privately owned power boats are engaged in dragging the waters in the vicinity of Poquyogh, Waterford, in an effort to locate the body of Gilbert W. Stansfield, 29, of Monson, Mass., who died presumably of a heart attack while swimming with his sister-in-law, Miss Mabel Perkins of Springfield last Saturday evening. The search began less than an hour after the drowning and has continued in intermittent periods with wind and the tide favoring. Stansfield was a member of a holiday vacation party which arrived at the shore resort only two hours before the fatality. The party included visitors from Monson, Springfield and Groton, all of whom have returned to their homes.

At the time of Stansfield's death the tide was ebbing rapidly and it is believed that the body has been swept out a considerable distance from shore.

NORWICH RUNAWAY GIRLS SOUGHT IN NEW LONDON

(Special to the Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, July 7.—The Norwich police this evening requested the New London police to be on the lookout for two Norwich girls, who had run away from home. One of the girls was stated to be Alma Cornier, 14, about five feet, two inches in height, stout, has brown bobbed hair is of light complexion and was wearing a green dress. The other girl was stated to be Polish and to have worn a green dress and blue hat. Both girls are said to have entered an automobile in which were two sailors in civilian clothes and to have left from Norwich about 8.30. The local police maintained a watch of all automobiles entering the city from the New London turnpike, but failed to hold up the car in which the runaway girls were said to be passengers.

Nine applications were received and acted on. The degree team of Bell City aerie of Bristol, Conn., is to do the degree work on Saturday, July 17.

The entertainment committee announced that a public pinochle and whist is to be held this month. The aerie also voted to hold a Past Worthy Presidents' night on August 16. PUTNAM BANK HELD FOR GILPATRIC'S ACTS

The First National bank of Putnam is held by Judge Isaac Wolfe of the superior court to be responsible for the conduct of its principal managing officer, G. Harold Gilpatric, in using the machinery of the bank to defraud the estate of Joseph W. Cutler.

The decision, filed with the clerk of the superior court, at Hartford, Wednesday, denies the demurrer of the defendant to the substituted complaint, in the case of the Hartford-Connecticut Trust company, trustee of the Cutler estate, against George M. Coffin, receiver of the Putnam bank, and others.

The court holds that the plaintiff's loss, suffered through the misconduct of Gilpatric as cashier of the defendant bank, should in equity be borne by the bank and not by the estate. He holds that on the admitted facts the plaintiff is entitled to judgment as the bank is charged with knowledge of the conduct of its principal officer.

"In all of the acts making up the history of the transactions in question," says Judge Wolfe, "except that relating to the purchase for the state of the $300,000 of Liberty bonds, Gilpatric, the bank's cashier, used the machinery of the bank to accomplish his fraudulent purposes, and, acting therein as its cashier. By his misappropriation of the funds of this estate, he conferred a benefit upon the bank, swelling its resources to that extent.

"We have then this situation before us: Gilpatric by his acts not only defrauded the bank, but also the plaintiff estate. The bank now seeks to disclaim the acts of its cashier, but desires to retain the benefit it received from those very acts. The plaintiff estate was in no position to stop Gilpatric's fraud against it. The defendant bank, on the contrary was in a much better position to know that its managing officer was dishonest and was using the machinery of the bank and of the power entrusted to him, to defraud not only itself but its customers. The bank, under the circumstances, is chargeable with knowledge of the acts of its cashier."

The plaintiff trustee claims damages of $45,000 in the action against the receiver, to cover the loss of $34,765.06 sustained by the estate by reason of the manipulations of Gilpatric.

A SECOND COOKING CLASS IN ST. JOSEPH'S PARISH

At St. Joseph's Community club rooms, 34 women and girls have organized for a second Tuesday evening course of six lessons in cooking, to be given by Miss Gladys L. Peckham, home service expert for the Norwich Gas & Electric department. The members range in age from 16 up.

The first lesson Tuesday evening, from 7 to 8, was on bread. Forty-one attended the demonstration. Next week's lesson will deal with cooking an oven meal.

The cooking classes are inspired and fostered by the pastor of St. Joseph's parish, Rev. S. A. Icick. The kitchen is finely equipped for the work and the pupils are intensely interested in the practical instruction.

At her weekly free demonstration in cooking, Wednesday afternoon, at the G. & E. department lecture room, Shetucket street, Miss Peckham instructed 41 interested housewives in making strawberry shortcake, individual shortcakes, strawberry cream puffs and strawberry punch—all fine, useful recipes, and printed on handy cards for those who desire them. Mrs. Clarence D. Sevin assisted in the demonstration.

Next Wednesday afternoon, Miss Peckham is to instruct the class in making peach and cantaloupe conserve, also strawberry preserves.

RECEIVES 27 APPLICATIONS FOR TEACHERS' PENSIONS

During the fiscal year ending June 30, 1926, the receipts of the state teachers retirement board amounted to $536,252.13, all of which was deposited with the treasurer. The payments amounted to $237,003.28.

At the present time there are 164 persons on the teachers' retired list and 27 applications before the board for teachers' pensions. Four of them are from Hartford, 10 from New Haven, two from New London, one from Waterbury, Bridgeport and Norwich, and three from Danbury.

Of the balance of appropriation of $269,700, voted by the legislature in 1925, there remained on June 30, 1926, $32,796.98. The highest amount of pension paid during the year was $1,112.72, and the lowest was $350. The greatest number of years in teacher service represented among the pensioners was 36 years and the lowest 19 years.

TWO CANDIDATES MENTIONED FOR TUBERCULOSIS COMMISSION

Two candidates from this county, both attorneys, are reported to have been placed in the field for the vacancy on the state tuberculosis commission which has been made by the recent resignation of Attorney Wallace S. Allis of this city. The appointment carries with it an annual salary of $2,500.

State Senator Lee Roy Robbins of this city is reported to have the support of republican leaders in the northern part of the county while Attorney Max Boser of New London is a candidate urged by leaders in the southern section, it is said.

Labor men in the state have already asked that a representative of labor be appointed to the vacancy.

COLCHESTER D. A. R. HAS INTERESTING CHAPTER HOUSE

Col. Henry Champion chapter, D. A. R., of Colchester, is one of the younger Daughters of the American Revolution chapters in the state, only five years old, but in that time it has grown from 12 to 50 members and has a chapter house that is the envy of many a larger chapter. The chapter home is the old Nathaniel Foote house, built in 1702, and moved about a year ago from the Hartford road to land on the Norwich road near the park. It has been finished in panelling of the early 18th century period and contains many interesting relics and old time furnishings which have been donated.

The chapter is making arrangements to have the house open every Saturday afternoon for visitors during the summer season, with hostesses in old-time costume in attendance. A shawl pageant is also in the summer plans of the chapter.

44 NAMES IN LIST OF SUSPENDED DRIVERS

The weekly list of operators whose licenses to drive automobiles in Connecticut have been suspended for one year for driving while under the influence of liquor was given out Wednesday at the state motor vehicle department as a part of the effort to reduce this highway menace. There are 44 names on the list. Two were Connecticut operators convicted in other states. Four cases were appealed. BLIND MAN'S PICTURE IN CONNECTICUT BUILDING

Local people who visit the Connecticut building at the sesquicentennial in Philadelphia this summer and fall will be interested to note a good picture of Ira S. Rathbun of 64 West Main street, Mystic, in the exhibit of the state board of education of the blind. Mr. Rathbun is blind and deaf but has shown aptitude and ability in reed work. The picture on display shows him at his shoemaker's form cobbling a pair of shoes. The picture is one of several which the state board has put on display to illustrate some of the work which is being done by the blind people of this state. The picture is a good likeness of Mr. Rathbun and will be readily recognized by those who know him.

The Connecticut building is one of the finest state buildings on the sesqui grounds and is one in which Connecticut people can take much pride. Some of the state buildings are temporary structures but the Connecticut building is of permanent construction, made of brick and stone and is dignified and impressive. State Librarian George S. Godard has charge of setting up the exhibits which give one a good idea of the various activities being conducted by the state.

POETRY

The Sesquicentennial

What means this Sesquicentennial,
This year we celebrate—
What does it really signify—
What does it indicate?
It tells us that a hundred years,
And fifty years beside,
Have passed, since freedom was declared,
For which our fathers died:
Of the beginning of the States—
Of our Republic's birth—
The greatest country anywhere,
Today, upon this earth.
It takes us back in history
To those men of renown,
Who met in Independence Hall
In that old Quaker town,
And to the document they signed
Which made our people free,
Who placed their names, with fearless hand,
Where all the world could see;
Such men as Hancock, Jefferson,
John Adams, Franklin, too,
Roger Sherman, Livingston—
Patriots through and through.
And all the other Signers, for
We honor every one.
As well as that great gen'ral, our Beloved Washington.
For without his keen strategy—
His military skill—
The chances are that England would
Be governing us still.
It, too, reminds us of the bell
That rang that July day
And told the world, hencefore that we
No monarch would obey;
The bitter trials afterward—
The sacrifice of life—
In prison camp, on battlefield—
Long, dreary years of strife.
'Tis hard for us to picture in
Our minds this great event—
The suffering—intense at times—
Our soldiers underwent.
Take, for instance, Valley Forge,
Where none will ever know
How many perished from the cold,
The biting winds and snow—
How many who were buried there
Who never lived to see
The thing for which they gave their lives—
The cause of liberty.
Some sleep in graves unmarked, unknown,
Their canopy the sky,
While we, today, are privileged
Their deeds to glorify.
The flag that floats throughout the land—
The red, the white, the blue—
In Revolutionary days
Had its inception, too.
And many, many other things
Are woven in the one—
The century and half this month,
Since freedom was begun.
The Sesquicentennial, then,
Means a period when we Should show that the United States
Is proud of liberty;
Should dedicate our lives to it—
Laud it in ev'ry breath,
And for its preservation be Prepared to suffer death;
Should praise the men who founded it,
And their immortal dust,
And praise the God who guided them—
In whom we put our trust!

I've seen houses gay with paint,
Their grassy skirts decked with flowers that trilled colors at passersby,
But within were sly ghosts of hate and complaint,
Peeping out from under striped awnings
That were like eyelashes thick with mascara.

I've seen houses drab of board,
Their trodden yards lined with garments dull-hued from wear and washing-lye,
But within were gay spirits of love and accord,
Laughing out from between frilled curtains
That were like eyelids crinkled with smiling.

POWER HOUSE MEN MAY JOIN SUBWAY STRIKERS

Strike Leaders Make Prediction That Power Employees Will Walkout at Midnight Tonight—Company Officials Issue Ultimatum That Strikers Failing to Return to their Jobs by Monday Will be Permanently Replaced by New Men—Startling Developments Within Next 48 Hours Promised by Strike Leader—Strike Situation is Approaching a Crisis.

NEW YORK, July 8—(AP)—The subway strike approached a crisis today.

Strike leaders claimed that all Interborough power house employes would join the strike tomorrow. Subway officials issued an ultimatum that strikers failing to return to their jobs by Monday will be permanently replaced by new men.

Edward F. Lavin, one of the strike leaders, announced today that there would be "something of a startling nature in the next 48 hours." Asked if this promised development had to do with a possible settlement he replied "perhaps."

To date the strike has been confined to motormen and switchmen on the Interborough subways, the city's underground arteries.

Subway service was estimated by the company to be 77 per cent of normal today and some of the Brooklyn area in which service was stopped when the strike was called was reopened.

If the power house men should join the strike the effect would be felt on the elevated lines as well as the subways. It was said at strike headquarters that the power men would hold a meeting tomorrow and would join the strike tomorrow midnight.

In a message addressed to the strikers today President Hedley of the Interborough issued his ultimatum. He offered to take back all strikers, "except a few to whom this offer cannot be extended" up to noon Monday. After that time he said, all vacancies would be permanently filled with the new men now operating trains and strikers who wished to return after that would have to take their chances with other new applicants.

WITHOUT AUTHORITY TO REGULATE RADIO

WASHINGTON, July 8—(AP)—Under an opinion rendered by the department of justice today, radio in the United States continues virtually irregulated.

In substance, it held that the commerce department, which sought its advice on the subject after congress failed to pass specific regulatory legislation, was without authority under existing laws to control broadcasting by the issuance of definite wave lengths.

This was similar to the opinion handed down by the federal court at Chicago, in deciding a test case against the Zenith Radio corporation involving alleged "pirating," of an unauthorized wave length. While its full import was not made known, it was announced at the commerce department that its text would be made public tomorrow along with a statement outlining the department's future plans.

Meanwhile, officials of the department refrained from comment pending a study of the document and no indication was given as to what the department's policy might be. It already has licensed and assigned wave lengths to more than 500 broadcasting station and has on file over 600 applications of those who desire to enter the field. Many of its new licenses and renewals of old ones have been only for short periods, officials going on the theory that congress would outline some definite lines which either they or some other administrative body should follow.

Secretary Hoover had predicted chaos in the radio industry in event the first federal court decision was adhered to the government, and what its policy is to be pending passage of some form of legislation by congress now that the government's own law department has held it is without authority, no one would venture an opinion.

KING ASKED CAROL TO RENOUNCE THRONE

BUCHAREST, July 8—(AP)—The real reason that Prince Carol renounced his claim to the throne of Rumania was because of his "repeated moral delinquencies" showing that he was not fit ever to become the ruler of his people, according to his father King Ferdinand.

In a talk with a correspondent for the Associated Press, the king revealed that he, himself, had asked Prince Carol to renounce the throne. Although asked to be excused from discussing in detail the circumstances of the renunciation, King Ferdinand said:

"It is a long and painful story. But I can tell you this, that there were no political motives behind it. It was my own act, provoked by my son's extraordinary conduct. No political leader forced a decision upon me.

"Although my action gave deep anguish and pain to the queen and myself, it had to be done in the interests of my country, the people, the government and the crown. Carol proved on his repeated moral delinquencies that he was entirely unfitted to assume the duties of a sovereign. Therefore I demanded his renunciation. I could with propriety have done nothing else."

ROCKEFELLER PLAYS GOLF ON 87TH BIRTHDAY

TARRYTOWN, N. Y., July 8—(AP)—A game of golf and a ride through the Westchester hills were the high spots today in John D. Rockefellers observance of his 87th birthday.

The day was spent for the most part in quiet at his Pocantico hills estate, in the company of members of his family and friends.

After a light breakfast Mr. Rockefeller, as is his custom, retired to his study and attended to his business affairs. Then he played his daily game of golf, the pastime he expects to carry him to the century point. His opponent was W. O. Inglis, who is writing his biography. The score was not made public.

A light luncheon preceded his ride through the Westchester hills. Upon his return he spent nearly an hour reading some of the many messages of congratulation which poured in from various sections of the world.

In the evening a birthday dinner in the Rockefeller home was attended by old friends and relatives.

SMALL CHILD DIED FROM EATING FIRECRACKER

NEW HAVEN, July 8—(AP)—A fourth of July tragedy was reported tonight in the death of Virginia Dore, 7 year old daughter of Edward T. Dore, of East Haven who died Tuesday as a result of eating a fire cracker containing about a half grain of mercury and after an investigation by Medical Examiner Charles W. Holbrook, who learned that mercury was used in the fire cracker, the case was turned over to Coroner Eli Milz.

SARGENT TAKES FLING AT CONSTITUTION "FLOUTERS"

PITTSFIELD, Mass., July 8—(AP)—Constitution "flouters" were assailed by Attorney General Sargent in an address here today at the dedication of a war memorial with a warning that "there is being sown a wind from which we all shall reap a whirlwind."

Criticizing "men of wealth and influence who take occasion not only to violate the law themselves, but to heap disparagement and insult upon the officials engaged in its administration and enforcement," Mr. Sargent declared that "such conduct has but one tendency—to sap the vitals of our government, of our country."

The speech constituted one of the most vigorous assaults on violators of prohibition and the laws made by the attorney general who has shown considerable concern over this situation in recent addresses. He coupled with it an appeal that the federal government be relieved of further proposals for extension of its authority.

Declaring that disrespect of the law was "more threatening to the nation and its institutions than any European nation ever was," he continued:

"It is quite the fashion of late to more or less openly flout some of the provisions of the constitution and statutes enacted in consonance with and under its authority.

"In some newspapers even, the advice is carried that the best course is to continue to violate the law until its enforcement appears so hopeless that it will be changed.

"Whether an existing law be beneficial to the welfare of the people in the view of the writer in the newspaper or the individual disparaging the official and his work is not at all the question.

"The authority he is defying in the one matter wherein his individual inclination differs with it is the same and only authority that stands between him and the despotism of some one stronger than he."

AMERICANS WONT TAKE PART IN PROTEST PARADE

PARIS, July 8—(AP)—There will be no participation by Americans, in the "protest parade" to be staged by veterans of the French army on Sunday in opposition to ratification of the American debt settlement with France.

The association of American volunteers in the French army, 1914-17, has definitely declined to have any part in the demonstration.

Yesterday, the American volunteers announced their intention of being represented at the Alan Seeger monument in the Place des Etats Unis to receive a wreath from the French veterans' association as it marched past.

The American ambassador, Myron T. Herrick, has taken a strong stand against the action of the French veterans, characterizing the proposed parade as an insult directed against the United States and participation by Americans in such a demonstration as almost tantamount to treason.

In a letter announcing its decision not to participate, the association of volunteers declares: "We see ourselves obliged to retire before the aggressive spirit, even injurious wording, of the posters you have put up by the thousands throughout France. The heading 'Washington calvary of victors,' is an insult to all soldiers who came over to fight for France."

RESERVED DECISION ON NEW BANK APPLICATION

HARTFORD, July 8—(AP)—Decision was reserved by the state banking commission after a hearing today upon the application of the Italian Loan Association Inc., for a charter to do an industrial banking business in Stamford. The application was not opposed. The incorporators proposed to begin operations with a capital of $50,000 and a surplus of $12,500. The bank will be at number 308 Atlantic street, Stamford.

The incorporators are Frank Rich, Louis E. Zesima, Joseph Mastrich, Matteo Pisani, Michael Gandio, Gettulio Marini, Ciriaco Iovanna, Antonio Sansone and Louis Donatelli, all of Stamford. Mr. Rich presented the applicants' case to the commission.

PAYS DEATH PENALTY FOR AUNT'S MURDER

SANTIAGO DE CUBA, July 8—(AP)—The death penalty in Cuba was revived after a lapse of 20 years when early this morning Salvador Aguilera was garroted for the murder of his aunt, Caridad Suarez, in Sagua de Tanamo.

Aguilera became hysterical and was given restoratives; he then walked unassisted from the death cell to the Garrote, accompanied by guards and his spiritual adviser, Father Egido.

As the garrote was placed about his neck, Aguilera said: "He who goes to death at this moment is not a criminal; he is Citizen Salvador Aguilera, innocent of the crime for which he has been condemned."

CABLED PARAGAPHS

LONDON, July 8—(AP)—Ambassador Alanson B. Houghton tonight presented Vice Admiral and Mrs. Roger Wells in the diplomatic circle of the fourth of this years royal courts.

PARIS, July 8—(AP)—The franc went down to the value of just about 2 1-2 cents this afternoon while the chamber of deputies was discussing the respective merits of the experts' financial plan and the socialists' proposal for a capital levy. The franc went as low as 39.80 to the dollar after the close of the bourse.

SUBWAY TRAIN WRECKED THIS A. M.

NEW YORK, July 8—(AP)—A southbound subway train left the rails between Bowling Green and South Ferry stations on the Interborough Rapid Transit line early today. Nearly 100 yards of the third rail was ripped up. Heavy smoke issued from entrances and exists of the South Ferry station after the accident.

Interborough officials said that first reports of the accident to them indicated that there were no passengers on the train and that no one was injured. They said only one truck left the rails and reports of fire in the tube were erroneous.

CONFLICT IN DATES OF REP. WOMEN'S GATHERINGS

NEW HAVEN, July 8—(AP)—Conflict of dates whereby the meeting of Connecticut republican women to be held in Hartford next Wednesday falls on the same day as the New Haven republican club outing at Lighthouse Point is made the subject of a letter which Mrs. Hannah D. Townshend, vice chairman of the New Haven republican town committee, has sent to the chairman of the republican state central committee, Miss Katherine Byrne, of Putnam. Mrs. Townshend says that she will not attend the gathering in Hartford.

Senator Hiram Bingham, Senator George P. McLean, Governor Trumbull and State Chairman J. Henry Roraback are on the list of speakers for the Hartford meeting.

Mrs. Townshend's letter follows:

"Dear Miss Byrne:

"On Saturday I received from the state central committee a notification of a meeting of republican women to be held in Hartford on July 14 with a request that I notify you how many of the New Haven women would be present. It seems very unfortunate that July 14 should have been chosen for our meeting as that is the date of our republican outing at Lighthouse and naturally our women want to be there. Such a conflict of dates I cannot understand.

"It would seem that you as vice chairman of the state central committee would have gotten in touch with the women of the state central committee by which there are four in New Haven and at least have heard in this way of the meeting at Lighthouse. To have heard of it and then to have called this meeting at Hartford is of unbelievable discourtesy, and not to have heard of it is a gross inefficiency on the part of the state central committee members in New Haven and either of these conditions is unpardonable.

"I expect to be at the meeting at the Lighthouse as many of my vice chairmen do. As I understand you have notified the vice chairman direct it would be unnecessary for me to speak for more than myself. I will not be at your meeting at Hartford.

"Believe me, sincerely yours,

"HANNAH D. TOWNSHEND,

"Vice chairman, New Haven republican town committee."

LIQUOR VALUED WELL OVER HALF MILLION SEIZED

BOSTON, July 8—(AP)—Liquor valued at well over $500,000 was under seizure here tonight and two vessels, victims of customs and coast guard vigilance, were under detention with their crews. The schooner Sunner, seized 9 miles off Cape Cod last night and towed here today, yielded $150,000 worth of alcohol and whiskey, and the steamer Cretan, searched yesterday and last night at her dock, was believed to contain nearly 50,000 gallons of alcohol, worth $500,000.

The Sunner, a British three master, was one of seven ships reported yesterday on a newly formed rum row. According to the ship's papers, she loaded at Halifax and was destined for Havana. Her case was under investigation and customs officials expected in the event of proving law violation to institute forfeiture proceedings.

The schooner formerly sailed as the Over the Top and under that name was seized in October, 1924 and taken to New London. She was subsequently released. She was built at Notre Dame Bay, N. J., in 1919 and registers 166 tons net. She is valued at $20,000.

The captain and crew of the Cretan, 22 men in all, were arraigned in federal court and held in heavy bail for hearing. Owing to the arrival of the Sunner, customs men gave up for today their task of unearthing contraband from beneath the steamer's cargo of paper, and concentrated their efforts on the Sunner. Deputy collectors questioned Captain Simeon Guy of the latter vessel and his seven men and planned to lay his report tomorrow before Collector Lufkin. That official will determine whether the case should go to the U. S. district attorney for prosecution.

SIX KILLED BY AUTOS IN STATE LAST WEEK

HARTFORD, July 8—(AP)—Six persons were killed in automobile accidents in this state last week, according to reports made to the motor vehicle department. The total of accidents was 426, exceeding by ten the number reported during the corresponding week of 1925. The fatality record a year ago was three persons killed. The victims in last week's crashes were Jennie Lourelano at Bristol; Andrew Maffel, New Haven; Marion Doerschlag, Meriden; Raymond Nye and Mrs. Arthur Nye, Willimantic; Rose Bracoras, Shelton.

Fourteen cities contributed 343 to the total of accidents. The reports were as follows: Hartford 53; Bridgeport 46; New Haven 41; Waterbury 26; New Britain 15; New London 13; Stamford 10; Greenwich 9; Danbury 8; Norwalk 7; Middletown 5, Meriden 5; Norwich 3 and Winsted two.

U. S. MARINE SHOT BY HIS OWN RIFLE

NEWPORT, R. I., July 8—(AP)—Private Fred Blair of Indiana, member of the U. S. marine corps attached to the naval war college, was shot through the head by his own rifle in barracks today and died almost at once. A board of inquiry was appointed to determine whether the shooting was accidental or intentional.

Gen. D[illegible] Heads Fleet Corporation

Succeeds Elmer E. Crowley Who Was Removed From Office by United States Shipping Board.

WASHINGTON, July 8—(AP)—Captain Elmer E. Crowley joined the growing ranks of ex-presidents of the Emergency Fleet corporation today when the shipping board, without previous notice, at a suddenly called special meeting and by a vote of four to two removed him from office and elected in his stead Brigadier General A. C. Dalton, until today assistant quartermaster general of the army.

The removal was accomplished by accepting the resignation which Crowley was required to file with the board when he was sworn in nine months ago to succeed Rear Admiral Leigh Palmer, also removed by the board. Demands made of Chairman T. V. O'Connor of the board of Admiral Benson and Vice Chairman Plummer for a statement of the reason for accepting the resignation went unanswered and Commissioners Teller, Walsh, (who seconded the motion), and Hill voted with the chairman to terminate Crowley's service "effective at once."

The special meeting was called by the chairman around noon without notice of its purpose. News of the action taken did not leak out until late in the afternoon, however, when a statement by the chairman announcing the change was circulated through the board and corporation offices. It gave the military record of General Dalton, who was placed on the army retired list today at his own request to permit his acceptance of the new post, and it also carried an attached paper giving business references for the new corporation president and the names of the following as political references: Senators Wadsworth, New York; Weller, Md.; Cappan, Kan., republicans, and Sheppard, democrat, Texas, and Representatives Purnell, Ind.; Woodruf, Mich.; Wainwright, N. Y., Reese, Tenn., and Anthony, Kan., all republicans.

The sudden elimination of Captain Crowley, who bears his title as a reminder of his days as a ship master, followed a steadily growing volume of gossip that it was impending. It started at the time of the sale by the shipping board to the Dollar interests of San Francisco of the five president-class steamers of the American Oriental line now operating in the trans-Pacific trade out of Seattle.

The sale was made by vote of a majority of the board led by Chairman O'Connor and over the disapproval submitted to the board by Captain Crowley and which figured largely in the fight against consummation of the deal by Pacific Northwestern interests before the senate commerce committee and in the courts here.

Captain Crowley was notified of the board's action and immediately left his office. He issued a statement however, reverting to the Dollar sale incident as the only act of his as corporation head which had been disapproved by a majority of the board.

Vice Chairman Plummer and Admiral Benson also issued brief but sharp statements recording their disapproval of Crowley's removal.

"We have removed a man whose entire life has been devoted to the successful sailing, building and operating of American ships: I think this action speaks for itself," was all Mr. Plummer had to say. Admiral Benson's statement was:

"I was most strongly opposed to the action of the board in removing Captain Crowley as in my opinion he has made a most efficient president of the Fleet corporation, and I do not believe it possible to get a man in this country who has a more practical grasp of the American shipping situation or a better idea of the measures that should be taken to solve the practical problems facing the United States shipping board.

OBJECTED TO KLANSMAN READING CHURCH METER

BOSTON, July 8—(AP)—Refusal of a Catholic pastor in Groton to let meter readers into his church has plunged it in darkness, it developed today. The priest, Father Mitchell, was represented by his counsel as objecting to the meter readers because one of their number was a Klansman.

The matter came up before the state public utilities commission in the form of a petition by the church that the municipal plant be ordered to furnish the church with light. Joseph P. Walsh counsel for the petitioners, said that the trouble began some time ago, when the Klan became active in Groton, but came to a climax last Sunday when the light wires were cut by the company.

Walsh suggested that "the whole business might be cleared up" by the installation of a meter outside the building where the readers could see them without entering.

The light company representative agreed to the new arrangement and the commission suggested that Father Mitchell secure an acceptable electrician to do all inside work. This was acceptable to the priest, but a hitch rose when the company insisted that one of its men remove the inside meter. Attorney Walsh solved the new problem after a protracted conference by suggesting that an employe of the Pepperell Lighting plant remove the old meter and turn it over to the Groton concern for reading. The hearing was adjourned one week to await the outcome of adjustments.

Whittemore Must Pay Death Penalty

Maryland Court of Appeals Affirms Conviction and Death Sentence of Bandit King.

ANNAPOLIS, Md., July 8—(AP)—The Maryland court of appeals today affirmed the conviction and death sentence of Richard Reese Whittemore, bandit king and admitted slayer of a Maryland penitentiary guard. He must hang on a date to be set by Governor Ritchie for the murder of Robert H. Holtman in February, 1925. Whittemore was convicted of first degree murder in Baltimore on May 21 last. He had pleaded self-defense. The death sentence was imposed by Criminal Court Judge Eugene O'Dunne.

PRES. COOLIDGE LANDS THREE POUND PIKE

PAUL SMITHS, N. Y., July 8—(AP)—Overcast skies and occasional showers greeted President Coolidge today, on this, the second day of his vacation in the heart of the Adirondacks, but served to curtail his activity only a little.

Elated by his success of the first day as a fisherman when he landed a three-pound pike after a sharp struggle on the waters of Lake Osgood, and tempted by ideal fishing weather, the chief executive is understood to have tried his luck again behind the wall of trees which guard the lake.

What success attended such an effort, however, was not revealed, lending color to reports that fortune was not so kind to him as yesterday, although a small pike was said to have been taken from the lake by a camp fisherman during the forenoon.

The work of settling the camp meanwhile continued unabated, as indications of quickening interest on the part of the citizens and officials of this region multiplied.

Automobile tourists swung by the camp enclosure to obtain a glimpse of the summer white house while the ever watchful eye of the public official was represented by an inspector for this section of the New York state conservation commission who, deciding that one day's respite was enough, called to see if the two white collies, Rob Roy and Prudence Prim, the ever present companions and chums of the president and Mrs. Coolidge were properly licensed for this state.

Not disturbing the pets, who were with the president before the log fire, Mrs. Coolidge attended to the matter by filling out the proper application blanks for the dogs.

In such matters the president and Mrs. Coolidge are the same as private citizens in the eyes of the law, which requires the licensing of all dogs that roam at large in state forests, such as these which border the presidential camp.

Governor Smith of the empire state anticipated one such complication by sending the president fishing license a few days before the chief executive left Washington for his vacation. The license Mr. Coolidge wears pinned on his fishing cap, as required by law, and manifests every pride in it.

With the president a republican and the governor a democrat, it is remarked on all hands here that politics, in vacation time at least, stops at the water's edge.

The executive offices, scarcely a stone's throw from Paul Smith's hotel where many of the presidential party are living, opened its doors today, located in a cottage of commodious rooms and great fireplaces, the accommodations are ample in every way.

Mail was received during the day from the white house and transmitted by Secretary Sanders to the president who attended to them and then spent considerable time with his confidential stenographer, E. C. Geiser, of Lawrence, Mass. Newspapers and press clippings were also sent to Mr. Coolidge that he might keep fully informed of events in the outside world.

BRIDGEPORT BUSSES RUN ON SCHEDULE TIME

BRIDGEPORT, July 8—(AP)—There is no apparent change in the motor bus strike situation here from yesterday. The four lines involved are operating, the bosses say, on schedule time and the strikers maintain that the schedules are not maintained. The bosses say they are winning out while strike leaders claim victory because of increased public sympathy and because they claim the bus lines cannot keep up their schedules. Yesterday Mayor Behrens conferred with Harry Weiss, head of the striking bus drivers union and today will have a conference with the bus owners in an effort to effect a settlement.

S-51 TO BE REFITTED AND PUT INTO SERVICE

Search For Dead in Ill Fated Submersible Will be Made Today After Drawing of Water From Drydock Has Been Completed—Touching Ceremony at Navy Yard Marked End of Craft's 135 Mile Journey From Ocean Grave Off Block Island—Rear Admiral Plunkett Ordered All Work on Sub Stopped For Day at 5 P. M.

NEW YORK, July 8—(AP)—The dead of the S-51 still slept beneath the water tonight.

The submarine that rested on the floor of the ocean off Block Island for more than nine months was warped into dry dock at Brooklyn Navy yard today. A touching ceremony marked the end of her 135 mile journey, which was delayed when she grounded on a reef in the East river yesterday.

A new silk flag was hoisted to the top of the mast that had been fitted to her battered bridge. Lt. Com. Edward Ellsberg, who directed the salvage work, stood at attention on a pontoon. All ranks stood at attention. Relatives of the dead mingled with a small crowd that had been permitted to enter the yard. At a signal the flag was lowered to half mast.

Immediately the ceremony was over divers went below the 24 feet of water in the dock and adjusted blocks. Derricks lifted the submarine to even keel. Great pumps were set to pumping out the water of the dock.

As the water gradually went down more of the bridge became visible. As if in a theatre where the curtain went downward instead of up those in the navy yard saw slowly revealed to them the tragedy the sea had wrought. The large "S-51" on the conning tower appeared. The periscope, bent at right angles, was coated with rust. On one side of the conning tower was a life belt, still white and secure in its stays. The lights that were seen last by the watch on the bridge of the City of Rome just before the S-51 was rammed and sunk last September were still in place.

At 5 o'clock Rear Admiral Plunkett, commander of the navy yard, ordered all work stopped. At that time the gun of the S-51 was out of water. The decks were still awash. Five of the pontons that raised her from the sea bottom were still bobbing in the water, but the S-51 rested on the ways.

"No divers have entered the S-51 since her hatches were sealed while she lay at the bottom of Block Island about a month ago," Lt. Com. Ellsberg said as he quit work for the day. "We are going to leave her under water tonight. In the morning we will finish draining the dock and then we will search for the dead."

At the time divers entered the S-51 while she was under the Atlantic Ocean, they reported that one member of the crew had been seen wedged behind a bunk in the battery room, Lt. Com. Ellsberg said he believed there were about 12 or 14 dead inside.

"The ship is to be refitted and put into service," Lt. Com. Ellsberg said.

MEMBERS OF CREW DIED AT THEIR POSTS

NEW YORK, July 8—(AP)—The dead members of the crew of the submarine S-51 died at their posts, Lt. Com. Ellsberg said tonight. As the rusty, torn hulk of the submarine lay in dry dock at the Brooklyn Navy yard, Lt. Com. Ellsberg for the first time told what the divers working under him saw in the vessel as it lay on the ocean bed off Block Island where she sank after being rammed by the City of Rome last fall.

"The men who were saved were on watch," he said. "While the S-51 was at the bottom divers entered through the hatches and explored her. Every man seen was at his station. Some of them had their hands on valves.

"We saw one man in the engine room, but he was jammed against some controls and we couldn't reach him. He seemed to be sticking to his job to the last. We saw J. M. Schoefield, radio operator, at his post, his body rigid in a chair, his head and shoulders bobbing up and down in the green water over the keys of his instrument.

"We saw the body of another seamen in the engine room bulkhead stretching his arm out grasping a lever in an attempt to close an emergency valve."

Secretary of the Navy Wilbur will inspect the submarine at the navy yard tomorrow, naval officials said tonight. Dewey Kile, engineman, who was one of the three survivors of the disaster, arrived tonight from New London, Conn., to assist in identifying any bodies found in the submarine.

VISCOUNTESS ASTOR CALLED LIAR BY LABORITE

LONDON, July 8.—(AP)—Viscountess Astor, the former Nancy Langhorne, of Virginia, experienced a brand new "girl" in the house of commons today when she was called a liar, not once, but twice in rapid succession, by Jack Jones, fiery laborite, whose ire was aroused by one of Lady Astor's comments.

What Lady Astor though about it all, about Jack Jones, in particular, she confided only to her most intimate friends.

The incident was brought about during a debate regarding West Ham borough, which has a labor majority and has long been in hot water with the government officials concerning alleged spendthrift methods of running its affairs.

It was while George Lansbury, laborite, was speaking that comments were exchanged across the floor of the house between Lady Astor and the labor benches. Lady Astor then rose and asserted: "As this is a matter of municipal corruption"—loud labor cries of "no," "no,"—"is it in order for the honorable member to compare the dockyard member with the board of guardians, which has been proved to be corrupt?"

No sooner had she finished the question, when Jones jumped to his feet, shouting "you are a liar," and, taking another breath, shouted again: "You are a liar."

Silence fell upon the house. Then came a buzz from all parts, and finally loud cries of "withdraw."

The chairman, the Rt. Hon. James Fitzalan Hope, called upon Jones to withdraw his statement, and Jones, after some moments' thought, said: "I apologize to the lady and withdraw, and substitute for it the phrase 'terminological inexactitude!'"

There was a ripple of laughter all over the house, but Lady Astor was not among those who laughed.

NEW SCHEDULE AFFECTS BIGELOW-HARTFORD EMPLOYES

THOMPSONVILLE, July 8.—(AP)—New schedules affecting the pay of 300 additional employes of the Bigelow-Hartford Carpet company, will be announced Monday, according to a statement issued tonight by officials of the company. The announcement states that a wage adjustment is being made "to equalize wages between the various departments for similar or nearly similar work and to correct inaccuracies within the departments as regards various grades of goods."

Four hundred hands were affected by an adjustment announced this week and while the changes for the most part result in decreased earnings for the employes, the official announcement states that no general wage reduction is contemplated.

Four thousand hands are employed at the plant.

NEW HAVEN CIGAR MAKERS' STRIKE SETTLED

NEW HAVEN, July 8.—(AP)—After being on strike for a wage increase for the past three weeks, cigar makers here have effected a settlement and will return to work as soon as the manufacturers have a sufficient stock of tobacco prepared, which probably will be next Tuesday.

The cigar makers asked for an increase of $1.80 a thousand on two for a quarter cigars and were granted $1. On two for 15 cents brands an increase of $2.50 was asked and $1.25 was allowed.

The tobacco strippers, who have an organization separate from the cigar makers union also concluded their strike, having received a satisfactory increase.

MYSTERY WOMEN FEATURE BUDLONG DIVORCE HEARING

NEWPORT, R. I., July 8.—(AP)—Milton J. Budlong's relations with two mystery women, Mrs. Budlong's attempt to secure an introduction for her daughter at the court of St. James and the moral effects of Mrs. Budlong's "shirt episode" on her husband, featured today's hearing on Budlong's petition for divorce on the grounds of cruelty.

Abbott Phillips, counsel for Budlong, spent an hour on the stand reviewing the Budlongs' marital difficulties, which have resulted in two unsuccessful suits for separation by Mrs. Budlong and the present hearing. Describing the time when Mrs. Budlong barricaded herself in her husband's New York apartment and answered threats and entreaties on notes pinned to her husband's shirts and tossed from the window, Phillips explained:

"Mrs. Budlong once told me that her only weapon against her husband was publicity. During those days Mr. Budlong was pointed out in hotel dining rooms and by taxicab drivers and others when he ventured on the street. He told me he thought he could never hold his head up in New York again."

Mrs. Budlong, acting as her own counsel since she summarily dismissed her attorney last Tuesday, brought out some of her blasted social aspirations while cross-examining Oscar L. Halsey, a business associate of her husband.

"Didn't Congressman Fuller promise you he would hop us socially when you intervened for us (in Washington)?"

"Yes."

"Didn't he promise to assist in having my daughter, Frances, introduced at the court of St. James?"

"At my request."

Halsey went on to say that the congressman referred to was now Governor Alvin T. Fuller of Massachusetts, his brother-in-law.

A "Mrs. Y." bobbed up in the case today to take her place beside "Mrs. X" mentioned yesterday and Budlong's relations with her formed the basis of much of his cross-examination at the hands of his wife.

HELD INQUEST INTO DEATH OF AUTO VICTIM

GREENWICH, July 8.—(AP)—An inquest into the death of Harry Tief, of Silver street, East Portchester, who was killed in a motorcycle accident in Glenville, was held here today before Coroner John J. Phelan. Coroner Phelan, while giving no official opinion intimated that his finding would be one of accidental death.

The inquest was held at the home of William Duffy in Pecksland road, who was riding on the motorcycle at the time of the crash and who was injured. He was able to tell much about the accident but said that just before the machine left the highway and crashed into a telegraph pole, it appeared to wabble. It is believed that the front tire went flat and that this threw the motorcycle from the road.

Medical Examiner John A. Clark said that Tief's death was caused by a fractured skull. Other witnesses said it was foggy at the time of the crash.

CORONER HEARS TESTIMONY IN THE NYE FATALITY

(Special to the Bulletin)

WILLIMANTIC, July 8—Coroner Arthur G. Bill, of Danielson, has held his inquest on the death of Mrs. Jessie Nye and her son Raymond A. Nye, killed Saturday afternoon when their touring car was crushed in a collision with a truck operated by Ward Rosebrooks, an employe of Willard H. Smith, Inc., on Jackson street. Held behind closed doors in the office of Chief of Police Thomas J. Grady, 13 witnesses were heard during the inquest, which lasted three hours. Ward Rosebrooks, Arthur W. G. Nye and his daughter Miss Grace Edna Nye who escaped injury in the accident, were the leading witnesses. Coroner Bill stated that he would make known his finding in a few days. He visited the location of the accident with Traffic Officer Grant Bombria who investigated the fatality for the police department.

Mr. Nye said that his son was driving between 15 and 20 miles an hour. The first notice of the approaching truck was taken when it struck the rear of the Nye car and jammed it against the tree to the right of the road. Mr. Nye said he was thrown out. His son was lying close to the machine and was living at the time. Mrs. Nye was buried out of sight. Several people assisted him in removing her and she was taken to St. Joseph's hospital, where she died about four hours later.

Mr. Nye said that their car was struck twice by the truck, first at the rear left side and again against the left side of the car. She said she was not thrown from the car although she escaped injury.

Howard Keegan of 16 Prospect street testified that from a distance of about two hundred feet he saw the touring car and truck traveling in the same direction. He saw the truck start to pass the car strike the left rear side, veer off slightly and then again strike the Nye car. He believed the truck was traveling between 25 and 30 miles an hour.

Gunnar Nelson, 18 Carey street, a companion of Keegan, gave evidence that he looked at the vehicles in time to see the crash and then saw Rosebrooks crawl out of the cab of the overturned truck.

Former First Selectman Russell, A. Andrews heard the crash from his home several hundred yards distant. He described what he saw upon his arrival there.

Nelson C. Noel, 406 Jackson street, also testified to hearing the crash and rushing to the scene.

Francis Boucher, 296 Jackson street, testified that he had not seen the Nye car pass his home, but he had noticed the truck and in his opinion it was traveling at a fast rate of speed. He heard the crash, but did not see it.

George Peterson, 24 Ash avenue, Charles Broadhurst, 104 Ash street, Charles Thompson 310 Ash street and George Spencer, of 320 Jackson street, were sitting together on the steps of a grocery store at 324 Jackson street. They agreed that the truck was traveling at least 25 miles an hour when it passed them. They heard the crash and saw the two cars pile together. Peter Bayard was another witness to hearing the crash and rushing to the site of the accident.

The testimony of Ward Rosebrooks was not made known, other than his information that the steering part of the truck seemed to go wrong.

JEWETT CITY

RUMORED STRIKE OF GOLD EXCITES TOWNSPEOPLE

(Special to the Bulletin)

JEWETT CITY, July 8.—Underneath the town, down from 8 to 15 feet there extends a strata of fine white sand. Excavations for the Rioux and the Anthony block on Main street have uncovered this layer, which evidently extends from southeast to northwest and not much over 100 feet wide. Two hundred yards down the street there extends a stratum of blue granite. George Geer of Hopeville, in carrying on blasting operations for Frank Minski on Main street, struck this underlying rock. The last shot, Wednesday afternoon, furnished no little excitement for the gallery of spectators, as well as presenting a geological find altogether out of the ordinary. When the smoke of the blast cleared away, it was found that a vein of white flint had been opened, ending under a big overhang of granite in a quite sizeable pocket, which was found to contain a number of curiously fashioned silicious quartz chrystals. Not only that, but a larger one, showed by Mr Geer today, with a much greater specific gravity than the blue granite from which it was blown, appears to be plated over half the surface with a yellow metal of a greenish tinge, resembling gold. At this point, the gallery got in to work and the report spread over the town that Minski had struck a vein of gold.

MILL MEN SEE PROMISE IN AM. WOOLEN CO. OPENING

(Special to the Bulletin)

DANIELSON, July 8—Mill men hereabouts in some instances felt inclined today to regard the new low prices quoted on its lines opened Wednesday by the American Woolen company—the lowest prices in nine years—the possibility of more activity in the woolen industry. It is the belief that the lower prices will bring a greater volume of business than has been in sight for the past two years and consequent greater activity in the mills. It is an optimistic view—one born of hope and actual desire for better conditions.

DROWNED BABY CASE RUMORS WITHOUT FOUNDATION

(Special to The Bulletin.)

DANIELSON, July 8—Coroner Arthur G. Bill said Thursday afternoon that there is no change in the status of Raymond Wetherbee, held without bail at Brooklyn jail until he can be questioned as to what he knows regarding the death of the new-born child of Miss Agnes Petka of Wilsonville in the town of Thompson. Coroner Bill said that no specific charge has been lodged against Wetherbee, though reports to the contrary were in circulation during Thursday. Mr. Wetherbee, who has retained Attorney Irving H. Miron of Putnam as his counsel, is held as a material witness. No definite date has been set by Coroner Bill for the inquest in this case, though there is the probability it will be held next week. Miss Petka, who is but 17 years of age, admits being the mother of the new-born child that was taken from the waters of a cove near Wilsonville the past week end. She remains a patient at the Day Kimball hospital in Putnam.

It may be said that the tourist season is in full swing—and the foolish season getting a magnificent start. Consider the case of a young man who appealed to a local buyer of old automobiles to take his machine off his hands Thursday, that he might get money enough to pay his fare back to a small town in a distant part of New York state.

The young man drove into the garage with the shattered hulk of what was once a fairly good piece of tin. The machine, carrying a New York registration, was shy a right front tire, there was little gas in the tank—and less money in the young man's jeans. In fact, he was just clamoring for a chance to eat and for money enough to pay railroad fare home. His touring enthusiasm had waned. In the rear of his car was a box with a meagre list of cooking utensils, but nothing to put in them. In the rear of the young man's cranium was a great longing to get back home.

Not without having a state police officer check up the car and establishing that it was not a stolen machine, did the garage man close his deal to buy. The officer checked the young man up, questioned him and finally decided everything was all right.

The forlorn traveler did not kiss the car goodbye, nor take a long, lingering look at it. He hurried away to eat again and to hunt up a train that would carry him back home. And so ends one tourist story of the young and nifty season. This case is unusual, but not unique. Such things have happened in Danielson before.

Thursday, Coroner Arthur G. Bill was at Willimantic taking evidence in the Nye fatal motor accident case of the past week end. Upon his return here Mr. Bill said that he had heard all the witnesses he expects to hear in this case, but that his finding will not be ready for a few days.

This is the day that the motor convoy section of the Service battery is due to arrive at Tobbyhanna, Pa., is due to arrive there this morning, in fact) Postcards filtering back from along the route covered by the motor trucks since they left here Tuesday morning tell of the progress of the trip and incidents of the way. Meanwhile another section of the Service battery that left here by rail Tuesday morning has long since been at Tobbyhanna and has been engaged in erecting tents and making the camp ready for the entire outfit. Today starts 15 days of intensive work for the artillerymen and then the trek back home.

Continued lack of rain after weeks of cold and backward weather has crop growers really worried. With but a miserly hay crop, the farmer now waits and considers what is going to happen to his corn and potatoes and other crops that were held back through May and June by unseasonable cold weather and now are jeopardized by want of rain. The season to date is not entitled to many encomiums. It has been a bad actor and shows no inclination to improve its ways.

A joy rider of the air circled over Danielson, shortly after 5 o'clock Thursday afternoon and in turning back toward the southward eventually picked out a course taking him to the southeast. Flying low in a snappy breeze, observers here could see the tail of the plane sway and imagine what a thrill the rider up there was getting.

Radio News Bureau

JERUSALEM, July 8 (AP)—Hebrew newspaper offices at Tel-Aviv have been getting their news quickly and cheaply since the introduction of radio news from the European capitals.

Two enterprising radio enthusiasts have formed what they call a Radio News Bureau, and tune in on Rome, Berlin, Moscow, Paris and London daily.

With the aid of an amplion and a stenographer, the news is transcribed into Hebrew and flashed to the newspapers, and publication follows only a few hours later than in London.

PUTNAM

PUTNAM, July 8.—In city court yesterday, the case of Mrs. Mary Weaver Ream, charged with evasion of responsibility after an accident, was continued a second time. A further continuance until Saturday, July 10, was announced.

It is charged that Mrs. Ream, driving a dashing sport car in which she is frequently seen hereabouts, ploughed into a city police truck at 3 o'clock in the morning of Friday, June 25, smashing the truck to a point almost beyond repair; then calmly backed her car away from the wreckage and, without getting out of the car, drove away. Sergeant Liard of the city police and Delmar Hazen had been using the truck in connection with their work painting white traffic lines in the business section during the still of the night. They had finished for the night just before 3 o'clock, had driven to a garage at Bridge and Water streets and parked the truck outside, 90 feet from an electric light, while they went into the garage to wash up, when they heard a crash. Hurrying to the doorway, the were in time to see a car driven by a woman disappear in the darkness. The car was like one in which Mrs. Ream is seen, and they commandeered Police Captain Jarvis' car, standing nearby, and made for Mrs. Ream's residence in Thompson. There they met Mrs. Ream as she drove into her yard, her car little the worse for the collision. According to Prosecutor Johnson, Mrs. Ream, when confronted by Sergeant Liard, admitted that it was she who drove the car which struck the police car and vanished, but insisted that she paused long enough to take the number, and intended to settle.

The only case heard was that against Frank Auger, charged with intoxication. He pleaded guilty and called himself a victim of circumstances. A suspended sentence of 30 days was shown on the court records. This suspended sentence was afterwards removed and an additional 30 day at Brooklyn jail was added.

LASKY PREDICTS COMING OF MOVIE SHAKESPEARE

HOLLYWOOD, Cal., July 8 (AP)—The screen is ready for its Shakespeare and the film will have its Bard of Hollywood as surely as the stage produced is Bard of Avon.

This is pronouncement of Jesse L. Lasky, motion picture producer. And while he does not forecast the arrival of the super-scenarist this year or next, he declares eventually will bring its answer—a screen Shakespeare.

"A man will come who will tower above past writers and contemporaries in the construction of original screen stories," Lasky said. "He will bring to the screen something new, some great thought, some fine-wrought form of construction and story telling. He will open our eyes to new possibilities, to new dreams of the screen as a medium of art, and when he passes will leave a creative monument behind him that many generations will gaze upon.

"There is a tremendous need and I for one am sure that the super-author of pictures will rise in the not far distant future.

"The screen started from nothing 30 years ago and today has developed a marvelous medium of pictorial story telling. It is an artistic medium that has grown faster in its technical possibilities than it has in its dramatic power.

"We have some trained writers who think in terms of the screen, who dream their dreams in terms of picture art. We have trained technical workers, but most of them have come to use from the world of letters or from the short-story or newspaper field. We need these workers, but we also need men and women who are thinking in terms of Olympus.

"We need someone who will bring to the screen what Shakespeare brought to the drama of his time. He galvanized dramatic construction and gave it form. He pulled the drama out of its rut of tradition and its bonds of being a religious spectacle.

"We do not expect someone to come along with startling new plots, novel situations, or brilliant photographic effects. Shakespeare, as a matter of fact, worked with age-old material. Many of his plots were time-worn and had been used by many other writers in many countries. But it was what Shakespeare saw in them and what he saw in the stage as a medium of expression that made him great."

Some men are not content with being treated well; they want to be treated often.

FULL COATS FOR MEN WIN OVER WASPLIKE WAISTLINE

LONDON, July 8 (AP)—Wasp-like waistlines for men have been a good deal of a washout.

Last year many prominent London tailors persuaded some of their young customers to display their bovish figures in coats cut to fit very snugly. But straight lines won out.

Coats next fall will be even fuller than those for summer wear, so Mayfair tailors say.

If two women kiss only once when they meet it is a sign they are not good friends.

GENERAL ANDREWS STICKS

As the result of the statements which have been made concerning the re-publication of the report that General Andrews was to give up his work as prohibition enforcement officer it may be possible that he is not entirely happy in the carrying on of the task which offers all kinds of unpleasantness and unpleasantness, but he intends to carry on. He isn't at least, ready to quit just yet.

General Andrews has had an opportunity to realize, even as did General Lister while in Philadelphia, what a task to uphold the prohibition laws and prevent the violations means. Experience has been a great eye opener. He has made recommendations which have not obtained approval and for that reason he sees himself handicapped in the work to be done but he yields to the judgment of others.

It is fully apparent to him that the impossible cannot be done and he has not attempted to do it. He has striven to put a stop to the smuggling of the great quantity of liquor into the country by water and land. He has established forces that have done much in this direction. Opinions may vary as to what this accomplishment is but while there is much liquor to be had of the quantity that bears the brand of being "the real stuff" is decidedly small. Though there are various types of smuggled and bootlegged beverages which give a kick and large amounts of alcohol from the raw to the various stages of dilution being consumed by those who are willing to take the chance or can produce the price.

There is no doubt but what General Andrews is doing all that is possible under the facilities given him to accomplish the enforcement of the law. The understanding display by the aim of the task and the amount and resourcefulness of the opposition alone has done as well as he has in the time he has been on the job. Whether any one else could do better never will be known but there is a chance for such a demonstration. As yet he has not completed his work and of course he hasn't stopped the sale of intoxicating beverages or even ended the smuggling of liquor, though he has interrupted much and had a deterring influence upon that business.

MONTICELLO

With the dedication of Monticello there is assured to the nation another historic home which not only deserves preservation but which should be made available to the public. It was to Monticello that Thomas Jefferson was deeply interested and the country's wife has been and will continue to be deeply interested in whatever was so closely associated with its former president.

The name of every president has not been established as a shrine, and it is not probable that ever will be. Some of them are more famous than others and because of their acts stand out more conspicuously. They either had greater opportunities or else they made them and it is only natural that there should be a keen desire to preserve the home of the writer of the Declaration of Independence. What that document represents as presenting one side of Jefferson, Monticello does for another.

Jefferson had a wide range of interests being a farmer, writer, scientist, businessman and statesman and he brought all these to a focus at Monticello. He created it, supervised the construction and built himself into it and there are associations there which will ever serve as an inspiration to the steady stream of visitors that will be attracted to it.

There cannot fail to be a sense of satisfaction that the effort to make it a public shrine has succeeded, that the preservation is assured, even at the little sacrifice, and that it will be maintained not solely as a private estate but a place that will appeal to the country in a similar manner to Mount Vernon.

Jefferson would not be forgotten if there were no Monticello but it is the natural result that there should be a desire to preserve the home while such action was possible for its historic importance and the nation should be grateful for the services which have been performed in accomplishing this for the benefit of the future generations in their study of the early leaders.

SETTLEMENT POSSIBILITIES HAZY

When American members of the world court commission reach home they do not bring anything new in the way of hope that the dispute over Tacna-Arica is due for an early settlement. There is no possibility that the plebiscite will go any farther and just at this time it doesn't appear that Chile would listen to such advancement as might be made through diplomatic channels. It is one of those cases where the one way to a settlement is to let Chile have its own way, and it doesn't appear that there is any justification for any such course.

There is a muddled situation going back a great many years, but from first to last there has been a general disposition in that region to grasp everything in sight and regardless of what it is worth, how it obtained it or what may be gained from possessing it. The Tacna-Arica territory stands as a prize in sentiment more than in value. There is a general agreement that it amounts to nothing and has no possibilities for future development. It isn't worth fighting over and yet where there's a disposition to squabble it makes just as good a bone of contention as anything else.

The latest rumor has it that the matter may be submitted to the king of Spain for an arbitration adjustment. Perhaps Chile would be willing to abide more faithfully by its agreement to accept the outcome in such a plan than it has in the attempt made by this country to settle the matter. Perhaps King Alfonso could persuade Chile to give Bolivia an outlet to the sea and through such a corridor set up a barrier between the two nations on the coast. A non-interested arbitrator might do more than the representatives of South American nations which should be desirous of having that old dispute ended but in view of the experience that has been had by this country most anyone asked to act as arbitrator of the matter might well hesitate to become entangled in such an affair. Most certainly any other arbitrator would demand ironclad respect for his decision and the same kind of promises that there would be no interference during the period of arbitration and decision.

SIGNS ON AUTOS

According to the statement attributed to the commissioner of motor vehicles in the state of New Jersey it is his purpose to endeavor to obtain the revocation of the license of every motorist who placards his auto with such signs as, "If you can read his sign you are too damn close." He considers this an offense to the public taste and an abuse of the privileges that go with the license.

Not all will agree with the New Jersey commissioner. There is undoubtedly a tendency to cover machines with all kinds of signs and decorations that are neither an ornament nor a credit to the owner. Perhaps the emphasis that is given in the sign objected to is subject to criticism, a jar on the sensibilities or many, but such a man at the rear is in an inconspicuous place and does not obstruct the vision of the person driving. On the other hand it hits the nail on the head and warns many a driver that for his own good there is such a thing as keeping a proper distance, and if that is done there is less chance of an accident.

Probably the New Jersey commissioner figures that such signs really accomplish nothing and are vulgar and bases his attitude on such grounds. There is no telling how many are prompted to protect themselves and others against accident by just such a warning.

It is invariably the case that such signs represent a fad and the quickest way to get rid of them is to laugh them off, pay no attention to them and they will disappear from lack of publicity. When they bother the vision of the driver it is another matter.

WHAT WILL FRANCE DO?

They have been playing politics with serious matters for so long in France that there is no telling what may be done with proposals that are submitted for the adjustment of its financial problems and the stabilizing of the franc. It is therefore quite uncertain what will be done with the report of the experts which comes as the result of careful consideration of conditions and is aimed at obtaining the relief which France has so long needed.

It has been recognized that for a plan to be submitted by one party or another is simply to provide a target for opposition from combined political opponents. Endeavors to overcome that situation draws fire from somewhere else until the political turmoil in France has made it impossible for any financial program to succeed up to this time.

By the composite views of those representing sound business methods there should be a basis for getting fair treatment from the French deputies but a fair, straightforward settlement doesn't seem to make any better impression than some of the visionary schemes. France is in the position it is today because of this attitude. It has a chance now to accept the advice of experts and to sidetrack the politicians but that doesn't mean that it will. The deputies indicate that they are liable to be carried off their feet by political harangue and refuse to give consideration to the facts and the remedies which they require.

It seem sto be apparent that France must decide soon whether it is going to tolerate the conditions which have been prevailing or whether it is going to end them and shape a new course. Certainly it cannot continue to play politics in the manner it has been doing and expect any different results.

EDITORIAL NOTES

It is all right to feel sorry for yourself for that may be all the sympathy you'll get.

France doesn't like to see the franc down so low and tending lower, but the bigger surprise is that it is doing no more than it is to prevent it.

LOVE AFFAIRS

Never in all her life had Irene Peasley enjoyed such a good time as was hers when she went to visit her Aunt Hattie in Orinoco City out west, one of the bustling, sprawling, ridiculously rich towns that bore down eastern ridicule through sheer spirit and achievement. There were college graduates in plenty in Orinoco City, likewise marcelled girls from the best finishing schools and rock crystal goblets at dinner and caviare were too common to notice. Uncle George had made more money in ten years than they could spend and Aunt Hattie was hospitable and popular. Orinoco City broke its neck to be nice to her Chicago niece. There was no denying that Irene took to adultation like a duck.

"I'm so glad you're popular," Aunt Hattie told her, quite innocent of knowing that it was the first time in her life Irene could lay claim to the adjective. "But then, of course, you would be, with your looks and everything! How do you like Oscar Langlor dear?"

Irene held the nail buffer suspended in air as she considered this question.

No girl in Orinoco City would have needed more than one second to voice her opinion about Oscar Langlor and Aunt Hattie looked surprised. Oscar had everything that any fortunate youth might desire—looks, family, wealth, personality. Any girl singled out by Oscar might be pardoned for going off her head a bit with triumph. He had been practically glued to Aunt Hattie's doorstep ever since Irene's arrival and people were beginning to "eat them next one another" at dinners Irene herself was surprised when she heard herself saying indifferently, "Oh, I don't know—he's all right. I guess!"

"Are you in love with somebody back home?" Aunt Hattie demanded instantly. That seemed to her to be the only possible answer to her niece's astounding remark. Irene laughed—"How silly! Of cour-r-rse not!"

It was funny now to think how agonized she had been a short time ago because she was sure Tom White didn't care anything special about her. There had been an ache in her heart that had hurt beneath all her gayety and dilted chin.

She wondered a bit over these heartaches, because since coming to Orinoco City and blazing into this wonderful popularity, Tom had receded into the unconsidered background. She could think of him without a quiver, with a trifle of condescension. A good looking boy, on a stodgy salary. And here at hand were a box of orchids, a note thanking her for going to the dinner-dance the evening before, the promise of more festivities this evening.

Without doubt she asknowledged to herself that she might achieve orchids for life with nothing more than the droop of an eyelash. There would be another big Langlor house built for the young people on Langlor hill, limousines in the garage, a butler in her dining room. And it was easy to like Oscar.

Unconsciously Irene took on a sweetly complacent air, and Aunt Hattie excitedly confided to Uncle George that she really thought that Orinoco City would claim Irene as its own. "My niece, Mrs. Oscar Langlor"—it was sweet upon her togue.

Thrilling to the memory of Oscar's dark head bent over hers the night before, knowing that another meeting would bring their affairs to a crisis, Irene told herself that she was very fortunate, very happy and much to be envied. Most of all, she enjoyed the thought of the bombshell to the crowd back in Chicago—how they would jockey for her favor now that she had captured Oscar Langlor of the Langlor family, known all over the country!

There was a subtle excitement, a waiting, pervading the very air of Aunt Hattie's house. A maid brought in the afternoon mail.

They still wonder in Orinoco City why Irene went home so suddenly. They could not see her smiling all the way over a much-thumbed letter which contained such phrases as "never knew till you were gone how I cared" —"I miss you so"— "when are you coming back to me?" And in Irene's dreams as the train sped on was nary an orchid nor a butler.—Exchange.

IN THE PUBLIC EYE

The Earl of Pembroke, who has been officially declared bankrupt, is the bearer of one of the oldest and proudest titles in the British peerage. The first Earl of Pembroke was created in 1138. The family seat is Wilton House, one of the finest mansions in England. The present house was begun in the days of Queen Elizabeth, while the estate has been in possession of the family for 400 years. Besides a famous library Wilton House is filled with superb paintings by Van Dyke, Rubens and Reynolds and a valuable collection of antique statuary. The present Earl of Pembroke is the 15th of his line and succeeded to the title and estates in 1913. He was born in 1880 and is familiar with many Americans, as he spent several winters with his wife in California. He is said to be fonder of outdoor sports than of books or other treasurers in his possession.

Stories That Recall Others

Their Evening Call

"Say, Carl," said the irate wife as she waved a magazine above her head, "why did you cut out this article 'How to live to be 100 years old'?"

"Why, I didn't want your mother to see it," he said meekly.

The Retort Courteous

Down at the village where the dam makes good fishing, disciples of Izaak Walton may be met most any day bustling about collecting their fishing togs, hunting for boats or regaling a group of idlers with stories of previous catches.

The other day two youngsters, evidently from the city, and also quite evidently amateurs at the fishing game, roared up in a battered flivver and stopped with a skid in front of a store near the river. The proprietor and a half dozen idlers eyed the youths sleepily, but said nothing.

"Have you got any good reels in there?" called out one of the boys preparatory to jumping out.

The proprietor shook his head but said nothing.

"Got any tackle, then?" said the youth impatiently, and again the store keeper shook his head.

"Well," shouted the young man, by this time exasperated, "what have you got. Ain't you got nothing?"

The proprietor shiftedly slightly on his seat and spat deliberately over the edge of the porch. "Naw," he remarked casually, "nothing. Just got an old Ford like that one."

IN DAY'S NEWS

THE PHILIPPINES AT THE TURN OF A QUARTER CENTURY

The commission for investigation of the Philippine Islands appointed by President Coolidge has sailed to make a new survey of the United States' territory in the Far East.

"With the commission's departure the spotlight of public interest again turns to the Philippines," says a bulletin of the National Geographic society from its Washington, D. C. headquarters.

"The quarter century since the first Philippine commission finished its work in 1901, has seen vast changes in the Islands. An inventory of Philippine trade, of education, and general welfare shows advances all along the line.

"Scratch off coffee. Insert embroideries, then the list of the Islands five chief products for export remains the same. But the order of their importance and most of all the rolled up total of their importance to the Philippines has changed. For years Manila hemp was the leader. The most valuable export today is sugar and the new most valuable is the coconut. Then follows hemp. Tobacco is in fourth place just as it was during the latter years of Spanish control. Philippine embroidery is the new entry. Coffee in the Philippines succumbed to a tropical disease.

"The year 1901 was the first normal year for the Philippines after they became United States territory. Aguinaldo's insurrection had been suppressed. The soldier made way for the civilian. That year Philippine trade exports and imports doubled the Spanish average for which makes it more than four times as much as in the first peace year under the American flag.

"If age were the only test, the Filipino could call the American school system mere mushroom growth. A graduate of the University of Santo Tomas in Manila can refer to Harvard as a young upstart college because Santo Tomas opened its doors in 1607. The same year John Smith and his 100 colonists began their trials with mosquitoes and malaria at Jamestown. The Philippine school system however, is almost entirely American made. Spanish law required that there be two teachers, one for instruction of boys and one for instruction of girls to each 5,000 people. Actually it worked out to one teacher to more than 4,000 people.

"Today there are more than 25,000 teachers in Philippine public schools. These teachers, 98 per cent of whom are Filipinos, are training 1,132,000 pupils.

"Although there are 87 dialects spoken in the Islands, English has become the national language in 25 years. There is not a town or remote village now where some children at least do not speak English. Spanish is spoken but nearly as much as English.

"Probably the most significant detail in an inventory of the state of the Philippines is the decrease in the number of white residents. The census of 1903 showed 14,000 white people, most of them American while the last authoritative census, 1918 showed 13,000. Meantime the population of the whole archipelago had increased by 3,000,000.

"Straws in the wind are probably more important than the tablets of 25 years of progress in the Philippines. These are some of the straws. Plans are under way for planting 30,000,000 Para rubber seedlings during the current year. A new profitable export has been discovered in buntal or Bangkok straw hats which has leaped in four years from the $200,000 peg to $2,000,000. Although tenth among the world's sugar producers, the Philippines are first in area of land available for cultivation. Before 1909 there was not a single modern mill. Now there are 31 producing centrifugal sugar while the muscovado sugar boiled out by the rough and wasteful methods of Vermont maple sugar making, is decreasing in proportion.

"The world is waking up to an appetite for delicious tropical fruit and the Philippines are waking up to the fact that the Islands are eminently fitted to grow such fruit. The Filipinos look with envious eyes on the profits of Hawaiian pineapple and now claim they can raise even better pineapples. Mango, lanson, chico and pomelo are strange names to the American housewife, but they may not long remain so if the Philippines are successful in canning and marketing their fruit products. Rattan which the forests produce in abundance remains yet to be exploited. American furniture makers can use this product as they are beginning to use Philippine fine wood for American chairs, tables and dressers and radio sets.

"But if the custom of pigeonholing a nation or a district by its product such as Illinois, the Corn Belt; state; Sao Paulo, the Coffee country; the south, the Land of Cotton, is accepted, then the Philippines should be known as the Land of Fiber. From a banana plant Filipinos obtain probably the strongest known plant fiber, Manila hemp, from the fibrous stalk of the cane they produce sugar, the long hairs on the husks of the billion and a half coconuts are now put to many uses, the fiber of the maguey, a member of the amaryllis family and close relative of the century plant is an important export. Buntal hats are made from the buri palm, and then there is the wood and rattan from the forest. Finally their embroidery industry depends on the imported fibers of silk, cotton and flax."

CHILD TRAINING

FREEDOM THROUGH OBEDIENCE

Nelia Gardner White

Earliest childhood is none too soon for us to start building for our children's later freedom. It is necessary for everyone to be obedient to the ordinary demands of living, necessary that this obedience be automatic as mature years come, that the mind may be free to grow unhampered. Obedience is the bugbear of many a mother; not gained early, it daily seems more difficult for the mother to secure and the child to attain.

One of the chief reasons for disobedience is the expectation of disobedience, and this is one of the easiest habits to form. Coming in from play, going to bed, eating all that's on the plate, washing the hands, giving up playthings to others—isn't it true that most people expect children to find these things disagreeable? Do they not expect the little ones to object to them rather than to give a prompt, obedient response? Don't mothers, unconsciously perhaps, prepare to meet objections before they are put into words? Don't they often begin to coax before the children have refused to do what they desire? And expectation that a thing will be performed often goes a long, long way toward the performance itself.

And then there is the "don't" mother. Instead of "John, please come in," she says, "John I don't think I'd stay out any longer"! It makes an unbelievable difference whether or not we make our commands positive.

Do we think, before we give a command, whether it's necessary? Do we order, sometimes just because we're older and in a position to order? Probably over half the commands we give might better never have been uttered—either because they weren't necessary or because we don't see that they are obeyed once given. There are often occasions when we become annoyed by the inevitable confusion of play. We say, "Don't do this!" and, "Don't do that!" until half the joy is squeezed out of the play. And the noise or the laughter or the argument may have been perfectly legitimate to childhood and not in the least wrong or harmful.

Are our tones loud and argumentative or quiet and assured of equally quiet response when we speak? Have you seen, time and time again, grow angry because a child in the same tone for reply that she herself had used for reproof? Yes, it does sound different when in the lips of a child. Whatever we're going to demand of the children let us also demand of ourselves!

Above all, let us be patient. Ten minutes of patience is worth ten hours of stormy commands and pleadings. Children are but children; do not be surprised if they make mistakes. Even in our maturity, we make mistakes, don't we? Think how much longer we've had to learn. An oak does not grow in a day. The perfect freedom may come very slowly but it will be the result of learning lessons of obedience.

ACID STOMACH IS DANGEROUS

Sufferers From Indigestion or Stomach Trouble CUT THIS OUT

"Stomach trouble, dyspepsia, indigestion, sourness, gas, heartburn, food fermentation, etc., are caused nine times in ten by chronic acid stomach," says a well known authority.

Burning hydrochloric acid develops in the stomach at an alarming rate. The acid irritates and inflames the delicate stomach lining and often leads to gastritis accompanied by dangerous stomach ulcers. Don't dose an acid stomach with pepsin or artificial digestents that only give temporary relief from pain by driving the sour, fermenting food out of the stomach into the intestines.

Instead, neutralize or sweeten your acid stomach after meals with a little hot water and Bisurated Magnesia and not only will the pain vanish but your meals will digest naturally. There is nothing better than Bisurated Magnesia, to sweeten and settle an acid stomach. It soaks up the harmful excess acid much as a sponge or blotting paper might and your stomach acts and feels fine in just a few minutes. Bisurated Magnesia can be obtained from any reliable druggist in either powder or tablet form. It is safe, reliable, easy and pleasant to use, is not a laxative and is not at all expensive.

Piles Disappear

No Cutting or Salves Needed

External treatments seldom cure Piles.

Nor do surgical operations.

The cause is inside—bad circulation.

The blood is stagnant, the veins flabby.

The bowel walls are weak, the parts almost dead.

To quickly and safely rid yourself of piles you must free the circulation—send a fresh current through stagnant pools. Internal treatment is the one safe method. Ointments and cutting won't do it.

J. S. Leonhardt, M. D., a specialist, set at work some years ago to find a real internal remedy for piles. He succeeded. He named his prescription HEM-ROID, and tried it in 1000 cases before he was satisfied. Now HEM-ROID is sold by druggists everywhere under guarantee. It is a harmless tablet, easy to take, and can always be found at Lee & Osgood Co., who will gladly refund the purchase price to any dissatisfied customer.

BINGHAM TO PAY FOR VIRGIN ISLANDS TRIP

Senator Hiram Bingham's trip to the Virgin Islands this month will be at his own expense, it was learned at his office in Washington Thursday, according to a special dispatch to the Hartford Times. A resolution by Senator Willis, of Ohio, providing for investigation of conditions there by a senatorial committee, failed of passage last Saturday, thus precluding the use of government funds for the expedition.

The Connecticut senator, in common with other members of the insular affairs committee, was represented as being so firmly of the belief that a first-hand inspection of conditions in the Islands was necessary that he is willing to pay his traveling expenses from his own pocket. Mrs. Bingham will accompany him.

The resolution providing for the investigation of conditions in the Virgin Islands received considerable attention from the senate on Saturday but was shelved following some jocular remarks by Senator Robinson of Arkansas who took the floor after Senator Bingham had spoken in favor of the bill and spoke against a proposal to include Porto Rico in the territory to be investigated.

Speaking on the Porto Rican proposal, Senator Bingham said that he hoped the scope of the investigation would not be extended, as Porto Rico had had a government for a long time "whereas the Virgin Islands matter is a very small proposition." He pointed out that there are less than 30,000 people there.

"They have never had a proper form of government and a committee could very properly finish up the work there in a very short period of time," said Senator Bingham, "whereas if we add Porto Rico to it and it is done properly and it ought not to be done at all unless it is done properly, it would take a long time and cost a great deal of money."

At this point Senator Robinson asked leave to address a question to Senator Willis of Ohio, sponsor for the resolution. Senator Robinson wanted to know when the proposed investigation was to take place and was told by Senator Willis that it was to be arranged so that the committee could report to the congress in December.

"In view of the fact that the elections are approaching in November, does the senator think he can escape from the campaign in Ohio long enough to go to the Virgin Islands?" asked Senator Robinson. "Does he not think he had better wait until after election, when he has been defeated for reelection, and then go to the Virgin Islands when he will have plenty of time?"

To this Senator Willis replied, "to relieve the agition of my friend," that the Ohio campaign would make it impossible for him to serve on the investigation committee. "I could not serve on the committee if appointed," said Senator Willis, "because of the requirements of the campaign to which the senator from Arkansas refers."

Senator Robinson then objected to the consideration of the resolution thus blocking further debate and the measure went over, necessitating the private enterprise which Senator Bingham now plans to make or no investigation at all.

During the discussion of the resolution Senator Pittman of Nevada announced that he had an amendment to offer. Senator Borah broke in with the remark that he hoped "the senator's amendment will include ceding the Islands to anybody who will take them."

Senator Pittman replied that he had not thought of that but "it would be a good thing."

It was contended that the Virgin Islands are being administered with gross injustice.

SUBMARINE FOR PERU TO BE LAUNCHED MONDAY

The submarine R-1, second of two undersea boats built for the Peruvian government at the yards of the New London Ship and Engine company, in Groton, will be launched next Monday morning at 11:15 o'clock daylight saving time, it was announced Thursday. The R-2, sister ship of the R-1, launched April 29, is now undergoing trials preparatory to being taken over by officers of the Peruvian republic. More than 550 invitations to attend the launching have been sent out. It is expected that besides officers of the Peruvian commission now at the shipyards, there will be a number of high Peruvian officials and diplomats and American officials present.

15 YEAR OLD BOY DROWNED IN YANTIC RIVER AT THE FALLS

The swimming hole in the Yantic river about 400 feet above the dam at the Chelsea Fire works claimed another victim Thursday afternoon about 5 o'clock when Henry Stecewicz, 15, son of Mr. and Mrs. Paul Stecewicz of 60 Roath street, was drowned.

The boy, with a companion swimmer, had swum across the river to a ledge on the southerly bank of the river and on his return had reached a pointed about 25 feet from shore when he was evidently seized with cramps and disappeared beneath the water. Children on the bank saw him go under and his companion, whose name could not be learned, made a try at a rescue when the youth's head appeared at the surface, but he was unable to reach the body in time.

The family of the young man was immediately notified and information of the drowning was sent to the police. Sergeant Myron Morgan and Officers Frank Gwiezdowski, Michael Pounch, John O'Neil and Patrick Murphy were sent to the river to search for the body. The fire department was also appealed to and Deputy Chief Henry R. Taft went to the river with two power searchlights which were used for hours after dark to assist those dragging for the body.

A number of young men assisted in the attempt at rescue and it is alleged that one of them, John Wall of Roath street, saw the body nearly at midstream but was unable to reach it. Dragging at this point failed to bring up the body however.

An appeal was made to the mill officials to open the gates and draw off the water. One of the gates was thrown partly open and by midnight the water was down about half way. The drawing off is to be continued until morning, when, it is hoped, divers will be able to reach the body provided it was not found during the night.

During the evening Sergeant John T. Casey went to the river to relieve Sergeant Morgan and take charge of the search and he, with Officer Gwiezdowski and assistants to man the oars, continued the search into this (Friday) morning.

Henry Stecewicz was born in Norwich, August 27, 1910, the son of Mr. and Mrs. Paul Stecewicz of No. 60 Roath street. He received his early education at Broadway grammar school and had finished one year at the Norwich Free Academy at the time of his death. The boy was a promising young musician, being one of the advanced pupils for piano study with a Hartford instructor. He was very popular among the younger set of the city and a good student. The news of his tragic death came as a shock to his many friends in the city and expressions of sincere sorrow were made for the parents and brothers and sisters who are left to mourn the loss of a beloved son and brother.

Surviving the boy are his parents and four sisters and four brothers: Mrs. William Suchocki of Stonington and the Misses Stella, Ida and Nellie Stecewicz of Norwich; Walter of Torrington, Edmund of Groton, Nicholas of Montville and Charles Stecewicz of Norwich; also several nieces and nephews.

Body Found in Early Morning

After nearly nine hours of continuous dragging for the body of Stecewicz, it was recovered at 1:45 o'clock this (Friday) morning about 15 feet from the point where the boy was seen to disappear. The boat bringing in the body was in charge of Sergeant Casey, Officer Pounch and Paul Banas of 149 Sachem street, who had been dragging in that section for over four hours.

Medical Examiner Dr. C. C. Glidersleeve was notified by Captain Thomas Murphy, of the recovery of the body and upon arrival at the river, he allowed the body to be taken in charge by Undertakers Shea & Burke. A verdict of death by accidental drowning was given by Medical Examiner Glidersleeve, evidently caused by the boy having been seized with cramps while swimming across the river.

WILLIAMS AGAIN HEADS PUBLIC WELFARE DEPARTMENT

HARTFORD, July 8.—(AP)—Dr. George C. F. Williams, of this city was re-elected president of the state department of public welfare at the annual meeting today at the capitol and Charles P. Kellogg, of Waterbury, was re-elected secretary. Mr. Kellogg begins his new term after more than 30 years of service with the department and its predecessor the old state board of charities.

Seven licenses for boarding homes for the aged were granted at the meeting to Miss Beatrice Ruffle, Stratford; Mrs. A. J. Patterson, Middletown; Mrs. A. Crosson, Meriden; Mrs. Sidney Clark, Essex; Mrs. Margaret Winmer, Danbury; Mrs. Anna Gillett, Willimantic; Mrs Evelyn Price, Tolland. A renewal was also granted the Leonard home and sanatorium at Essex.

Upon recommendation of Commissioner Charles E. Dow, of the bureau of child welfare, several boarding homes for children were licensed, including Mrs. Anna Alstadt, Norwich; Mrs. Leonard Main, Jr., North Stonington. License renewals were allowed Mrs. Grace Foote, of Watertown and the Watkinson school of this city and children's village, and the Hartford Orphan asylum, on Albany avenue.

Mrs. Martha H. C. Mitchell, of Norwich, reported on an inspection visit to the Connecticut reformatory at Cheshire, where 314 boys are now inmates and where conditions were found exceptionally good. She also reported on a visit made with Mr. Kellogg to the Connecticut state hospital and Long Lane farm, Middletown. At the latter institution a new two story fireproof cottage is being erected and a new laundry building is nearing completion, which will add much to the facilities.

The women's building at the state hospital, known as the south hospital, was reported as very crowded.

Commissioner Dow's report for the month showed that courts of the state acted on the cases of 44 children, whose commitments to county homes was sought, in addition to 39 whose cases were pending. Twenty-five were committed, 36 were provided for by other arrangements through the child welfare bureau, and the other cases are still pending.

The bureau had 1,079 children under its supervision at the end of June. During the month 47 were placed in family homes. Bureau workers made 1,909 visits in the interests of the children.

Secretary Kellogg, who has just returned from Philadelphia, told of the exhibit which has been arranged by the department in the Connecticut building at the exposition.

EMPLOYMENT APPLICATIONS INCREASE AT NORWICH

HARTFORD, July 8.—(AP)—Employment conditions in the state during June remained about the same as in the previous month, according to a report issued today by Commissioner Harry E. Mackenzie on the activities of the five free employment bureaus conducted by the state department of labor. A total of 4,785 persons applied for situations during the month, but five less than applied during May.

These applications included 1,224 at the Hartford office; 967 at New Haven; 1,063 at Bridgeport; 910 at Waterbury, and 624 at Norwich. The greatest increase was at Norwich, while there were decreases at both Hartford and Waterbury.

The bureaus were able to place 3,351 or 75 per cent of all applicants, an increase of about 4 per cent over the total of situations secured the previous month. Employers made 3,550 applications for workers, approximately 300 less than in May.

HEALY NOT RESPONSIBLE FOR "FAMILY" LIQUOR TRANSFER

HARTFORD, July 8.—(AP)—Attorney General Frank E. Healy declines to assume responsibility for the transportation of intoxicating liquors into Connecticut and has declared that there must be a federal investigation of proposed transfers from other states before he will give his consent as required in a recent ruling by General Lincoln C. Andrews, head of the national prohibition enforcement officials.

The liquors involved in the ruling are only those where it is made clearly to appear that they are in fact bona fide pre-prohibition "family liquors." The recent so-called Reed amendment to the prohibition law makes it unlawful to transport liquors in interstate commerce except for scientific, sacramental, medicinal or mechanical purposes. This necessitated a special ruling on "family" liquors and General Andrews decided that the consent of the attorney general of the state into which the liquor were to be moved must be obtained.

"There is no legal authority in Connecticut making it the duty of the attorney general to grant consent for the transfer of liquors into this state," he said in a letter to Deputy Prohibition Administrator Frank T. Putney. "Nor is there any authority," he continues, "whereby the attorney general can investigate the merits of any particular case that may arise."

Mr. Healy says, however, that he is willing to co-operate with Mr. Putney's department in any case which the latter approves. This must be with the "understanding that you or your associates have made a complete investigation and upon the facts, it is your judgment that the application for the transfer of liquor into Connecticut should be granted."

Since the ruling by General Andrews that the consent of the attorney general of the incoming state must be secured before liquors can be transferred, Mr. Healy's office has been besieged with requests for transfers. Mr. Putney and the attorney general have had several interviews on the subject and Mr. Healy's letter of today resulted.

TWO CONTRACTORS WORK ON DEEP RIVER PIPE LINE

Progress on the section of pipe line for the Deep River reservoir above the Gardner place at Yantic is still going at a slow rate as the contractor, H. W. Golden & Son, Inc., of Troy, N. Y., is running into rock ledges and boulders that slow up the operation of the trench digger. The work has now reached a point a short distance westerly from the farm once owned by William Tibbetts who disappeared so mysteriously in April, 1923, and has never been seen since.

The Troy contractor has about 6 miles of pipe to lay. His original contract covered from Yantic at the Norwich-Bozrah bridge over the Bozrah-Lebanon town line. To this has been added the pipe laying in the town of Norwich from the Yantic river at the East Great Plain bridge to connect with the place where he started work at the Gardner farm.

Better time is being made in the pipe laying by another contractor, whose contract is for about 1 1-2 miles of pipe westerly from the Bozrah-Lebanon town line. This contractor is using a steam shovel to excavate the trench and is following this up with a derrick and bucket scoop which fill in the trench after the pipe has been laid. The first section of pipe in this contract was laid on the fields off the road. It crosses to the south side of the road at the old rubber mill site and continues along the side of the road past the rubber mill pond, which is the point the work has reached now. A short distance westerly from the pond the pipe line leaves the highway and starts off through the fields toward the site of the dam.

NEW LONDON, July 8.—(AP)—United States Senator Hiram Bingham arrived here tonight from Washington aboard the steam yacht Felicia, owned by Senator Jesse Metcalf, of Rhode Island, who also was aboard. The yacht left Washington Saturday and cruised up the coast.

After landing here, Senator Bingham left immediately for his summer home at Salem where he will spend most of his vacation. The Felicia will sail for Newport tomorrow.

NORWICH-MADE ELECTRICITY NOW SOLD IN BOZRAH

The Norwich Gas and Electric department now has a customer for electricity in Bozrah, being the supplying agency for the Bozrah Electric company, which is already selling electricity in that town and is extending its pole lines.

A meter at Yantic records the amount of electricity which the Bozrah company distributes by retail to its customers. The Bozrah company is already serving between 50 and 75 families.

ALL-LEGHORN WEEK IN STORRS EGG LAYING

Production increased in the Storrs egg laying contest during the thirty-fifth week, the contest flock shelling out a total of 5201 eggs, or fifty-three per cent. This is an increase of 132 eggs when compared with the production for the preceding week and an increase of 301 eggs when compared with the corresponding week a year ago. A grand total of 181,026 eggs have been laid in the first thirty-five weeks of the competition. This is an average of 115 eggs per bird.

This was an "All-Leghorn" week so far as the honor roll was concerned, seven representatives of the breed taking all positions. First place was held jointly by the entries of Dudley Poultry Farm from Webster, Mass., and R. W. Colman from Medina, N. Y., each with a score of fifty-nine eggs. Second place was taken by the pen owned by Adam Glass from Mobile, Ala., with a score of fifty-seven eggs. The entries of Hanson's Leghorn Farm from Corvallis, Ore., and Ernest H. Scott from Unionville, Conn., tied for third place with a production of fifty-three eggs each. Following close behind to take fourth place with a score of fifty-two eggs each were the entries of C. T. Darby from North Branch, N. J., and Charles Butler, from Darien, Conn. It is interesting to note that of the sixteen pens on the honor roll for the thirty-fifth and thirty-fourth weeks, they were, with one exception, all White Leghorns. As a breed the Leghorns are now laying almost sixty per cent.

The Rhode Island Red entry of John Z. LaBelle from Ballouville, Ct., which since the ninth week has been leading the contest, will probably be passed next week by the White Leghorn entry of Toivonen Farm from Girard, Pa. The Connecticut Reds have a total production of 1655 eggs to their credit, which is fifteen eggs more than the score of the Pennsylvania Leghorns. The latter are shelling out the eggs at a much faster clip, however, and they will probably go to the front this week. Two changes took place among the leading pens, the first of which was in the Barred Rock class, when the entry of R. W. Davis & Sons from Rockland, Me., went into third position, displacing the entry of W. H. B. Kent from Cazenovia, N. Y. In the Rhode Island Red class, the entry of Fabry Bros., from East McKeesport, Pa., went into fourth position, displacing the entry of George B. Treadwell from Spencer, Mass.

Until further notice, the radio reports of the Storrs Egg Laying Contest will be broadcast from station WTAC on Tuesday at 12 o'clock, noon, eastern standard time, instead of Monday evening.

The leading pens in each of the principal varieties are, as follows:

PUBLIC UTILITIES' EARNINGS INCREASED BY $5,559,888

HARTFORD, July 8.—(AP)—Earnings of public utilities companies in Connecticut increased $5,559,888 in 1925 to a new high total of $137,123,402.84, indicating one of the most prosperous years in their history, according to a certification made to the state treasury by State Tax Commissioner Blodgett for the state board of equalization.

A tax of $3,743,882.07 on these earnings will be payable to the state July 15, exceeding last year's tax by $256,-057.35. The amount will be the largest annual tax collected from these companies by the state.

Among the companies are the steam and street railroads; telephone and telegraph companies; express companies; gas and electric, electric, electric and power, water power and railroad car companies.

The first tax on the receipts of public service motor bus companies is included in this year's assessments, under a law passed by the 1925 general assembly. The reports made by the companies operating in Connecticut only, reveal that the combined fare receipts or

WOMEN VOTERS LEAGUE CONVENTION IN NEW HAVEN

The executive board of the Connecticut League of Women Voters has accepted an invitation from the New Haven league to hold the sixth annual convention of the organization in that city and has set November 8, 9 with 10 as tentative dates, according to an announcement made Thursday. A departure from the usual two-day program will be made this year in an effort to give ample time for the adoption of a legislative policy for the year of 1927 it is said.

Last year the convention, meeting in Hartford, failed to adopt any definite legislative program on such problems as child labor, jury service for women and the 48 hour week. Miss Mary Bulkeley of Hartford, president of the state organization, will soon appoint committees on arrangements. Mrs. Henry H. Townsend, of New Haven, has been prominent in sponsoring the plan to meet in New Haven.

WATERBURY, July 8.—(AP)—Michael Simonavich, his wife and their two sons, Edward, 20 months, and Bernard, one month old, were put out of their apartment at 542 Baldwin street here tonight, according to police. The family was housed at police headquarters for the night.

TWILIGHT LEAGUE MEETING PROVES HECTIC AFFAIR WITH MANY ARGUMENTS

The Twilight league meeting held last night proved to be every bit as lively as was expected and at times looked like the last meeting that the Norwich Twilight league would enjoy this season. To hear the rival managers hurl different accusations at each other it looked as if the meeting would end in a free-for-all. To have heard the boys any one would have thought that the championship of the world was at stake and that the only way to settle it was to argue over it. Three players were accused of crookedness although everything was done to find out whether or not the penalty or not, circumstances was all that could be proven which it was decided was not the case. It is the majority of the managers present that the penalty should be severe enough to punish, claiming that a fine was insufficient, came near breaking up the league, but finally after much arguing and threatening it was decided to place the players on probation for the time being and let them out of the league if there was definite proof of crookedness.

LATZO AND LEVINE BOUT AT POLO GROUNDS TONIGHT

NEW YORK, July 8.—(AP)—The third welterweight championship battle in less than two months tomorrow night calls upon Pete Latzo, of Cranton to take his newly won crown into the ring of the National League baseball park against a skillful New York boxer, George Levine, over the regulation title route of fifteen rounds.

Prevailing odds are 9 to 5 on the champion, Latzo already holds one verdict over his challenger, a decision gained last year. His record supports a boast that he has invariably made use of an initial test with a fighter to exhibit improved form against the same boxer in a return battle. But more important than these things to critics is the impressive start Latzo made as champion by his sensational knockout victory over Willie Harmon last week at Newark, N. J.

Levine, who came to the front line of the challenging field by triumphs over Tommy Milligan, British champion, and Jack Zivic of Pittsburgh, pins chief hope for victory on ability to outspeed and outbox the titleholder.

Reports came from camps of the two men today that each had successfully reduced to the weight limit of 147 pounds, although the champion attained the mark by a more rigorous routing of training than his challenger.

FINANCIAL TANGLE OF BRAVES IS SOLVED

BOSTON, July 8.—(AP)—A financial tangle resulting from irregularities with the turnstiles at Braves field has been solved, President Emil E. Fuchs, president of the Boston National league baseball club announced today. President Fuchs announced the retirement of Edwin L. Riley, secretary of the club, stating that he would be succeeded by Edmund P. Cunningham, sporting editor of the Boston Traveler.

Mr. Fuchs statement indicated that the incident was now a "closed book" and that no arrest would be made. He said that irregularities had been discovered and that "the employe involved admitted being entirely responsible for such irregularities and improper conditions."

Asserting that "unfortunate situation" had now been solved, Mr. Fuchs said, "we believe it would serve no good purpose to further comment on same or to make any further statement."

Mr. Fuchs was emphatic in declaring that it had been shown that "everyone connected with the game of baseball was giving his best, conscientious, honest efforts in the playing of the game itself and in all other respects to the Braves."

Mr. Riley has been for years, a prominent figure in Boston baseball circles. He was for 12 years secretary of the Red Sox. In 1916 he became connected with the Braves.

JUNIOR TWILIGHT LEAGUE TO BE RE-ORGANIZED

A reorganization of the Jr. Twi league was effected at a meeting of the managers held this week. The Nordics and Rubes have withdrawn from the league so that there are now but four teams, namely the Centennials, Bearcats, Brassco and Gas and Electric left to finish out the schedule. A new schedule will be drawn up.

The game this evening in the Jr. Twi league at the Academy campus will bring together the Brassco and Bearcats. The Bearcats league leaders at the present time are expected to have their strongest lineup in the fray. Dudek will probably pitch for the Bearcats with Lamory catch. The Brassco will also present a powerful lineup and either McGlorie or Johntowe will pitch with Tombari catch.

The game will start at 6:30 p. m. sharp.

HERRUPS CLASH WITH VELVETMEN ON SUNDAY

On Sunday the club to oppose the Velvetmen will be the fast Herrup baseball team of Hartford. This club has made its appearance in this town for the last two or three seasons playing wonderful brand of ball and also defeating some of the best teams in the state. "Chet" Waite, former eastern league player, is now managing this club and has made a few changes which has strenghtened his team. The locals will have to be on their pins throughout the game to come out on the large end of the score. On the pitching staff will be "Ginger" Cleary and "Porky" Flynn with Jardine doing the backstop work. Other well known faces which will appear in the lineup will be "Jigger" Farrell, Caron and Webb. Both complete lineups will appear in tomorrow's paper.

Baltic Accepts Challenge

Editor:—

Replying to the challenge from the Yantic Ball Club appearing in Thursday morning's issue of the Bulletin We accept the challenge to play Yantic on the Yantic Diamond on Sunday, July 11th, and have covered the fifty dollars posted by Yantic. Why is Yantic so conceited about their ball nine? The fact that they have defeated such weak teams as Fitchville and the Rubes does not necessarily say they can defeat a real ball nine such as will be produced by Baltic. If Yantic hands us a trimming we will admit they have a real team. Remember, Yantic, that the team which will play you Sunday is an entirely different team than you defeated several weeks ago.

Yours for the sport,
RED SHARON.

BILL MELHORN SETS RECORD IN FIRST ROUND OF NATIONAL OPEN GOLF TOURNEY

COLUMBUS, Ohio, July 8.—(AP)—Bill Mehlhorn of Chicago today set a record of 33 for the first nine and of 68 for the 6,736 yard course of the Scioto Country club in the first round of the National open golf championship.

Mehlhorn got the lead of the 151 starters by only two strokes, for Bobby Jones of Atlanta, American amateur and British open titleholder, tallied two splendid 35s' for a 70, or one under par on each half. His golf was a mixture of brilliancy and human frailty, as he went over par on three holes only to make good the deficiency and even gain two strokes with three birdies and an eagle three on the 480-yard eighth.

Just as everyone had decided that Mehlhorn and Jones stood alone with 70 or better and twilight was falling over the links word was waited to the scorers that John H. Junor of Portland, Oregon, open titleholder was coming with a birdie four for another 70. He was in the last pair to finish, but despite the fading twilight and the knowledge that he had to score four on a dodleg hole of 480-yards, the Westerner slammed his shots home and got a pair of 35's just like the British open champion.

No one had counted on Junor, as he had never played in a national meet before, although he is 23 years old and came to America 20 years ago from Aberdeen, Scotland. Junor recently won the Northwestern open title with a 291 at Spokane and before that had finished second in the Oregon open.

Al Espinosa of Chicago and Joe Turnesa of New York, lacked only one putt each of halving Jones' total, each going out in 35 and coming home in par thirty six.

Leading a quintet who scored par 72, was Willie MacFarlane of New York, defending champion, who took one off perfect figures on the out nine, but was one worse coming in. His par score was tied by John Collins of Kokomo, Ind. Dan Williams, Pat Doyle and Leo Diegel of New York. Doyle came within a stroke of Mehlhorn's record 33 for the first half, but took 38 on the second. Collins, Williams and Diegel equalled perfect figures on both halves.

Walter Hagen kept even with par through many holes by balancing rare slips and birdies, but he finally had to chip dead out of a bunker for a birdie four on the home hole to get 37 for the in nine, totalling 73 to tie for ninth place with Tom Harmon of New York, and James Gullane of Colorado Springs.

From this point the scores ranged up through some sixty players to eighty, and three were a goodly number who went far beyond that barrier of good golf.

In an opening championship. A few even got the 90's although only a couple admitted it by turning in their cards. Among the withdrawals were Peter O'Hara of Australia and Austers Claeyssens of Waukegan, Ills., who could not get going on the tricky course.

The Greens were very fast, and over approaches were common. It was this fault that caused Jim Barnes, formerly American and British open titleholder, to take 77, while Mac-Donald Smith, Western open champion, who was favored by many for the victor, not only had trouble on the greens but all the way, totalling an unbelievable 82.

Next to Jones, the best amateurs were Jack Westland of Seattle, Densmore, Schute, West Virginia, champion, and Chick Evans of Chicago. Westland scored 39-36-72 while the others got under par with 35 on the outward trip but each stumped to 40 on the return, the second half showing higher scores than the first on nearly all cards. Only one strike behind this pair was Keefe Carter of Oklahoma City, western amateur champion. Tied with Carter were such well known stars at Johnnie Farrell, Willie Klein and Bobby Cruickshank, White Cyril Walker and Gene Sarazens former titleholders, who took 78. George Von Elm of Los Angeles, who played so well abroad, took 78 as did Clarence Wolff of St. Louis, who teamed with Jones.

The biggest upset was the 80 made was runner-up to Jones in the British by Al Watrous of Grand Rapids who open. He was all over the lot and could not steady himself. In Watrous' class also was Eddie held of St. Louis.

Trans-Mississippi champion who could do no better than 82. Much worse even was Roland Mackenzie of Washington, who took 87. Jock Hutchinson, first American to win the British open had a bad 82. It was really a contest for first place between Jones and Mehlhorn, for Bobby was just starting as Bill finished. When the sturdy medalist of the day stepped from the applauding crowd, Jones asked him whether he were trying to make it hard for the rest of the field.

"I did the best I could, so you would not beat it," replied Mehlhorn smiling.

"We'll have to wait to see," retorted Bobby as he inhaled a drive far down the first fairway. The British open champion got a par on the second, but the shots did not all come off as planned thereafter. He had "to work like a dog" all the way, as he expressed it when the round was over.

Jones after getting in a trap at the third and going one above par and visiting the rough for a like score on the fifth, bagged a birdie four on the 480-yard eighth. He drove 260 most spectacular play of the day on 550 yard sixth and then pulled the yards down the middle and plunked a long iron five feet from the pin, whence he holed an eagle three.

He was pretty steady for the next three holes, but a rough trap at the 13th green cost him a stroke, which he recovered with a birdie three on the 355 yard 15th, where he sank a 35 foot putt. He all but winged a second eagle on the 480 yard home hole when his first putt of 30 feet grazed the cup.

Mehlhorn would have been but one up in match play against Jones, for he took par five on the eighth to Bobby's eagle three and he messed up the baby ninth, taking four. His score was neck and neck with Bobby's for the first five holes of the second half, but he got no better than par on the 15th, although he did not have so long a putt for a birdie as Bobby did.

Mehlhorn evened by snatching a birdie two on the 135 yard 17th where he pitched dead and plunked the putt home. Like Jones he was home on two at the 18th and got a half in birdie four.

The second eighteen holes tomorrow will weed out all but the sixty players having lowest scores and the fir sixtieth place. The survivors will add their scores for 36 holes on Saturday to those of today and tomorrow for the final tabulation.

The leaders today follow:

Bill Mehlorn, Chicago, 33-35—68.

Danny Makes a Home

Who has no duty and no care
Can make a home most anywhere.
—Old Mother Nature.

The bathhouse under which Danny Meadow Mouse had found shelter, and where he found Jimmy Skunk also, was well up on the beach. Back of it were sand dunes. Back of these sand dunes was what seemed like an old pasture, and this in turn ended on the edge of a great marsh. Just a little way from the bathhouse this marsh came almost to the sand dunes. All this Danny learned in course of time. But for the rest of that first day he was quite satisfied to remain under the bathhouse, especially when he found that Jimmy Skunk was quite good-natured and had no intention of harming him. In fact, Jimmy seemed more concerned about getting a good sleep than anything else. He curled up in a little hollow in the sand in the darkest corner and in no time at all was fast asleep.

But Danny couldn't sleep. It was all so new and strange that he just couldn't sleep. He did wish that jolly, round, bright Mr. Sun would hurry up and go to bed. He wanted to go exploring and he knew he wouldn't feel safe a minute in broad daylight. Every little while he poked his nose out from under the bathhouse to see if the Black Shadows had come.

When the first Black Shadow reached the bathhouse Danny gave a little sigh of thankfulness. Then he crept out. For a moment he sat there, testing the Merry Little Breezes. It was funny, but they left the same taste on his lips that he had found in the water when he had tried to get his first drink at the seashore. Every time he ran his tongue along his lips he tasted salt. He rather liked it.

Keeping where it was darkest, Danny scrambled up a sand dune. It was the hardest scrambling he ever had done in his life. You see, he kept sliding back almost as fast as he went up. When at last he did get to the top he was all out of breath and his legs ached. He found on top the queerest grass he ever had seen. It didn't grow like the grass he was used to. The blades were far apart and were stiff and coarse; and when he tried eating one he didn't like it. It had a sharp edge. It didn't grow close enough together to hide him and he felt very uncomfortable.

So as soon as he could get his breath Danny kept on. By and by he went down on the back side of the sand dune and came to what he called "real land." The grass was short, but it was real grass. There were patches of bushes. In fact, it was much like the Old Pasture. Danny felt more comfortable. Presently on the edge of this where it joined the marsh, he found an old log partly covered with dry seaweed. The old log was hollow, but the opening was very small. No one bigger than Danny could get in. Danny went in and gave a little sigh of thankfulness. He rested a while. Then he started to make himself a bed inside that hollow log. He carried in some bits of dry seaweed and some of the softest dry grass he could find. When he had his bed completed he felt that he was quite at home.

"Now," said he in that funny, little voice of his, "I've got a new home at the seashore, and I'm going to find out what it is like around here. I'm not going to be lonesome, because there is so much to see. I need just one thing to make me feel really at home."

Just then he heard a sniff at the end of the log, and he smelled a very familiar scent. It was the scent of a Fox. Yes, sir, that's what it was! He knew that already a Fox had discovered where he was. Danny chuckled down inside. "Now," said he, "I feel perfectly at home."

Socony Believes in Service for its Customers

SOCONY services its millions of customers in thousands of ways.

Socony pumps are everywhere in New York and New England.

But back of every pump is a wide-flung organization whose only aim is to produce and distribute the very best gasoline possible.

From the first drop of crude to the last drop of fuel there is no deviation in skill or diligence, no failure in service.

Millions of discriminating motorists know this. They appreciate the fact that like the Socony tradition, Socony Gasoline is also Uniform in Quality—Best in Results.

"It's an old saying that blood and breeding count. And it's just as true when applied to gasoline as to children. That's why I am proud of Socony Gasoline, because I know that its lineage is sound and good—built on character, the result of 52 years' experience in the making and marketing of petroleum products.

"Incidentally, I hope you'll use the Socony Touring Service, Room 1211, 26 Broadway, New York City. Free Socony maps and touring information for the asking."

MEN! Read This Advertisement to Your Profit! This Factory End Sale Will Help You Economize. Don't Miss It!

THE PORTEOUS & MITCHELL CO.

NOTE: Some of the Greatest Savings of the Factory End Sale are in the Departments Devoted to Wearing Apparel for Women and Children.

OUR ANNUAL FACTORY END SALE

Will Begin Saturday Morning, July 10th, At 8:30

The Basis For This Sale

This Factory End Sale is a regular feature of our store policy fixed in our business calendar, because it renders a genuine service to the public.

In June, when prices are at low ebb in the wholesale market—our buyers go into the market and secure merchandise that is up to our standards of requirements—and the result of our efforts is contained in this page advertisement of extraordinary values.

At the same time we clear our own stocks of goods that are of the same grade and character as the market offerings. That is the policy back of the Factory End Sale—the reason why this Sale excels all other Sales of the year in big savings.

Then, come on the opening day of the Sale—Saturday—and get YOUR first pick. All goods go on Sale Saturday and continue throughout the week following. With stocks as large as ours there is enough for many days' active selling.

Read carefully this page advertisement, then make out a shopping list of the things you expect to buy—and plan to visit the entire store from floor to floor.

Lincoln's Rule

(Written Specially for The Bulletin)

"I do the very best I know how; the very best I can; and I mean to keep doing so until the end. If the end brings me out all right, what is said against me won't amount to anything. If the end brings me out wrong, ten angels swearing I was right would make no difference."

Thus Abraham Lincoln's answer to some of his critics who, when things seemed to be going wrong all along, one time besieged him with demands that he change his policy and do this, that or the other,—anything so long as it was different.

Seems to me, reading it over, that it sets forth a pretty good line for lesser men to follow.

You'll notice that he proposed three things:

First, to "do the very best I know how;"

Second, to do "the very best I can;"

Third, to "keep doing so until the end."

In other words his program included the fullest knowledge he could obtain from any and all sources; then the translation of that knowledge into the best action his ability permitted; and last the sticking to it until the event proved him either right or wrong.

In still other words,

First, the Know-how;

Second, the Do-it;

Third, the everlasting Stick-to-it.

Lincoln was thinking of problems of state, involving the welfare of all the millions of his countrymen and the more millions then unborn. Our troubles are comparatively minor. But, if his rule was a good one for big affairs, why shouldn't it work in small? Can't the kitten go in at a door big enough for the old cat?

Up in my neck o' woods this has been a terribly depressing season for farmers. We didn't get April till mid-June, skipped May altogether, and aren't quite sure yet whether winter has finally let go for good. When the usual time for plowing arrived the ground was frozen solid and much of it snow covered. Sowing and planting were delayed week after week. When finally people got some seeds in it seemed as if they'd never come up. Corn, which usually shows the rows eight or ten days after planting, didn't so much as stick a shoot above ground for three weeks. When it at last ventured into the air it looked yellow and feeble. Same with most other crops. They came up slowly and imperfectly, grew timidly, and had to meet three ice-making frosts in June, one as late as the 20th.

Under these conditions farmers saw their hopes of decent crops dwindle, one by one. A few have plowed up their sorry cornpatches and sowed buckwheat. Others are cultivating and coddling, hoping against hope for something to happen to help out.

Monday, July 5. I drove by 19 fields of corn and not a single one was any better if as good as it would have been on June 5 of a normal year. Potatoes are also late and unthrifty looking. Oats are thin and straggly. Hay promises less than half a normal cut. Fall-sown rye looks the best of anything I've noted. We make no attempt at growing wheat.

Taking all things by and large, my farmer neighbors are decidedly blue. They're up against it hard.

Well, it's in just such emergencies that Lincoln's rule comes into play. What is the harassed farmer to do? Why, the best he knows how, the best he can,—and stick to it.

He isn't required to do always the very best thing possible. He may not know and may not be able to find out what that best possible thing is. He isn't all-wise, to see the end from the beginning and to know, before the kitten is born, how the cat will jump.

But he is required to know or to find out all he can. He isn't expected to get a gallon into a pint cup or know as much as a Newton or an Edison. But he either knows or can find out some things if he really wants to. And his responsibility measures up to the full amount of that which he does know, or can know by inquiring.

Mighty few farmers could analyse a teacupful of their farm soil and tell just what elements it contained and just what proportion of each. They aren't required to. All the same, they know quite a few practical details about that soil and how to manage it to get results. Very well: that knowledge it is their place to use to the fullest extent. Further, if some one else attainable has a fuller knowledge and is willing to impart it, they are throwing away their own chances if they don't get pointers from him. I don't care whether that chap is a college professor or a hired hand on a neighboring farm. If he knows anything about managing land which I don't know and is willing to tell me, it is my place to learn it.

That's why I have small patience with those who always sneer at what they call "book-farmin'". The farmed who won't learn from a book,—if it has anything worth while to teach him,—is just exactly as unreasonable as the farmer who undertakes to guide his entire work on a Hardscrabble farm by rules laid down in some book for the management of a Connecticut valley tobacco ranch.

"Can any good come out of Galilee?" asked certain Pharisees. There could and there did. If I am puzzled by some problem and sorely need knowledge about it, I'll welcome that knowledge, from whatever source it comes. I certainly won't refuse to take it from a neighbor who has found his way out of the maze. Nor from a book, if the book will throw any light. Much of the criticism of "book farmers" is due, not to their seeking help from books, but to their making books the sole resort and final lawgiver. It is as silly to follow them blindly as it is to imitate exactly the routine of some neighbor. The wise farmer gets all the information, all the knowledge, all the instruction he can, and then digests it for his own uses.

I never yet saw a farmer who knew it all,—though I've met some who seemed to think they did. In truth, I never yet saw a really good farmer who didn't admit that he knew too little and didn't wish he knew more.

Then, when the best attainable knowledge has been gained, it is to be translated into action. It's not enough to know the right road. Following it is of equal importance. And here again no farmer is to be blamed for inability to carry his knowledge into full effect. We are made of differing capacities. What is an easy load to some is an impossible burden to others. The good traveller not only fits the saddle to the horse, but also the pack to his own back.

It isn't required of any of us that we should always do the ideally best thing. But it is asked that we do the nearest to that which we can. One may conceivably know a better way to farm it than he is physically or financially able to manage. He must take his own limitations into full consideration,—and then do the best he can.

They used to tell of a headstone somewhere in the wild and woolly west which read "He did his d - - - dest." "- - - cow-boy English for "He did his best." Archangels can do no more. Nor is anyone, from archangel down, asked to do more.

Most important of all to farmer or to statesman is the determination, after having devotedly sought the widest knowledge, and assiduously done the best he can to act on that knowledge, to stick doggedly at it until the end. It is no time to change pilots when crossing the bar. When the course has been plotted with the utmost attainable wisdom and all possible efforts put forth to keep that course, safety and common sense urge its persistent maintenance.

The first thing is to find out what it is best to do; the second is to do it; the third is to stick at it to the end. We've all heard of hop-toads who kept jumping "from pillar to post." We've all known farmers who began bravely and worked industriously for a while, and then gave up in despair. And we've some of us known farmers who, when the clouds were blackest, simply worked the harder. When the outcome seemed most hopeless, they spit on their hands, took fresh holds and put in their best licks.

Men who don't know when they're beaten, who won't accept defeat, who deliberately determine that, if they must fail, they will fall fighting,—such men sometimes come home at night-fall bearing full sheaves and wearing the victor's crown. In many, many cases the battle is not to the strong, nor the race to the swift, but to those who resolutely, indomitably, doggedly keep pegging away,—doing the best they know how, the best they can, and "until the end."

It's a current belief that it's always darkest just before dawn. We all know moreover, that "while there's life there's hope." A cold, backward spring and a frost-tearing June may be followed by a glorious summer and an open fall, to push belated crops along and give them time to mature. We never know beforehand what cards Nature has up her sleeve. Her capacity for evil is no greater than her capacity for good. We may have good weather way up into October. If we do, the man who has kept on doing his best, the best he knows and the best he is able, and has stuck to it in the face of depressing conditions, will have the laugh on his neighbor who gave up the fight because it seemed to be going against him.

If, on the other hand, we're all doomed to a year of farming failure because of uncontrollable weather conditions, the man who has kept everlastingly at it won't be any worse off than the coward who dropped his hoe and gave up without an effort. Indeed, he will be reasonably sure to have saved more out of the wreckage.

And, to hungry men, half a loaf is admittedly better than no bread.

THE FARMER.

Plans are being made for the restoration of the old irrigation system of river-fed canals, which was the basis of the ancient prosperity of the Tigris and Euphrates valleys. It is estimated that double the area of the fertile Nile valley could be reclaimed by irrigation in Iraq. According to an estimate by the engineer commissioned to investigate the question, an expenditure of $6 an acre would yield a return of $81. The period within which such a return could be obtained is not stated in his report.

WESTERLY

START REMOVING ELMS TO WIDEN THE HIGHWAY
(Special to The Bulletin.)

WESTERLY, R. I., July 8—Work was begun Thursday morning taking down the three large elms in front of the Samuel Nardone house, 36 High street, the old Lemuel Vose property. The tree nearest Canal street by night had been entirely cut down, the trunk having been sawed off close to the ground. The work of removing the trees is being done under the supervision of Engineer A. L. Leon of Westerly Highway department, as ten feet, purchased by the town of Westerly to be taken into High street, is occupied by these three big elms. Due to much travel at this point both by pedestrians and automobiles, block and tackle was used in lowering the limbs as they were cut off, but in spite of obstructions in the nature of electric light, telephone and telegraph wires commendable progress was made. A crowd assembled to watch the operations from a safe distance up High street.

Recorded in the office of the Westerly town clerk are the following transfers:

July 7. William A. Wilcox, commissioner of the estate of Peleg Clarke, to Albert E. Brown of Charlestown, R. I., a parcel of land, 4315 square feet, lot No. 16, in Parcel No. 2.

William A. Wilcox, commissioner of the estate of Peleg Clark to Albert E. Brown, a lot of land, 5,100 square feet, Lot No. 19, in Parcel No. 2.

William A. Wilcox, commissioner of Estate of Peleg Clarke, to Simon E. Kinney and wife, Annie S. Kinney, parcel of land, 16,349 square feet, Lot No. 4, in Parcel No. 1.

On the board fence erected on Wednesday on the south side of the Pawcatuck river bridge, large advertising signboards made their appearance Wednesday afternoon. Early on Thursday morning on direction of Stonington selectmen, Pawcatuck Police Patrolman C. W. Brown notified the owner that they should be removed. George R. McKenna, of the Pawcatuck zoning board, made the discovery that these signs came within the jurisdiction of Stonington town authorities.

Bernard F. Hendel of New London, was given a fine of $15 and costs in the third district court before Judge Oliver H. Williams, Wednesday afternoon for peddling without a R. I. state license in Westerly. He was arrested with a truck reading "Five Sale," on Canal street, by Police Officer Fred Ferraro.

The Westerly Dental association held its annual meeting Tuesday evening in the Colonial club, High street, when Dr. John M. O'Connell was elected president. Other officers were elected as follows: Dr. Albert H. Spicer, vice president; Dr. Harold F. Doyle, secretary; Dr. R. H. Farnham, treasurer; Dr. Edwin Whitford, Ronald Dove and Dr. Archie Fain, members of the executive committee.

When Benjamin S. York, six-year-old son of Alfred B. York, 36 Liberty street, threw sand in a playmate's face Wednesday afternoon and started to cross the street, he stepped in the path of the auto operated by John L. Sullivan of Garden street, Pawcatuck, and although struck, escaped serious injury. The accident happened at about 4:30 o'clock when the child was playing in the street in front of his home. He was rushed to the office of Dr. W. A. Hillard, where an examination showed him to be suffering from bruises on the back of his head, on his left shoulder and on his forehead, over the right eye. The accident was investigated by Officer A. R. Sheldon and after the statements of several witnesses had been secured he attached no blame to the driver for the accident. It was said that the child was chasing a playmate across the street when he was struck.

The Westerly playgrounds, off High street, are now in full summer operation, having formally opened Tuesday. About 300 children, mostly residents of the north end, have visited the grounds daily thus far, according to estimates made by Director Herman F. Driggs. Mr. Driggs is assisted by Miss Ernestine Stocking, daughter of Rev. and Mrs. Marvin S. Stocking, who has been attending Boston university.

The playgrounds will be open every day, also in the evenings of Monday, Tuesday, Wednesday and Friday. A twilight baseball league for older boys of being organized by Director Driggs, who also is making plans for basketball and volleyball contests.

This summer children frequenting the playgrounds also have the use of showers in the Westerly High school field house.

NOANK

Boys from the village are having sport digging round clams at Palmer's Cove. Dan Robertson while getting across what he thought was a big rock found it to be a big round clam. When he reached Noank he weighed it at a fish market and it weighed 1 1-4 pounds. With two clams he had a clam chowder made for his dinner. In all he got 100, making a good day's work.

In the last inning Noank got its runs, Jackson walked the first man and the next man got a hit by the shortstop. Dinty Banks the big catcher hit the ball into right field and scored the two runs.

Steele struck out 15 men and allowed 2 hits while Jackson was found for only 4 hits and got 12 strike outs. Mahoney shortstop for the Collegians made a great catch, running toward center field and taking the ball over his right shoulder. The crowd cheered him for several minutes. Battery for Noank, C. Steele pitch, Dinty Banks, catch; West Mystic, Jackson, pitch, Moore, catch. Attendance, 100. Umpire, Deveau; scorer M. Beebe.

Count of Ten on Jazz

LONDON, July 8 (AP)—Jazz has been indicted on ten counts by Dr. Henry Coward, conductor of the Sheffield Musical union and one of England's most noted musicians.

Dr. Coward's reasons for its suppression are that it has:

Jingly tunes.
Jerky rhythms.
Blatant muted trumpets
Hooting.
Out-of-tune saxaphones.
Irritating plong-plongs by banjos.
Boisterous bangings of kitchen utensils.
Ceaseless commotion.
Atavistic tendencies.
Grotesque howlings.

The average girl is never satisfied until she acquires a son-in-law for her mother.

Discoveries showing the customs and culture of the Filipinos of 700 years ago have been made in excavations for the Novaliches dam. They include old bits of pottery of curious design, weapons, beads, bits of opal, old gold, jade, agate and glazed utensils. Professor H. O. Beyer, ethnologist and anthropologist of the University of the Philippines, said that the theory that the Filipinos in pre-Spanish times had a high degree of culture was again confirmed by the discoveries.

WM. ROWLEY, 83, LAST OF CO. H. MEMBERS DIES AT A NEW LONDON HOSPITAL

(Special to the Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, July 8—William Rowley, 83, one of the very few survivors of Company H, Tenth Connecticut Volunteers in the war of the rebellion of 1861-65, died today at Home hospital. If there is any other member of H company in this city he is unknown to persons informed as to the personnel of the company which was recruited here and to which Robert E. Leggett was the captain and William E. Perkins and Horace Quinn were lieutenants. The tenth saw hot fighting at Newburn, Island No. 10, Roanoke and elsewhere and was badly cut up in those conflicts. Rowley was a resident of Colchester when he enlisted, but at his death his home was in Waterford.

GILBERT STANSFIELD'S BODY RECOVERED BY SWIMMER

(Special to the Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, July 8—The body of Gilbert W. Stansfield, 29, formerly of Monson, Mass., who was drowned at Pleasure Beach Saturday afternoon was recovered this morning. It will be forwarded to Mr. Stansfield's home, where he is survived by his wife and [illegible]. This morning about 11 o'clock Robert Hutton of Pleasure Beach, was swimming. When near the big raft but a short distance from where Stansfield was drowned, he observed an object, which he believed, was a large stone. Upon closer scrutiny, Hutton determined that what he saw was not a stone, but the feet and legs of a man. Hutton recovered the body and after it was viewed by Medical Examiner Ross E. Black, it was removed to an undertaking establishment. Stansfield was drowned while swimming with Miss Lois Perkins. They had been in the water but about 20 minutes when Stansfield sank from view before Miss Perkins realized that her companion was drowning and before she could summon aid.

Harry Leroy Ward, Coast Guard sailor, who after stealing an auto that belonged to Earnest of Waterford left New London about a month ago, when arrested as a thief at Darien attempted to commit suicide by taking bichloride of mercury tablets, was brought here last night and this morning was presented in a sorry spectacle in the police court. He had been discharged from the coast guard when he committed the theft for medical reasons, and was intent on getting away from New London. Today he was weak from lack of food because his throat was affected by the poison so that he swallowed with difficulty and none but liquid food had been provided for him. Sergeant John J. Cavanaugh went to Stamford, where Ward was in a hospital, and accompanied him to this city, though Officer Cavanaugh had a task in getting Ward here. The latter was inclined to sleep and he was so weak that frequent stops were made. In court today the hearing of the case was continued to Friday. Dr. Cheney, the physician, had examined Ward and on his recommendation the accused man was in need of nutrition, so to allow him to recuperate he was committed to jail to remain till tomorrow. His bail was fixed at $1,000.

William E. Thomas, charged with assault with a knife, was presented for trial, but a man he had cut, John Hertzhaner, was not able to be in court. He was suffering from [illegible] wounds in the neck and on the [illegible]. The men were coast guard members and in that service they became involved in some sort of personal difficulty. Thomas had understood that the alleged enemy and a friend were to attack him, but no such thing occurred. Thomas is married and resides at 3 Beckwith street. He met his opponent on the street and there the meeting was done. Thomas expressed no regret for what had occurred and declared in court after his arraignment today that he would have shot his enemy had he possessed a revolver. Thomas declined to state what the trouble is between himself and Hertzchner. It is assumed that there is a woman in the case, but that is entirely assumption. Thomas is now held at the county jail, as he could not provide a bond in the sum of $3,000 for his appearance in court next Monday.

Newton Lamphere, fined $5 for intoxication, would not make an effort to secure the money he needed to settle with the court, nor did he want others to secure it. He was disgusted with himself and was willing to go to jail to work out his fine and the costs of his trial.

Lester Campany of 12 Front street; Robert Scott, Cambridge, Mass.; Michael Collins, 159 Ocean avenue, and Fay Donegan, 13 Cottage street, patients at Lawrence-Memorial hospital, were discharged today.

Edward Cruise of 382 Broad street, made complaint to the police last night, stating that John Higgins, 141 Park street, was making a nuisance of himself and was an annoyance to the neighborhood because of his boisterous conduct. Sergeant Patrick Murphy and Patrolman Frank Philopena were sent to the Higgins house and found the man complained against there. He was not making a disturbance and the officers reported that there was no need of his arrest.

A plate glass window in the automobile accessory store of John Buell, Reed street, was found smashed last night by Patrolman Edward Riordan. The break made it possible for anyone to remove stock from the window, so large was the break. Mr. Buell who resides in Waterford, could not be located.

Alma Connier, 14, and a Polish girl, of about the same age, who were reported to the New London police by the Norwich police as having run away from home yesterday afternoon with two sailors and whose arrest was requested in the event of the girls coming to New London, did not run away with sailors. It has been discovered that the girls came to New London and obtained employment at Ocean Beach. When this fact was established the request for the arrest of the girls was withdrawn.

Harry Ellis, 47, of Monson, Mass., employed by the Central Vermont railroad as freight brakeman, suffered a lacerated scalp last evening when struck by an overhead bridge. He is receiving treatment at Lawrence hospital. Ellis was riding a freight car as the train was passing through the East New London yard. He failed to notice the bridge, which spans the track at Sixth street and received a vigorous blow on the head. He was given emergency treatment and then admitted to the hospital.

Miss Virginia Latham, 16, of Willetts avenue extension, suffered lacerations of the face last night, when thrown through the windshield of the automobile in which she was riding with a friend but a short distance from her home. The driver of the automobile did not notice a large rock beside the edge of the macadam road with the result that one or the front wheels of the automobile struck the object. The jar caused Miss Latham to be thrown forward and through the glass, the sharp edges of which made numerous cuts in her face. She was admitted to Lawrence hospital where she will receive treatment for several days.

Stanley Meshaz, about 10, of Willimantic, heard so much about Ocean Beach that he decided yesterday he would visit New London and get a glimpse of this city's shore resort. He reached New London in some manner during the night and at 5:30 o'clock this morning he was found roaming about State street by Patrolmen John Foley. Realizing the unusual hour for the youngster to be about the streets, the officer questioned the boy and the latter unhesitatingly disclosed his mission in this city. The boy was taken to the police station and four hours later he was taken in charge by Probation Officer Richard W. Mansfield, who provided the lad with transportation to Willimantic.

Another batch of violators of the city's parking laws will be presented in the police court tomorrow morning. William F. Romzee, Walker Hill, Groton, and William O. Stuart, 74 Ledyard avenue, Groton, parked their automobiles on the west side of Meriden street, which is restricted area and they were ordered into court by Traffic Officer Clyde Murphy. Max Levine, 91 Chambers street, Boston, parked his automobile on the east side of Bank street, also restricted area, and was ordered into court by Patrolman George Perkins. Edgar J. Schoonmaker, Noank, parked his car on the west side of Meridian street, between Church and Federal street; he was ordered into court by Traffic Officer Clyde Murphy. Charles R. McClellan, Niantic, created a condition of blockade on State street and he was ordered into court by Traffic Officer Frank Linehan.

A woman residing on Bank street made complaint to the police this evening that during the afternoon a thief operated in her home and $10 was stolen from a bureau drawer. A young woman lodger at the place, married and with a family, was arrested by Patrolmen George Labous and Frank Philopena as a suspect, but she was later released as there was no evidence that she stole the money other than a statement made by a four year old son of the woman who lost the money. The boy at first declared that he saw the woman take the money from the drawer, but he contradicted himself so often that his statement was disregarded. The woman accused of the theft admitted being in the room where the money was taken, also stated that when the money was missed she partially disrobed and offered a further search of her person to be made so that no suspicion could be pointed at her as the thief, but the invitation to search her was not accepted.

John Dowling and Miss Rose Routelle, of Granite street, were married at 9 o'clock this morning at St. Joseph's church. The marriage was solemnized by Rev. William C. Fitzsimons and was witnessed by a large assemblage of relatives and friends. The bride was employed as clerk at the Union Bank & Trust company until a few days ago. Mr. Dowling is employed by the Connecticut Power company.

OSCAR LEE IGNORED THREE AUTOMOBILE LAWS

(Special to the Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, July 8.—Oscar Lee, R. F. D., No. 1, of Mystic, employed by the Howard Street Coal company, was arrested this afternoon by Traffic Officer Thomas Cavanaugh, charged with evasion of responsibility, driving an automobile with defective brakes and operating an automobile without registration. He will be presented in the police court tomorrow morning.

The coal company has a contract for furnishing the city with fuel for the coming winter and this afternoon coal was being carted to one of the schools. As the truck passed through Howard street with a load it collided with an automobile owned and driven by Carl A. Haughton, 183 High street, Hartford. Lee did not stop the truck, but continued toward his destination. Again on Howard street the truck hit a team. When Haughton reached the corner of Bank and Howard street, he informed Traffic Officer Cavanaugh of what had occurred and the officer pursued the truck by automobile, overtaking it on Huntington street. It then developed that the truck was not properly equipped with brakes and that no registration was in the truck. The truck was tested and it was almost an impossibility to stop it on a grade. Lee was taken to the police station and explained that he believed the brakes were in good condition, but it was found that a pin was missing from the mechanism. This, he explained, was due to having been dislodged when the truck hit the automobile, but that explanation was not satisfactory to Desk Sergeant Frank Howard. It is also possible that an additional charge of overloading the truck will be made against Lee, for the truck was carrying about 200 pounds more coal than is allowed by statute, when the collisions occurred.

GEO. TRAKAS' NECK BROKEN BY C. V. GASOLINE CAR

(Special to the Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, July 8.—While on his way to join playmates at the city's bathing beach on the banks of the Thames river and directly opposite Riverside park, George Trakas, four, son of Mr. and Mrs. James Trakas, 45 Terrace avenue, was struck and instantly killed by a gasoline car of the Central Vermont railroad, this afternoon. The child managed to leap from in front of the car, but in staggering outside the rails, his body lurched backward and was struck by the rear platform, the child's neck being broken. Death was instantaneous, although it was believed that breath lingered in the little body. Death occurred immediately after being struck, in the opinion of Medical Examiner Charles Kaufman and Dr. Emanuel A. Henkle, to whose office the child was rushed by spectators of the fatality.

The child went to the railroad tracks on his way to the beach and when close to the beach a companion called to him. Not hearing the approaching gasoline car, which was enroute from Norwich to New London and was due to arrive in this city at 4:15 o'clock, the child stopped in the middle of the tracks. His comanion then realizing the child's danger and seeing the car bearing down on him, yelled to the boy. The child had presence of mind to leap from the rails as he saw the car close upon him and as his little body passed from the path of the car to outside the tracks, it suddenly lurched backward and toward the car, which had almost passed. The rear platform struck the boy in such a manner as to snap the vertebrae and the body dropped to the roadbed. Adults at the beach who witnessed the accident rushed to where the boy lay and commandeering an automobile the boy was taken to the office of Dr. Henkle, on Federal street. The physician, after a hasty examination, pronounced the child dead. Medical Examiner Charles Kaufman was notified of the fatality and after ascertaining the facts in the kiding ordered the body removed to an undertaking establishment. Where the child was struck is city property, but the city does not provide any means of safety for users of the beach.

CHESTERTON AND ACTRESS DEBATE STATUS OF MOVIES

LONDON, July 8 (AP)—G. K. Chesterton thinks it is a great pity the films and the radio and other modern inventions have lessened the opportunity of the public to meet politicians face to face and tear them to pieces.

He and Miss Betty Balfour, the film star, are debating, "Should the Cinema Be Tolerated?"

Miss Balfour declares it is impossible for the public not to tolerate the film, as it has come to stay and will become more and more popular both as an educational and as an amusement factor.

"What would the magistrates do if they didn't have film to blame for all the wrongdoings of bad boys?" she demands.

Miss Balfour maintains the film has made people travel the world over and think about places they would never have dreamed of. The masterpieces of literature have been revealed by the film to persons who would never have known about them otherwise. She pleads for better scenario writing done without thought of book publication.

"G. K." declares the film and the modern newspaper create an illusion of unreality and make a lot of persons believe they know something when they are really grossly ignorant. Many persons who are lazy, or too ignorant, to read a book believe they know all about it because they have seen a miserable screen version of the story.

He believes the future of dramatic art lies in a tendency away from the film. He things the greatest possible number of persons should be encouraged to take part in dramatic performances and create local theaters all over the world.

Dry Candidate For U. S. Senate From New Yor'

F. W. Cristman, of Herkimer, New York, the candidate with whom the united dry groups of the state hope to defeat Senator James Wadsworth of that state for the Republican Senatorial nomination. Wadsworth has come out on a sopping wet platform, and every influential dry organization in the state is campaigning for Cristman.

THE GOOD OLD TIMES

Sometimes we sit and let our thoughts
Stray back to days gone by,
The leasing memories charm us, but
We do not reason why.
It is because we let our thoughts
Dwell only on our joys,
And overlook the trials that Upset our equipoise

What was life fifty years ago,
Without the telephone,
Or fifty years before that, when
The railroads were unknown?
The typewriter, electric lights,
Airplanes, the radio
Were all unknown—just fancy!not
So many years ago.

Of course, life then was not so bad,
It had its simple charm;
There were no automobiles then,
To fill us with alarm,
And there is no denying that
The good old times were good,
But we cannot revive them now—
And would you, if you could?

ANNOUNCEMENTS

Breed Theater

The Winding Stair, the A. E. W. Mason novel, which John Griffith Wray produced as a picture for William Fox and which opens today at the Breed theater, provides some of the most colorful and exotic scenes and episodes ever filmed.

The story is laid in Morocco, for the most part, with a short prologue in England and the final scenes there. But the main portion of the picture—the real drama of it—is enacted in the city of Casablanca, on the coast of Morocco, and on the desert of the interior.

The French Foreign Legion, that romantic outfit numbering in its personnel adventurers, exiles, castaways, even fugitives from justice, is the background against which the hero, as portrayed by Edmund Lowe, stands out in bold relief. Mr. Lowe is an officer of the Legion and he falls in love with an American dancer at the Cafe Iris in Casablanca.

The dancer (Alma Rubens) causes the young officer to forsake his regiment, his honor—everything, for love of her! Yet, in the end, he wins a high place among his fellow-men—and, of course, gains the object of his heart's desire, the dancing girl.

Tense situations fill this picture with interest and suspense; there are all elements in the Winding Stair, to make the perfect picture—thrills, action, love interest, adventure, a touch of comedy here and there, and, above all, a story logical and deeply human.

In the cast supporting Mr. Lowe and Miss Rubens are Mahlon Hamilton, Chester Conklin, Warner Oland, Frank Leigh and Emily Fitzroy.

Black Flag

Recognizing the unusual possibilities for a big sale of Black Flag Insect Powder and Black Flag Liquid, druggists, hardware merchants, grocers and other Black Flag dealers in Norwich are planning to feature these famous insecticides in their windows the week of July 12th, which has been designated "Black Flag Week."

Contrary to an erroneous impression created by a previous story on Black Flag Week, every merchant selling these famous insecticides may compete for the window display prizes.

Beside capitalizing on an extensive local advertising campaign, Black Flag merchants will have an opportunity to win $675 for the best displays. To compete for these national prizes, the first of which is $250, Black Flag dealers have only to display Black Flag Powder and Black Flag Liquid exclusively and to send a photo—a snapshot will do—to Window Display Judges, the Black Flag company, 2201 Eagle street, Baltimore, Md. Pictures must be mailed by August 15th. A dollar will be paid for each one received.

This year's advertising campaign for Black Flag products is bigger than ever before. Literally hundreds of thousands of dollars are being spent to promote the sale of the two famous insecticides. The campaign has been scheduled to appear during the months when insects are most abundant. These facts, plus the success of Black Flag Week last year, have caused numerous dealers to signify their intention of featuring the Black Flag window display the week of July 12th.

Resigns His Employment

S. Rosano has resigned from his employment with the local district office of the Metropolitan Life Insurance and is to return to the organization of cooperative companies for the development of beautiful and picturesque localities in the Norwich neighborhood. His previous success in this line induces him to enter it again, as he organized and was secretary-treasurer of the Progressive National Farm and Loan association in 1917 and was first president of the Norwich Investment and Loan company, which he organized in 1924.

Well Child Conferences

The weekly report of the state department of health includes an announcement of well child conferences to be held in the state during the coming week, those in eastern Connecticut towns and cities to be as follows: Danielson, town hall, Tuesday July 13th from 2 to 4 p. m. the afternoon; Union, town hall, Wednesday July 14th from 2 to 4 o'clock in the afternoon; North Grosvenordale, visiting nurse rooms, Wednesday July 14th, from 2 to 4 o'clock in the afternoon.

BORIS FAVORS AMERICAN WOMAN FOR QUEEN

SOFIA, Bulgaria, July 8 (AP)—An American woman has a chance to become Queen of Bulgaria if she possesses beauty, gentle birth, a sympathetic nature and moderate means.

These are the qualities demanded in a wife by King Boris, the only bachelor-sovereign in the world. His friends say he has given up hope of finding a companion for his throne among the royalties of Europe, and that his eyes now are focussed on an American girl.

Of intensely democratic and simple nature, the 32-year-old ruler has always held Americans in very high regard, and is understood to have confided in his advisers more than once that he would have no objection to sharing his crown with a fair heart from across the Atlantic.

He virtually has no means of his own, his country is poor, and, therefore, he must seek a wife who possesses a competence of her own.

His own civil list or salary from the government is $23,500 a year. In addition to this, however, he is allowed about $100,000 a year for the upkeep of his various palaces, of which he has three, two in Sofia and one at Varna on the Black Sea.

While this sum is quite adequate for the maintenance of his palaces and the salaries of the many court functionaries, it is scarcely enough to allow the king to entertain on anything like a liberal scale.

Contrary to the belief of many, Boris is not of Slav origin, but is of noble German birth. His mother was Princess Marie Louise of Bourbon-Parme and his father was Duke (later king) Ferdinand of Saxe.

The young sovereign is of medium height, slight build, has sparce black hair, sympathetic greyish eyes, pleasing, spiritual face, prominent aquiline nose, and firm mouth. He is described by his friends as possessing a tender gentle nature, much sentiment and affection, a keen intellect, and a wide variety of interests.

He loves flowers, birds, animals and nature in every form and is an expert hunter, swimmer, horseman and motorist. He is lonely, and craves companionship. The only relative he has in Bulgaria is his younger sister, who also is unmarried. Of animal friends he has many, including dogs, cats, horses, monkeys, bears and even elephants.

His friends say he possesses everything which a king ought to have, except a wife and real happiness. That is why they are now encouraging him to look among the democratic womanhood of the United States, for a queen to share his throne.

Most of the things that are to be had for the asking benefit the giver more than the receiver.

BUSINESS CODE FOR WOMEN BE FORMED AT CONVENTION

DES MOINES, Ia., July 8 (AP)—Formulation of a code of business principles for women which will help remove existing prejudices against the woman in business will be one of the major objects of the National Federation of Business and Professional Women's clubs at its eighth annual convention to be held here, July 13 to 17.

The convention will be attended by 3000 delegates representing 47,000 women in 47 states engaged in more than 30 vocations ranging from medicine, the arts and law to banking and undertaking. Under the leadership of Mrs. Olive Joy Wright, of Cleveland Ohio, national president they will discuss the problems, ethics and future of the business woman.

Members of the organization, officers said, have sometimes found a tradition among business men that women in business are unreliable, do not understand sportsmanship and fair play and do not pay their bills promptly. By establishing a code of business principles it is hoped to abolish this tradition by removing the cause, and to educate business men to regard their feminine co-workers as honest and dependable.

Another important subject to be discussed is a program of education. The federation will seek the cooperation of school systems and leading business firms in every community to raise the educational standards for women and girls in business. The organization's goal is a high school education for every business girl.

Buffaloes belonging to Mahlon N. Haines, of York, Pa., are "off their feed." They need exercise, but no one could be found who would enter the enclosure and chase them around. So Karl S. Ort has been retained to exercise the animals by using his airplane. He flies over the field, which causes the buffaloes to run about.

THURSDAY'S MARKET

NEW YORK, July 8—(AP)—Establishment of the highest level in over 19 years by the average of 20 leading railroad shares featured the resumption of the upward movement of prices in today's stock market. The advance, however, attracted a large volume of profit-taking and sporadic short selling, bringing about some irregularity in closing quotations. Trading showed a further expansion in volume, the day's sales aggregating 1,637,260 shares, as compared with 1,374,200 yesterday and 1,247,000 the day before.

There were several factors to account for the advance in railroad shares, including the announcement that freight traffic in the first six months of the year was the largest of any corresponding period in history, the prospect of large crop movements this fall and the apparent satisfaction with which Wall street has received the unofficial terms of the modified New York Plan" merger plan.

Practically all the Van Sweringen issues touched new high levels for a year or longer; Chesapeake and Ohio common at 145 7-8, the preferred at 87, Erie first preferred at 47 7-8 and the second preferred at 45 1-2. Pere Marquette common at 100 1-2. Nickel Plate" common at 155 3-4 and the preferred at par.

Strong buying support also developed in a number of rails, Reading touching the best price in five years at 98 7-8 while Baltimore & Ohio, Canadian Pacific, Southern, Nashville, Missouri Pacific, Pittsburgh and West Virginia and Western Pacific, all closed at or higher.

Bear traders made an unsuccessful attempt to unsettle the industrial list by hammering some of the popular issues in the early trading, but they made little headway. U. S. Steel common was in rather free supply around the recent high levels, closing 3-4 lower at 141 1-8 after having fluctuated between 140 3-4 and 142 1-2. General Motors, another recent favorite, also closed 3-4 lower at 149 1-4.

Establishment of new record low levels by the French, Belgian and Italian currencies and the continuance of extremely firm call money rates apparently had little effect on speculative sentiment. After the market closed the New York stock exchange announced that members' loans increased over 100,000,000 last month.

Barlede Gas jumped 7 points to 167, within a point of the year's high. Union Oil of California crossed 57 to a new high but most of the other oils were unsettled, presumably on the announcement of a cut in Pennsylvania crude prices. Allied Chemical reached the highest price since the March break but Union Chemical, which had been weak and strong recently on the prospect of an inauguration of dividends after a year, yielded slightly on profit-taking. Postum Cereal crossed par for a gain of over six points. Shorts scurried to cover in Ward Baking B. Hudson Motor, U. S. Rubber and Goodrich, all of which closed two or more points higher.

Commodity prices were mixed. Active cotton futures yielded about a cent a pound. Cotton advanced 15 to 26 points on buying influenced by the fear of weevil damage to the new crop. The raw sugar market was quiet and easy. Coffee futures yielded 11 to 15 points.

Call money renewed at 4 1-2 per cent and remained at that rate all day. Time money and commercial paper rates were unchanged.

Foreign exchanges lost ground in sympathy with the acute weakness of certain American currencies. French francs broke over 10 points to a new low around 2 1-2 cents and Belgian francs touched a new bottom several points below that figure. Italian lire sold below 3 1-3 cents for the first time. Demand sterling ruled 3-16 of a cent lower around $4.85 3-4. Polish zloty showed independent strength by rising full cent to 10.00 cents.

TO BEGIN WORK ON TWO NEW LOCAL ROADS WITHIN THE NEXT TEN DAYS

According to an announcement Thursday by the state highway department, it is expected that work will start within the next ten days on highway contracts which were awarded Thursday for new highway construction on the Hallville-Poquetanuck road and on the Norwich-New London turnpike.

The Hallville-Poquetanuck contract which is awarded at $39,151.40 to F. D. Miller of Norwich, is for 5,400 feet of 7 inch native stone macadam. The road is in the town of Preston and will run about a mile easterly from the village of Poquetanuck to connect with the Norwich-Westerly highway. There is a stream to be crossed by a bridge and there will be a new layout from the present line for a part of the road. When this road is completed it will naturally divert travel from Poquetanuck to Norwich to this road instead of using the road past Brewsters Neck onto the Military highway.

The Norwich-New London turnpike job runs through the towns of Waterford and Montville and is 13.150-feet, about 2½ miles, on which the contract has been awarded at $119,0008.25 to M. A. Gammino Construction company of Providence, which is at present doing the work on the contract at Trading Cove. The new contract is for 8 inch reinforced concrete pavement to run from the present end of the concrete near Jerome's corner northerly to a point a short distance north of the witch hazel mill crossing.

Nine contracts in all were awarded for road improvements involving the construction of two new bridges and about 11 miles of roadway. The cost of all the work will be approximately $500,000.

The other contracts besides those already mentioned were the following:

Towns of Wilton and Westport—19,277 feet of 2½ inch bituminous macadam over 7 inch stone base, to L. Suzio Construction company, Meriden, $120,477.29.

Towns of Columbia and Windham, 4,415 feet of 5 inch and 8 inch reinforced concrete pavement at Willimantic-Hartford road to F. D. Miller, Norwich, $22,295.75.

Town of Farmington—14,023 feet of 7 inch trap rock macadam on Scott Swamp road to L. Suzio Construction company, Meriden, $88,500.73.

Town of Naugatuck—3,568 feet of 6 inch gravel surface on Rubber avenue, to D. V. Friono, New Haven, $15,473.30.

Westport and Fairfield—14,382 feet of grading and drainage on the Buckley and Blacksmith sections of the Boston Post road to Connecticut, National Pavements, Inc., New Haven, $63,249.81.

New Hartford—Twin 14 foot concrete slab bridge over Cotter brook to J. DiMicheli & Bro., Torrington, $6,487.00.

Canton—38 feet concrete girder bridge over Cherry brook on the Hartford-Winsted road, to L. Suzio Construction Co., Meriden, $17,358.50.

PROGRESS IN SUBMARINES IN PAST 25 YEARS

Few of us who were not shipmates with the old boats realized when we saw the V-3 here this week how submarines have changed in the few years since Holland and Lake started experimenting. Next to aircraft and aircraft carriers they are the youngest type of vessels in the navy, says the Base newspaper, published by the Submarine Base at Groton.

The Holland was built in 1900 and since then a new class has been put forward every few years. Progress was rather slow. Congress and even the Navy department seemed very indifferent to their development. They were the red-headed step children of the navy. We can never appreciate how the personnel of the early boats struggled to make the run. They battled with poor batteries and worse engines, with gasoline fumes and poor ventilation, with cramped quarters below and wet decks topside. But out of their travail has been developed the modern submarine. It was not until the World war that submarines were given very serious consideration by any but a few enthusiasts. As Admiral Christy told us in his address to the last graduating class of officers, when we entered the war, submarines were last on the priority list for navy yard work, among combatant ships before the armistice they headed it. Since then they have steadily grown in favor with naval strategists. As they have grown in favor they have also improved in performance, for the more generous appropriations have permitted more rapid development in both hulls and machinery. This development is far from finished, however, and the old timers who battled along without help or praise and have produced the V-boats for us will watch with interest the manner in which we "carry on."

Since nearly all of the readers of this paper are new to submarines or, at least, very young in them, a tabulation showing their growth should be both interesting and instructive:

Holland—Built in 1900, length 53' 3", displacement 64 tons.

A-boats—Built in 1903, length 63' 10", displacement 107 tons.

B-boats—Built in 1905, length 82' 5", displacement in 145 tons

C-boats—Built in 1907, length 105' 3", displacement 240 tons.

D & E-boats—Built in 1909, length 153' 3", displacement 288 tons.

F-boats—Built in 1912, length 144', displacement 330 tons.

G-boats—Built in 1913, length 161', displacement 375-400 tons.

H-boats—Built in 1910-1918, length 150', displacement 358 tons.

K-boats—Built in 1912-1914, length 153', displacement 392 tons.

L-boats—Built in 1914-1918, length 196', displacement 450 tons.

M-boats—Built in 1916, length 196' 3", displacement 488 tons.

N-boats—Built in 1916, length 147' 3", displacement 348 tons.

O-boats—Built in 1918, length 172' 3", displacement 485-520 tons.

R-boats—Built in 1919, length 175'-186', displacement 495-569 tons.

S-boats—Built in 1919-1925, length 209'-241', displacement 800-903 tons.

T-boats—Built in 1920, length 269', displacement 1,106 tons.

V-boats—Built in 1926, length 341', displacement 2,164 tons.

BIG LIVESTOCK LIST FOR STATE FAIR EXHIBITS

The annual premium list of the Connecticut state fair, which will be held at Charter Oak park, opening Labor day, is now in the mail, being broadcast throughout the country to principal exhibitors. A selected list of 5,000 names will be served first. There will also be a special issue of 1,000 premium lists for the boys' and girls' department.

The breeds for livestock to be shown will now include all the dairy and beef breeds—Holsteins, Ayshires, Jerseys and Guernseys, with a new classification for Milking Shorthorns. The beef breeds—Holsteins, Ayrshires, Jer-Herefords and a new class for Aberdeen Angus. All classifications have been made to conform to the breeders' association recommendations.

In the sheep classes more liberal money allowances are provided, so that the state fair premiums will compare with the most favorable of fairs in this class.

Competition in the livestock classes this year will be keen for awards of a state fair like that at Charter Oak now have a selling value, reflecting the importance of fairs to the farmer. Competitively, too, the rivalry in classes is producing results in the breeding of better stock to meet the requirements of ideal standards.

Eastern Connecticut Health.

According to the state department of health the following cases of communicable diseases were reported from eastern Connecticut during the week ending July 3rd.

Diphtheria—New London 1. Typhoid fever—Putnam (C) 1; Woodstock 1. Scarlet fever—Groton (B) 2; New London 2; Norwich (C) 1; Killingly, 1; Willimantic, 1. Measles—Colchester, 3; Groton (B) 1; Groton (T) 2; Lebanon, 2; Lisbon, 1; New London, 1; Andover, 10; Chaplin, 2; Willimantic, 4. The report showed a falling off during the week in every communicable disease excepting typhoid fever, which increased from 1 to 4.

PROMPT WORK NEEDED IN DROWNING CASES

Now that the summer season is here seashore and lake are becoming populated, and water sports are in full swing. Though swimming is the prince of sports and boating exhilarating, tragedies often follow in their wake since many people play too close to the danger line of safety. An even greater tragedy stalks such sports if on the shore there is not at least one person who knows how to restore respiration in case of drowning, says the weekly bulletin of the state department of health.

The accepted method now in general use is the "Prone Pressure Method." It is easy to learn, simply to operate alone and effective. Every one should be prepared for such an emergency by being so familiar with this method as to act immediately when a drowning occurs. As soon as the body is brought from the water not a minute should be lost. If the mouth is not shut tight a finger should hastily remove any foreign body—false teeth, etc. No time should be lost in forcing water out of the lungs, but the patient should be laid chest down, one arm stretched above the head and the other bent so the face can be turned sideways upon it.

The rescuer now kneels across the body at the hips and uses three motions in rapid succession.

(1) With palms of hands on back of patient, wrists at lower spine and fingers at ribs, the weight is slowly brought forward and arms are straightened to bear pressure on the body. This is done in two counts.

(2) Release pressure and resume sitting position. This is done in one count.

(3) Rest—for two counts.

These movements are then repeated rythmically at the rate of 12 or more times a minute, and continued until patient breathes. This may take three or four hours. Hope should not be given up too quickly. No other method has been devised that taxes the rescuer so little, or is so effective in bringing results.

The patient should receive treatment as near the tragedy as possible as movement and delay make recovery more difficult. If assistants are not at hand the clothing can be loosened and the body lightly covered to keep it warm. When continuous breathing is assured the patient should be moved on a stretcher to a place of shelter where expert care can be given. This should include absolute quiet, warm coverings, and some hot, strong coffee.

The sweetest slumber is the kind interrupted by the alarm clock.

After this date I will not be responsible for any bills contracted by anyone but myself.

FINED FOR OVERNIGHT PARKING ON STREETS

As a result of a drive by the local police to put a stop to the use of public highways as garages for overnight parking, eight local automobile owners and one man from out of town appeared in the city court Thursday morning and paid fines of $5 for the violation. Ten autoists were summoned and only one man escaped the penalty.

The drive by the police came about following numerous complaints about abuse of parking laws. For some time it has been perfectly apparent to those who were around the streets late at night that automobiles were being allowed to park on the streets for the night in some sections without molestation. This first drive is to be followed by a drive which will thoroughly cover the city. The second drive will be against both day and night overtime parkers, being aimed at people, who in the daytime, park their cars on main thoroughfares and then forget them until later in the day.

The autoists who received red tags on Wednesday and who paid the $5 fine for their violation were:

James Moraites, Geer avenue; Robert E. Pellerin, Geer avenue; Frank Pedace, School street; Louis Sadinsky, Maple street; George L. Guertin, School street; Charles Burdick, School street; Charles Welch of Noank parked on High street; Daniel Haillsey, Washington street; Orrin Hodgson, School street.

The case of Anthony Petrowsky, the tenth man charged with overtime parking, was dropped by City Attorney Lee Roy Robbins after it was ascertained that Petrowsky had not parked his car in excess of the time allowed by law and that his car was parked on private property.

Additional cases included that of Carlos H. Kennedy, who paid $3 flat for failure to have his registration with him and a local man who was given a ten day jail sentence, execution of which was suspended for one year, on being found guilty on a charge of intoxication.

STORM KING HIGHWAY CLOSINGS ARE LISTED

The Automobile club of Hartford has received numerous calls regarding the closing of the Storm King highway during the summer. The following is an official notification just received by the club as to the dates and time of day when the highway will be closed: From 8:45 a. m. to 11 a. m., July 12, 13, 14, 15, 16, 19, 20, 21, 22, 23, 26, 27, 28, 29, and 30. August 2, 3, 4, 5, 6, 9, 10, 11, 12, 13, 16, 17, 18, 19 and 20 the Storm King road and Washington Valley road will be closed at the West Point Military Academy reservation limits.

Within the above time limits it will be impossible for any one to travel south from Cornwall expecting to reach West Point; likewise, people coming north may enter the reservation, but may not leave by the north gate. The best way for traffic is by way of Central Valley. The roads are closed in order that the cadets at the military academy may be instructed in the firing of field guns and howitzers. The targets for this fire are on Cro' Nest. All firing is done with live ammunition, highly dangerous to any persons coming within range.

REPUBLICAN WOMEN WILL HEAR NOTABLE SPEAKERS

Looking forward to the not-far-off opening of the fall political campaign, the republican women are to hold a meeting at the Allyn house, Hartford, July 14, at which they will be addressed by four party leaders of the state, Senator McLean, Senator Bingham, Governor Trumbull and State Chairman J. Henry Roraback will speak following a business meeting and luncheon.

The meeting has been called by Miss Katherine Byrne of Putnam, vice-chairman of the republican state central committee. It has been through her efforts that such an unusual number of important political personages have agreed to speak.

The meeting will be called to order at 11 a. m., standard time, with a business session following which there will be a luncheon at 1 p. m., with a program during which the invited guests will speak.

VACATION ADVICE FROM STATE HEALTH DEPARTMENT

Vacation time advice is given as follows in the weekly bulletin of the state department of health:

The last few years have changed vacationing tremendously. Not so long ago a person took a train once a year to his vacation resort, registered at some well known hotel, or unlocked his cottage door. He was exposed to few health hazards if the hotel was a clean one.

Now many people vacation every week end by automobile or spend vacations on automobile trips. In connection with these trips, food and drink from many different sources are often used. Inoculation against typhoid fever, and the carrying of water from a safe public water supply or safe milk in thermos bottles on short trips, cannot be too highly recommended.

In any case, there are a few things you should bear in mind while traveling. The number of private water supplies and the myriad of wayside eating and lodging places preclude the inspection of all of them by state health authorities and frequently they are uninspected by local authorities. That does not excuse you. You have plenty of common sense to use in ruling out definitely unsafe eating places or water supplies.

Food Hazards

Eating places should be clean. Food and drinking straws should be protected from flies. Screens should be provided. Food should be of satisfactory quality and stored in a clean manner. Ice should preferably not come in contact with food or drink. Ask if the milk is pasteurized. Notice how it is handled. Plenty of hot water should be on hand for washing dishes.

Outside toilets which are being provided for the public at many wayside eating places should be fly-tight, and all toilets should be clean. In wash rooms, soap and individual towels should be furnished. Avoid the common towel.

Garbage should be kept in covered receptacles and properly disposed of, otherwise it brings flies and rats.

Water Supplies

Make sure that no toilets or cesspools are in close proximity to a well or spring, especially on a direct slope. A tight cover and curbing should be provided to avoid surface contamination. A bucket and chain well is always dangerous in unclean hands from a typhoid carrier may contaminate the water and cause disease. The same is true about springs into which utensils and hands are dipped. Water from a running stream without a large amount of storage or purification should be avoided as previous visitors may have left contamination on its banks for the rain to wash in and give you typhoid fever. Above all, avoid any common drinking cups which are prohibited by law because of disease danger.

In the end, it is the wishes of the public that must set the standards. If you see things in an establishment which are wrong, tell the proprietor. The state department of health is ready too to investigate insanitary conditions reported, up to the limit of its personnel. By a policy of refusing to patronize establishments and resorts which violate health principles, the public can obtain its utmost demands.

Try to do your part by using your common sense to avoid unnecessary health risks on your vacation and to further the cause of better sanitation for the traveling public.

Others present were Mr. and Mrs. Charles Crawford and family of Groton, Morton Crawford of Gales Ferry, Mr. and Mrs. Wilbur Carlough and daughter, Betty, of New Milford, Mr. and Mrs. Fred Butler of New London, Irene Chapman, Mrs. Carrie Carlough, Fred Carlough, Mrs. Florence Hyde, Frederick Hyde and Ass Hyde.

TO STAGE SHAM BATTLES AT FRED STONE'S RANCH

Troop B, First Squadron, Cavalry, C. N. G., of Hartford, which will be in training from July 17 to 31 will spend several days at Fred Stone's Star ranch in East Lyme, according to plans outlined by Capt. C. P. Pendleton at an assembly of the troop this week in the West Hartford armory.

An advance detail, the captain announced, will leave Hartford July 16 with the troop horses, spending the night in bivouac between Hartford and East Haven, and proceeding to the camp ground the next morning. A number of Kentucky mounts hired for the training period will be awaiting men there.

The remaining members of the troop will leave by train July 17. Early Monday morning the outfit will start on a road march, going to the ranch in East Lyme. A short route has been planned that will get the troops there Wednesday night or early Thursday morning. The men will spend several days at the ranch in maneuvers and sham battles. Service ammunition will be used against dummy targets in trenches or strong points.

Saturday, July 24, the troop will proceed to Niantic for the second week of training. The first three days it will engage in maneuvers in conjunction with the infantry stationed at Camp Trumbull. The annual squadron horse show will be held Thursday, July 29, in connection with Governor's day. After field inspection the next day the troop will leave for Hartford.

FRENCH CHAMBER VOTES CONFIDENCE IN GOV'T

Action Follows Insistence by Finance Minister Caillaux That Government's Plan For Stabilizing Franc Must be Upheld—Former French High Commissioner to the United States Told Chamber That American Government Refused to Allow Question of War Debts to be Discussed at Peace Conference—Caillaux Will Ask Parliament to Ratify War Debt Agreements.

PARIS, July 10—(AP)—The chamber of deputies voted confidence in the government at a nearly hour this (Saturday) morning after Finance Minister Caillaux had insisted that the government's plan for stabilization of the franc must be upheld.

The vote was 262 for the government and 17 against.

Before the vote on the government's proposed resolution of confidence, the chamber defeated a socialist resolution, calling for a capital levy, by a vote of 528 to 263.

BELIEVES RAIL CONCESSIONS SHOULD BE RESCINDED

PARIS, July 9—(AP)—Andre Tardieu, French high commissioner to the United States during the World war, took a long awaited part in the parliamentary financial debate at tonight's session of the chamber of deputies, when he declared that all efforts by the allies in the course of the peace conference to bring up the war debt question met with a firm refusal from the United States government.

It was nearly midnight when M. Tardieu made his remarks. He read a letter from the United States government to show that it had refused absolutely to allow the question of war debts to be discussed at the peace conference. He said that the American government had even declared if the question was pursued by the allies all credits to them by the United States would be withdrawn.

M. Tardieu summarized the loans contracted with the United States in wartime. He declared they were made in conformity with the law authorizing liberty loans and that without them France could not have pursued her efforts.

He thought, however, that distinction ought to be made between the money borrowed before the armistice and the money advanced afterward.

M. Tardieu favored cession of the French state's tobacco monopoly in order to raise funds, but believed that the present railway concessions to private companies should be rescinded. He was against inflation and criticised the plan suggested by the fiscal experts as merely disguised inflation. He criticised use of the Morgan loan to meet internal obligations, which he considered a violation of the convention under which it was obtained.

In conclusion M. Tardieu announced that he would refuse to vote confidence in the government, which, in his opinion, had not presented the chamber with a precise plan for remedying the country's financial ills.

WILL ASK RATIFICATION OF DEBT AGREEMENTS

PARIS, July 9—(AP)—"We will ask parliament to ratify the war debt agreements" said Finance Minister Caillaux, replying to an interpellation in the chamber of deputies tonight.

"I am now negotiating with London and I will introduce another bill soon," he added. "We are negotiating with Washington; we are seeking to ease the situation. That's clear, precise."

In dramatic manner M. Caillaux exclaimed:

"It is impossible to stabilize the franc without foreign credits and those who seek a solution for stabilization without going outside the country, will have to find a new finance minister."

Premier Briand then rose and declared that he shared M. Caillaux's opinion.

RADIO SAVED TRAPPERS AT LONELY TRADING POST

BOSTON, July 9.—(AP)—The long arm of the radio reached into the subarctic wastes of Hudson Bay last night and saved from starvation and possible death hunters and trappers of a lonely trading post on Hudson Bay, it was revealed today. Word has just come back from lonely Southampton Island, at the extreme northern end of Hudson Bay, that "life and death messages" broadcast countrywide from radio station WBZ at Springfield, Mass., were successful. Another post hundreds of miles away, picked up the call and rushed by dog sled to the Hudson Bay Company post on Southampton Island, the food that enabled the hunters and trappers to live through the winter.

A brief telegram was received at Westinghouse radio station WBZ today which said:

"Messages to Southampton Island, received last winter from Station WBZ were received and rescue made by rushing food and supplies from Chesterfield inlet. Radio message from WBZ was picked up by Father Pigeon of the Oblate Fathers located at Chesterfield inlet."

The telegram was the last chapter in a drama that began when the Bay Company supply ship of the Hudson's Bay company was crushed in the ice floes in Hudson's Straits, on July 25, 1925. The ship was then on route to the post on Southampton Island. The relief ship with provisions in place of the Eskimo, failed to penetrate to the post during the short Arctic summer and at last the directors of the station WBZ to broadcast this message.

The following message is for Hudson Bay company at Chesterfield inlet, Repulse Bay and Wager inlet:

"The company's relief ship failed to reach Southampton Island this season. Consequently, that post is unfortunately supplied with provisions. If Chesterfield inlet or Wager inlet receives this message, rush special courier to Southampton Island and have forwarded to Southampton two sled loads of pemmican and advising Southampton to telegraph Repulse Bay, where stocks are plentiful for further requirement. Hudsons Bay company, Montreal, Canada."

Almost two years ago the company had equipped many of its posts scattered through the Arctic with radio receiving sets for the reception of messages which would otherwise take months to deliver for the entertainment of trappers during the long winter evenings. Already they had proven their worth on occasions of life and death.

Chesterfield inlet was "listening in" when its appeal went flickering northward on the ether. This isolated post is miles south of the Arctic circle is hundred miles distant from the nearest point on Southampton Island. Hence the overland distance from Chesterfield to the threatened post was approximately 300 miles.

The rescue party was started quickly on its way it was learned but was forced to cover a large stretch of water. Practically all of the traveling was done in the dark for in November the period of day light near the Arctic Circle was very short.

TEXTILE INSTITUTE POINTS TO PROSPERITY

BOSTON, July 9—(AP)—The movement for the formation of a cotton textile institute "seems destined to lead the industry back into prosperous conditions," says John S. Lawrence, chairman of the New England council in a letter sent today to the National Association of Cotton Manufacturers.

"The movement for co-operative effort among cotton mill men," the letter says, "is daily gaining momentum. Leaders in the industry are behind this proposal. Such an organization as the one proposed will tend to stimulate greater efficiency in producing and marketing operations to render trade practices more representative and more effective in public counsels and to reduce the friction which sometimes results from business controversies."

MRS. BUDLONG TAKES STAND IN OWN DEFENSE

NEWPORT, R. I., July 9.—(AP)—Mrs. Milton J. Budlong, went on the stand in her own defense today, and denied the charges of cruelty upon which her husband is suing her for a legal separation. Her motion to dismiss the case on the grounds that the charges had not been proven was denied by Judge Blodgett as was her request for a continuance until fall "if the terms of the petition can be changed from separation to absolute divorce."

The defendant did not indicate why she wanted Budlong's petition changed to divorce, but the court informed her this could not be done at her request. After she had talked for two hours on her marital history, Judge Blodgett observed she had not reached the essentials of the case, whereupon she rejoined that she wanted three days for her defense. Because the petitioner has had three days for his case."

Mrs. Budlong announced that she would carry an appeal to the supreme court "no matter how this case is decided" but did not make clear why she should appeal a victory.

"There has never been any refusal on my part to live with Mr. Budlong," Mrs. Budlong said in her testimony. "That was not so before and it is not now," she declared that "I couldn't have been a better wife than I was nor kinder to Mr. Budlong—and he knows it in spite of our squabbles." She broke down somewhat at several points in her story and wept a little, especially when she was telling of the illness of her son, Milton, Jr., virtually the whole history of her married life with Budlong was told and once she described him as 'a continual tease who liked the ladies."

Some humorous verses sent to the Budlongs by their friends the Corbins were read by Mrs. Budlong. One of them had a verse, she said and Budlong's said of him that 'he didn't buy roast beef in the market, he liked chicken on Broadway."

"I don't see anything original in that," Judge Blodgett remarked. There was no indication today as to when the suit would be concluded, but every effort was to be made to finish it promptly since Judge Blodgett's time in this court is limited. He announced that he would hear further testimony tomorrow afternoon, an unusual time for a Saturday session.

Mrs. Budlong admitted she had been jealous of her husband and had to 'hold him from other women," she did not mean misconduct, but Budlong used to do annoying things—"such as paying too much attention to other women and thinking it amusing."

At no time did Mrs. Budlong refer to her husband's allegations that she was a social climber and vainly attacked the ramparts of Newport society. She did deny that she had persecuted Budlong for money and expensive gifts.

SUBWAY OFFICIALS MOVE TO REPLACE POWER MEN

NEW YORK, July 9—(AP)—The city's millions went home tonight uncertain whether the "juice" that runs the trains under and above the sidewalks of New York would still be flowing through the third rails in the morning.

Today was the fourth day of the strike of insurgent motormen and switchmen of the Interborough Subway system, who broke away from the recognized union to form their own organization and demand higher wages. It was marked by indications that at least a part of the Interborough's power men would join the strike. If these men struck and were not replaced both subways and elevated trains throughout the city would be stopped. Company officials announced, however, that power men would be replaced just as the motormen and switchmen had been.

At a strike meeting today a score of power men from the night shift voted to join the strike at midnight and a gathering of some 75 power men tendered a vote of confidence to James F. Walsh, leader of the disgruntled power men.

The company announced that power men attended the strike meeting in violation of orders and immediately transferred 24 men to other positions where they would not be able to do any harm or spread dissatisfaction.

Balloting of the power men on the strike question was scheduled to continue through the evening, definite strike action to be taken as soon as the vote was complete.

Not only are the Interborough subways and elevated lines served by the Interborough power department, but large sections of the Brooklyn-Manhattan subway also gets its power from this source. The B. M. T. subway is the only one not yet affected by the strike and has been doing double duty in Brooklyn where most of the Interborough service was stopped when the strike was called. The Interborough admitted today that service had declined 7 per cent since yesterday, but attributed this to the fact that general service had been sacrificed to some extent to reopen some of the discontinued Brooklyn lines Service today was estimated 70 per cent of normal.

The day was marked by the first accident of the strike when a subway train rounded the South Ferry loop too fast and one car jumped the tracks. No one was injured. Two subway employes were arrested charged with attacking newspapermen getting news of the wreck, beating them, tearing up their notes, and ejecting them from the subway.

As a result of an investigation of the derailment by the transit commission District Attorney Banton announced tonight that tomorrow he will ask for a summons for the Interborough Rapid Transit company as a corporation. It was said that this decision was reached after the transit commission had reported to Mr. Banton that "green" motormen are operating subway trains in violation of the railroad law. The summons will be returnable Monday. The transit commission reported that the man in charge of the derailed train had never operated a subway train before last Monday.

District Attorney McGeehan, of the Bronx, said tonight that he will examine the men employed as motormen by the Interborough and if any are found incompetent he will use his power under the state railroad law to order their dismissal.

HARMONY BETWEEN EXECUTIVE AND LEGISLATIVE BRANCHES

PAUL SMITHS, N. Y., July 9—(AP)—Within the recollection of President Coolidge there has never been a time when there was greater harmony between the executive and legislative branches of the government than in the period since he came to the office of chief magistrate.

Moreover, in the opinion of Mr. Coolidge it would be difficult for the senate and the house to be conducted better than at the recent session of congress from the standpoint of constructive legislation produced and less time spent in needless debate.

The views of the chief executive were set forth today at a conference of newspaper correspondents with his official spokesman, the first such conference to be held since he established the summer white house in the Adirondacks.

Praise for the congress was mingled with appreciation for the services of the administration leaders in both the house and senate during a discussion which included a reiteration of views along similar lines uttered in behalf of the president early this week in Washington before he left the capital for the summer.

With the explanation that it was not desired to take all the glory for the president in referring to the record of congress, it was said that the senate and house had functioned as legislative bodies without being constantly forced into some position by the chief executive.

Congress in its own independence, it was added, had supported most of the major recommendations of Mr. Coolidge, leaving few of outstanding importance yet to be acted upon, although, it was made clear, there are some recommendations to come in future sessions from the president.

The republican leader in the senate, Senator Curtis of Kansas was given great credit by the spokesman for his direction of difficult situations. His advice and assistance was said to have been of first importance to Mr. Coolidge while he was praised for his ability as a parliamentarian. It was recalled in this connection that when Mr. Coolidge was vice president and presided over the senate he depended much upon the Kansas senator for advice on intricate questions of parliamentary law.

Speaker Longworth and Representative Tilson of Connecticut the republican floor leader of the house, were mentioned also as giving invaluable support to the president during the session of congress just closed. The former was referred to as equally successful as Senator Curtis as an administration leader, while the Connecticut representative was described as a most helpful advisor on legislative matters with whom Mr. Coolidge confirmed often.

Turning to other questions of government, the spokesman for the president said Mr. Coolidge knew little of the appointment yesterday of Brigadied General Albert C. Dalton to be president of the fleet corporation, although it was added that the chief executive had known that General Dalton and several others were under consideration by the shipping board for the post.

Chairman O'Connor of the board, it was explained, had asked the president if he had any preference among several under consideration and was told "not so long as those on the list were qualified for the office he preferred to have the board exercise its own judgment in making a selection.

As for the plan of the shipping board to offer the United States lines and other government merchant routes for sale, it was said there was nothing the president could add to his messages to congress which have dealt with that question.

EIGHTEEN BODIES TAKEN FROM SUBMARINE S-51

Navy Officials Believe All of Dead Have Been Removed From Submersible—Further Search of Craft Will be Made to Make Sure None Have Been Overlooked In the Tangled Mass of Wreckage—Naval Board Endeavoring to Place Blame For Grounding in East River—List of Identified Dead.

NEW YORK, July 9.—(AP)—After nine months at the bottom of the sea in their steel coffin, the bodies of 18 sailors of the U. S. submarine S-51 were reclaimed today.

The submarine, torn asunder and sunk last September by the steamer City of Rome, was drained of water for the first time today and relieved of its grim cargo at the Brooklyn navy yard.

Sailors in black oilskins bore from the shattered hulk the bodies of their comrades and from finger prints, clothing and other marks, identification of one after another was made. The work of identification was suspended until tomorrow after ten victims had been identified.

When the 18th body was lifted to the light, navy officers in charge of the removal expressed the belief that no more remained. Continued investigation was ordered, however, to make sure that none had been overlooked in the tangled wreckage massed in the compartments of the shattered submarine.

Most of the bodies taken from the S-51 were clad only in underclothing, indicating to observers that those so dressed were off duty when death bore down on them.

The men who climbed in and out of the submarine today reported that the hulk was filled with sad reminders of the men who had been hurled so suddenly to death.

Carrying kit bags, sailors crawled through the various compartments and gathered up personal effects of the dead sailors. A picture believed to be that of the radio man's mother, blurred by seawater, was found near his instruments and other articles testified to the many ties which bound the men to the life from which they were so suddenly torn.

Secretary of the Navy Wilbur inspected the submarine during the afternoon. He said that the S-51 sailors would not be given a naval funeral, their relatives having made known their plans for private burial.

One of the bodies recovered was that of a sailor who investigators believed had fought for life to the last second. The body was wedged in some pipes at the top of a compartment and belief was expressed that as the water rose the sailor had climbed higher and higher, only to be drowned at last when he could climb no more.

As to the manner of the death of the sailors as a whole neither Rear Admiral Plunkett nor Secretary Wilbur would express an opinion, beyond remarking that the time must have been very short and that death probably came upon most of the men almost instantaneously, catching them wherever they happened to be.

In striking contrast to the unsightly hulk of the S-51 as it lay today in its dock, barnacled and disfigured, was the trim sister ship, the S-50, moored beyond the end of the dry dock. Observers found it hard to believe that the twisted wreck could ever have been a counterpart of the sleek undersea boat riding at anchor.

The naval board of inquiry reopened today and spent the day in an effort to place the blame for the grounding of the S-51 in East river as it was being towed to the navy yard from the place where it was sunk last September with a loss of 33 lives. This question will occupy the board again tomorrow and after that the main question of blame for the sinking off Block Island will be taken up.

PRES. COOLIDGE EXPRESSES SYMPATHY FOR FAMILIES

PAUL SMITHS, N. Y., July 9.—(AP)—The men who died on the American submarine S-51 last summer when the craft was sunk in Long Island sound were praised by President Coolidge today as heroes as much as if they had died in action.

Praise for the men and sympathy for their families and friends were expressed by the president in a formal statement made public after information had been received that the hull of the submarine had been raised and opened.

"Information has reached me," Mr. Coolidge said, "that when the hull of the S-51, which was the American submarine sunk near the eastern end of Long Island sound last summer, was opened, it disclosed that each of the seamen who had been lost was at his post of duty doing what he could to save the ship. They could have been no greater heroes if they had died in action. This is another exhibition of the great courage and self-sacrifice which has always characterized the men in the naval service of the United States. On the occasion of the recovery of their bodies I wish to express again my sympathy for their families and friends and the pride that the nation feels at being represented by such gallant men in its navy. They have lived up to the ancient tradition and fulfilled the present type of their country."

SALEM'S PARADE SEEN BY CROWD OF 100,000

SALEM, Mass., July 9.—(AP)—Salem's history through three hundred eventful years was unfolded today before nearly two hundred thousand spectators when a line of floats depicted scenes of its settlement of 1626 by Roger Conant, its trails of witches and its part in the nation's wars.

The parade in which several thousand school children marched was the third pageant of the week in celebration of the city's tercentenary.

The column in today's floral and historical spectacle stretched three and a half miles. The parade, marched over the same route as the big civic and military review before Vice President Dawes on Wednesday.

Among the floats was one showing Naumkeag Indians, who inhabited Salem before the advent of the white settlers, curing skins. A 17th century ship of the type which brought forefathers of Salem to these shores was exhibited. The banished Roger Williams being welcomed by the Indians with whom he spent the winter and the first Episcopal church service in New England were also represented.

RHYL, Wales, July 9—(AP)—David Lloyd George, speaking today before the Welsh National Liberal federation, of which he was elected president for the 28th time, condemned the government for its handling of the coal situation, and declared it was influenced by powerful tory interests.

At another point he said: "You may starve and beat the miners, but that won't bring a solution. The only safety of the community is that impartial stern justice is meted out to all classes alike in this land."

After taking Guay into custody Captain Jarvis of the Putnam police was in this city and at police headquarters he secured information regarding the man. He has a police record here. Women Find

Great comfort in this new hygienic pad that discards easily as tissue—no laundry

ON many important counts, women are deserting the old-time "sanitary pad."

There is a new way. A way that multiplies protection. A way, too, that solves the old problem and embarrassment of disposal.

It is called "KOTEX." Ends the discomfort of the old-time sanitary pad. Five times as absorbent! And deodorizes—ends ALL fear of offending.

As easily disposed of as a piece of tissue. No laundry. No embarrassment.

You get it at any drug or department store simply by saying "KOTEX." You ask for it without hesitancy.

Costs only a few cents. Eight in the better-class women employ it. Why take old ways at unnecessary risk.

FRIDAY'S HOT WEATHER MAKES BROODY HEN SUICIDE

(Special to the Bulletin)

DANIELSON, July 9—A hen committed suicide over at the Goodness farm near South Killingly Friday. That's a tough one to believe and has all the flavor of a Winsted gem. Possibly it was the extreme heat, possibly the fact that the hen was one of a small group that were not laying and so had been confined in separate roops and had become despondent about it.

MANY MOURNING FRIENDS AT MISS PALMER'S FUNERAL

(Special to the Bulletin)

DANIELSON, July 9—Friday afternoon at 1.45 at the Palmer home in Brooklyn there was a prayer service conducted by Rev. Leonard Richards, rector of St. Alban's church for Miss Frances L. Palmer. At 2 o'clock there was a public service at Trinity church and the edifice was practically filled by all who came to attend. Again at this service Rev. Leonard Richards officiated. Burial was in the South cemetery, Brooklyn. The bearers were Judge Oscar F. Atwood, Charles T. Blake, William Clewley, Marshall J. Frink, Willis Kenyon. There were beautiful floral remembrances. A. F. Wood was in charge of the arrangements.

It has proved surprising to Danielson people that a rumor should gain circulation in Brooklyn to the effect that fire apparatus was not sent over there recently when a call was sent for assistance because Brooklyn officials refused a request for permission for the Danielson fire department to hold a carnival within the limits of that town, the eastern boundary of which is at the Quinebaug river, just across from Danielson.

The rumor is little less than ridiculous and has no foundation in fact. The fire in question was at the Bradley home. At the time the Captain Put motor pumper, the only piece of apparatus in the Danielson department that could be effectively used at Brooklyn, was being varnished and could not be taken out without ruining the unfinished work. It was so explained by Chief Woodward on the afternoon of the fire and mention made of the fact in this column the following morning. Under the circumstances, the pumper would not have been used at the time even in Danielson unless something approximating a conflagration developed. This is the reason—and the only reason—why the pumper was not sent to Brooklyn, as it has been sent several times before. The selectmen of Brooklyn are fully aware that there is absolutely nothing to the carnival story. Danielson's fire department does not refuse aid when it can help.

People who revel in hot weather were privileged to do a grand amount of reveling Friday. There was beat to spare. Collars wilted, permanent waves became more or less impermanent and defective, and linen knickers appeared in droves. It may be imagined that not all were pleased. Even many of those who have been complaining about the backward season. The mercury climbed sky high, getting well into the 90's, but all reports did not agree as to exact figures and thermometers are never a unit on the matter of temperature. The range appeared to be from 94 to 97 degrees. The heat was charred with all time up business in some lines and boosting it in others. Vendors of ice cream and cold drinks were among the beneficiaries of the hot spell.

Such claims as Danielson could make as to high temperature, however, was overshadowed by a report from a farm in the central section of the town of Brooklyn. The reading over there on an instrument exposed to the direct rays of the sun was 107 degrees. All in all it was great "corn" weather.

An old complaint typical of the past few summer seasons again wells up from land owners along state highways in outlying sections of this territory. It is about tourist campers, who pitch a tent wherever fancy dictates often without permission, and proceed to cut down young trees, for one purpose or another, do various other kinds of damage and leave considerable litter about when they go away. Of course, all of this is against the law, but many times the property owner does not know his rights are being violated until after the camping parties are gone. The land owner is up against the old gypsy nuisance multiplied one hundred fold. It is strange that this should be so, in view of the fact that there are so many places along the highways where the campers are welcomed and made comfortable for a night or longer.

The headquarters detachment, special troops, 43rd division, stationed at the Danielson state armory and under command of Major E. L. Darble will be in camp at Niantic from July 25 to August 8

Danielson's daily vacation church school is to open Monday. The beginners are to meet at the Congregational church, the primary department at the Baptist church and the juniors at the Methodist church. Study of the Bible, hero stories, handwork and games will fill in the morning.

Chautauqua's fourth day in this year's program brought an interesting series of events to Danielson. There was the usual junior meeting in the morning. In the afternoon Captain W. A. Dietrick gave a scouting demonstration and in the evening there was one of the prize offerings of the entire Chautauqua series—a concert by Shadwell's Scout band of boys. The players are all registered scouts and are selected players from a band of 87 pieces.

Danielson's next Well Child conference is scheduled for Tuesday afternoon at the town hall building. Stress is being placed on the need of keeping careful watch of children during the summer season. Just why will be told to mothers who go to the conference, and all are welcome.

Plans for an outing of the Danielson chamber of commerce on a date in August are getting consideration. The chamber will hold no meeting during July.

PUTNAM

HAD FRAUD CHECKS, TWO WIVES, K. K. K. ROBE, IS JAILED

(Special to the Bulletin)

PUTNAM, July 9.—Julius Guay, Jr., 28, of Chaplin, was arrested in this city two days ago and at a special hearing in the city court today was held under $1,000 bonds charged with passing worthless checks. Guay told the officers that he was on his honeymoon, but his bride whom he married in Providence, and who was in his company when he was arrested, learned that Guay had left another wife on his Chaplin farm.

He arrived in Putnam in an automobile, and he and his second, or at least his latest wife, stopped at the Cargill house. Complaints from the police of various cities to the effect that Guay has cashed numerous small checks began to reach Putnam Tuesday morning. None of the checks is large but the total aggregates a considerable sum. The cause of his arrest was his trying to give the Plessis insurance agency here a check for $100 to pay a $60 insurance charge on his car and wanting $40 in cash.

The checks that he has had cashed amount to $300 or $400. When he was taken to Brooklyn jail he left several unpaid bills, one irate wife and probably another in his own home town. He told the police so many different kinds of stories, nearly all of them conflicting, that at the last no importance was attached to anything that he said. He claimed to be a U. S. boiler inspector, a breeder of rabbits, a former aviator and a country farmer.

His second wife, who accompanied him here, after learning that most and possibly all of the charges against him were correct, told him what she thought of him, and then went home to Providence. It is said that he told the clergyman who married them that his home is in Butte, Montana but the police don't believe that he was ever west of Springfield. One of the checks he tried to have cashed was on the Citizens National bank of Putnam but it was learned that he never had an account there. He also had in his possession a check for $125 on the Danielson Trust company but had no funds there. In one of the three suitcases was a bundle of application blanks for joining the K. K. K., and a black robe.

SITUATION IN ITALY THEME OF J. J. WHITEHEAD, JR.

(Special to the Bulletin)

PUTNAM, July 9—The guest and speaker at the meeting of the Rotary club this week at its luncheon at Putnam Inn was John J. Whitehead, Jr., editor of the Patriot. Mr. Whitehead spent the past winter in Italy and was able to give a very interesting talk on Mussolini, the man of the hour in Italy, before he came into his present position of autocratic power. What the end would be, or as Samuel Blythe puts it, "After Mussolini, what?", he did not attempt to predict, but he outlined the peculiar situation—Italy as the most prosperous country in Europe, her people the most satisfied, and Mussolini as the most absolute dictator since Napoleon, putting into practice theories of government that are absolutely opposed to our own theories and ideals. Mr. Whitehead was given a vote of thanks by the club.

The July meeting of the common council was held in the council rooms with Alderman-at-Large Richard presiding. The mayor, and two alderman, Carroll and Delisle were absent.

The police report for June showed 16 arrests, of which nine were for intoxication. Four offenders went to jail, four were placed in charge of the probation officer, three cases were continued, two defendants were bound over, one discharged and two paid fines and costs amounting to $28.48.

Fire Chief Thurston was present and told of the convention at Manchester, N. H., which he recently attended. He said that the convention, Connecticut was commended for having standard thread hose nozzles practically universal throughout the state. There was a great deal of discussion concerning the importance of the removal of snow and motion-pictures showing the various methods used in different cities were shown. The problem of the removal of snow from the streets is a serious one here, although with the co-operation of the highway department it has been efficiently cared for in recent years.

Mr. Thurston urged the necessity for a hydrant and a fire alarm box near the gas plant. Many of the recommendations made by insurance inspectors have been carried out at the gas plant and he said that they had expressed surprise that there is neither a hydrant nor an alarm box in the neighborhood of the plant and tank. He stressed that adequate protection of the gas plant is important both to the city and to the company. The nearest hydrant is about 1 000 feet from the plant and that the nearest alarm box is a greater distance than that. He will have a formal petition for this improvement prepared for the next meeting.

A building permit for the addition to the Putnam State Trade school was granted and garage permits as follows: Miss Elisa Reid, School street; Mrs. Harriet Carpenter, Chapman street, Marcelle Kenette, Railroad street.

After regular bills had been approved, Alderman Richard gave a short talk on Thomas Jefferson and invited contributions to the fund being raised to purchase Monticello as a National memorial.

Funeral services for William Bandlow, 67, were held at his home Friday afternoon at one o'clock. He died Tuesday at the Day Kimball hospital aged 67 years. Mr. Bandlow has been a resident of Putnam for many years, his home being near the Little Dam Tavern. In his early life he worked at the Putnam Foundry and was well known to many people. He is survived by a daughter, Mrs. Gertrude Huntington, of Rhode Island.

David Fahlstrom, foreman of the Putnam Water department sailed from New York this week for a two months' visit to his old home in Sweden. This is the first time he has been back to Sweden since he came to the United States, 20 years ago.

James E. Murray, past exalted ruler of Putnam Lodge of Elks, No. 74 left today for Chicago as the delegate to the Grand Lodge which holds its annual convention there opening Monday next. Mr. Murray goes with the New England delegation which is to make the trip by the way of Niagara Falls.

Parry, Dr. Karl T. P. Phillips all of Putnam; Drs. Todd, Tanner and Judson of Danielson; Dr. S. B. Overlock of Pomfret; Dr. A. D. Marsh of Hampton; Dr. LaPalme of North Grosvenordale and Dr. J. B. Kent of Larchmont, N. Y., formerly of Putnam and who is now on a visit to the city. The guests gave a hearty vote of thanks for the very enjoyable evening and for the delicious menu provided.

SAVIN' FOR COLLEGE

Many of America's most prominent men "worked" their way through college.

While they were still in their "teens" they planned their education; did little odd jobs around home; learned the value of money through work—and SAVED some of the money earned.

It is natural to assume that an education thus obtained is appreciated and correctly applied.

Children should be encouraged to earn "a little money"; then they should be taught to save a part of it. Do it to your children.

Please remember that this bank welcomes the SAVINGS accounts of children.

POWER DEVELOPMENT AND CONSOLIDATION

As demand for cheaper power has grown, developments have taken place in the production of electricity and more hydro-electric stations have been established there has been a tendency to consolidation, to the creation of a great power system through the linking up of the various small units. In this way it is possible to insure better service and to make use of product of the various stations much better than if entire reliance was placed upon the development of the local demands. When there are localities which are rich in water power it is unfortunate when that is permitted to continue to go to waste when there are so many other localities which are crying for the advantages of just such cheap power and it can be extended to them through the linking up of the various units. A super-power system would provide an outlet for the regions rich in water power and therefore excellent possibilities for turning that to the development of electricity and would make it possible for communities at some distance therefrom to obtain power which is now going to waste.

The desirability of such distribution is beyond question. There is on the other hand the question of the effect that such consolidated system might have upon state control. It seems possible that it can easily be carried from state to federal jurisdiction through interstate business. It has come in regard to railroads and it is among the possibilities, whether desirable or not, with power companies.

This has been brought to light in connection with an investigation that has been conducted in New Hampshire where it is found that two thirds of the generating capacity of central electric stations in that state, have been brought under the control of two companies and the recommendation is made that steps be taken to see if the state public utility commission cannot regain better control or local development. This is a phase of the matter which may well be looked into for determination as to whether the development is really as detrimental as it might be made to appear.

BAD RADIO SITUATION

Attention has been called to the fact that even though it was predicted that a chaotic condition would result should congress fail to enact radio legislation that would establish authority to deal with the control of broadcasting, nothing of the kind has developed. It was believed that the refusal of the Chicago broadcasting station to abide by the order of the secretary of commerce indicated that others would proceed to do as they pleased and abandon their respect for the secretary's regulations, but even that has not resulted.

But neither has congress acted, and soon after adjournment it has been ruled by Attorney General Sargent that the secretary of commerce has no authority under the law to undertake regulation, that the law under which he has been doing so gives him no such right, and of course there is no obligation on the part of anyone to respect the rules, licenses and wave lengths that have been established. That makes the situation all the worse for there is nothing now to enforce obedience of the regulatory steps that have been taken and even greater changes for chaotic conditions are open.

With congress failing to do anything and with the resolution ineffective which it attempted to pass to meet the situation until the next congressional session, the situation rests upon the disposition of those directly concerned, those radio stations holding licenses, those refraining from operation while awaiting permits and to whom wave lengths have been assigned including the amateurs. There seems to be no reason why anyone must give any consideration to the rights of others unless they wish to because it doesn't appear that there are any rights.

The situation can be greatly relieved if there is the proper regard for radio business and broadcasting by all license holders and all amateurs. They know what it would mean if there was no regulation and it would be folly to proceed as if they could do as they pleased. By sticking to past regulations, even though they cannot be enforced, until new ones replace them an easy way out of a bad predicament will be provided.

SEIZING AMERICAN VESSELS

According to the United States court of appeals at New York it is within the power of the United States to seize an American vessel anywhere on the high seas for the violation of the laws of this country. It is a reversal of the decision of the district court of Connecticut which held that it was restricted to the 12 mile limit, and the case had to do with the capture of the rum Underwriter 24 miles off Block Island in December 1924 with a cargo of liquor on board.

Whatever might be the contention in regard to vessels of other countries beyond the 12 mile limit, provided they hadn't been pursued from a point within such a limit, it sounds like good reasoning as well as good law when the appellate court holds that "every nation has the right to bind its own subjects to its own laws in every place."

The effort in this case is much the same as it is in all others where the desire is to dodge the effectiveness of the law and to get around its application. The rum running business has brought many problems before the courts, and all of them have not been adjusted as yet. There have been vessels belonging to other countries seized in connection with the enforcement of the dry law, which have been released because they had been taken without justification. It would, however, be a strange situation if it were possible for vessels of this country to engage in the breaking of its laws solely because it was caught at a greater distance than what is regarded as the territorial limit of the country.

Many of the decisions of the lower court have failed to satisfy in determining the constitutionality and effectiveness of dry laws. In this instance a court of appeals upsets a lower court and inasmuch as it is against those who are studiously endeavoring to break the law it is possible that they will insist upon carrying it to the highest court in the land, where so many appeals have been taken but where those who have sought to defy the law have gotten not a great deal of consolation.

COUNTY CAMPS FOR YOUNG PEOPLE

Some idea of the manner in which the delights of this part of Connecticut are recognized and the appreciation that is given to them in contrast with the many others, is furnished by the number of camps for young people that are maintained from year to year and the steady increase therein.

From Beach pond in Voluntown, near the Rhode Island line, to Camp Hazen near the Connecticut river and from Lantern Hill pond in North Stonington to Colchester there are to be found many hundreds of youngsters who have gathered from many different communities for the enjoyment, under the supervision of various organizations, of the delightful lakes and ponds with their attractive country settings. Probably there is no greater center for such activities than at Gardner lake the shores of which are thickly dotted with summer camps and where the development of another one has been started this year.

In various directions from Norwich, in this county, are to be found some of the fascinating beauty spots which offer all the natural facilities for such camps, whether they are large or small. They have always existed but it takes those from a distance to recognize and appreciate their possibilities and to make the most of them. And yet these various camp activities cannot fail to mean much to the various localities where they are centered. There are the camp needs which must be supplied from the farms and in the course of a season they run into large amounts making the business worth catering to.

As a vacation ground the various ponds and lakes in the county have undergone marked development in the past two decades, and the end is by no means reached. There is always a welcome for those who want to come. The more the merrier and as the number impressed by the attractiveness of these places increases the greater becomes the appreciation by those who have always resided within the proverbial stone's throw of them.

BEWARE THE SWINDLE

Nothing but the greatest indignation can be displayed when those who seek to get rich quick set out to do so by swindling methods. Even stronger becomes the feeling when such an individual separates a widow with a family of four children from all her savings. And yet it is a trick that is is played over and over again, and will be continued just as long as there are those who are ready to trust those who tell alluring tales and promise big returns for their money.

A Boston widow has just parted with $1400 which she and her family need because a stranger promised her large profits from investing in a lunchroom proposition. Each put a similar amount into the same tin box which the stranger left with the widow only for her to find upon opening it that it contained nothing but worthless paper.

There is nothing in the way of leniency which such a robber should get if he can be caught, and yet there is no better lesson needed by many others in the way of caution and yet, as was the case with the Boston woman, there's no telling how soon other schemers will be working the same or similar dodges upon those who should and do know better. The gullibility of the public never seems to decrease in keeping with the warnings that are almost daily provided. The fascinating possibility that there's a chance to get a gold mine for a mere pittance too often sways the judgment, when the proposition itself reeks with suspicion.

THE MAN WHO TALKS

Great events in human history are celebrated because they have a claim to immortality. We have no moral right to forget the great forces that have made us what we are either as a nation or as individuals. Nor is there any general disposition to forget those great epochs that have made a distinct contribution to the general welfare. Clearly a moral obligation rests upon us to keep alive the memory of the men and their deeds that are the foundation of our present civilization. We should do this not only for what great spirits have done for us in the past, but we as an example for the rising generation. There is so much of the ignoble and unrighteous in life, that the tendency is to inspire the young with the idea that it is everyone for himself, and selfishness and self interest are the controlling factors of life.

To illustrate: Suppose we set out to teach the young that devotion, and, if necessary, sacrifice, should be rendered to our country; that we should subordinate ease, pleasure, luxury, and self interest to the general good; that it is our country before it is ourselves that is to be served. Now we see a look of perplexity come into the faces of the young people we are talking to—and why? Because they look about and see men moving heaven and earth for office, and they are not blind to the character of these men. They know that the same tactics applied to business would be their ruin. These young people know that in our national congress investigations are going on searching into the methods of reelection. The logical youth asks: "If patriotism is a duty why don't the people send as their best representatives the best people? Why let interested parties and cliques control the situation? Is there not a moral logic in this?

Now, then, how are we going to counteract this baneful influence on our young people? Simply by bringing to their notice those noble characters in the past whose courage and patriotism have made our country illustrious. Men who subordinated all personal interests to the national good; men who "gave the last measure of devotion" to the establishment of a country that they could call their own. On February 22 we hold up Washington so that our young people can see him from Maine to California; his great ability, his sterling character, his intrinsic worth can do much to offset impressions of an opposite nature as they see many things in the national life of today. The men who worked with Washington come in very justly for their meed of praise. What Washington did as a soldier Jefferson did as an organizer and statesman. The pen that wrote the Declaration of Independence did as much to put the United States of America on the map of the world as the sword that prevailed at Yorktown.

As we have just passed the day that marks the 150 anniversary of our national life let me just mention six events that the American people will never allow to be forgotten: 1492 when the great Spaniard discovered this continent. With the science of today it would be an easy task but it meant courage in 1492. The next is 1620, when the Pilgrim Fathers landed on Plymouth rock. It seemed a wild adventure but from their devotion to duty there has come the world's greatest civilization. The third was the work of 1776 which will keep the Fourth of July forever alive. Next was 1863 when American tore the cancer of slavery from her vitals and took on new life. The next two were 1898 and 1917 in both of which our country fought in the interests of God and humanity.

While we do not claim that a noisy demonstration is the highest type of a national celebration; neither do we believe that the quietude of a graveyard is indicative of latent strength. It does however seem somewhat strange that the 150th anniversary of a great nation's birth can be passed by with as little enthusiasm as the celebration of the Fourth of July this year. Had it not been for the pep of the small boy with his explosives November 11th this year would have seemed like one of Xenophon's "big but deserted cities." It is almost inconceivable that the event could have gone by with so little enthusiasm. Of course we have with us now a large foreign element who cannot be expected to enthuse over such a matter. It is unreasonable to suppose that the initiative should have been taken by them. But where were the 100 per cent Americans of whom we have heard? Did it escape their minds that a certain thing took place 150 years ago in Philadelphia that that has been regarded of some little importance?

The value of any worthy institution may be gauged by two things; first, by the age of the institution, and secondly, by the number of people it has served. Probably most of our churches last Sunday made some reference to the national importance of the day. At the same time they observed the sacrament of the Lord's supper. Each in its own way celebrated a great event. The Lord's supper reaches back over nearly 20 centuries; the Fourth of July celebration only a century and a half. The Lord's supper appeals to all civilized people equally; the Fourth of July appeals mostly to the people of the United States. In other words the one celebration is universal while the other is local. The one appeals to the American people, the other to humanity.

In the celebration of the eucharist, or, as it is more generally known, The Lord's supper, there is one feature that makes it quite unique, and that is we associate it with the death of a great world character. There is no other great historical character whose death has been celebrated for nearly 2,000 years. This is one evidence of the amazing uniqueness of Jesus. With other great men it is the day of their birth that is observed, not the day of their death. To do the latter would be the height of insult. It is February 22, Washington's birthday that we celebrate, not December 14 the day on which he died. Nobody for an instant would think of doing that. For the same reason we hang out our flags on February 12 and make much of the day in memory of Lincoln, not April 15 the day on which the assassin's bullet triumphed. But with Christ it is both Christmas and Good Friday.

Stories That Recall Others

Holds Affection Lightly.

Paul, age six, had played with little Miriam, aged four, who lived across the street, almost daily, in his own words she was his "sweetheart."

But in the last few days they have not been seen together. Paul has stayed in his own front and back yard. The grownup girl who stays next door asked him: "Paul, what has come between your sweetie and you? I haven't seen you playing with Miriam for a long time. Does she like some other little boy better, or do you have a new girl?"

Paul replied disinterestedly: "Aw, I've got a turtle now."

Many a man's morality doesn't begin to work until he discovers that he is being shadowed by a detective.

THE COTTON MILL SITUATION IN NEW ENGLAND.

A southern cotton mill, lately offered in Boston for sale, was described as having good modern machinery and buildings, was situated where labor costs were about $1.50 per operative per diem and where coal was delivered at the furnace for $3.40 per ton, and the property was exempt entirely from taxes for a long period writes J. Murray Howe in the Boston Transcript.

Labor in New England, even where there have been two or more cuts, exceeds the $1.50 a day by at least 50 per cent, and coal at the furnace costs $6 a ton. As for taxes, the writer knows of five large cotton mills in the larger New England industrial cities, any one of which can be bought for less than $1,000,000, and no one of which pays the assessors less than $100,000 a year. The investment thus would stand with an annual handicap of from ten per cent to 15 per cent or more.

New England by no means suffers alone from over-production. It is rampant in the south, where many of the mills are showing red figures and endeavors have been made lately to combine and reduce output.

A southern mill owner, who has very lately been in New England looking over a number of mills and studying conditions here, said to the writer a few days ago: "Manufacturing can be done in the north to better advantage in many lines than is possible with us in the south. It will take a full generation for us to build labor organizations and operative efficiency to any such point as exists in New England mills, where fine goods and various specialities are concerned. Where our centers are growing into sizable cities, the operative is developing a taste for the movies, and the auto which incites him to ever increasing demands for larger wages, which is a danger we have to face in the south."

In addition to these conditions the competing southern mills generally have represented a much larger initial cost of plant than that of the northern ones, though to be sure we now hear of southern mills offered for sale at half or a third of cost.

Weak Spots in Mill Management

In New England textile mills the treasurer is the executive officer upon whom everything depends. Under the shelter of high protective tariffs, and generally in control of the best water powers, these mills have prospered for almost a century of life since the Lowells, Lawrences, Bootts, Lymans, Cabots and other pioneers of industry took possession of the New England rivers.

Of late years the treasurerships have often gone into the hands of men of the second and third generations, a class of more than doubtful competence, sometimes known as "Uncles Nephews," while on the other hand a certain number of mills are managed by men past the prime of life who cannot adapt themselves to modern methods and modern competition, and, worse still, a few who have lost their competent heads have gone into the hands of directors, commonly bank officers, corporation lawyers, or large bank depositors, who are the most incompetent of all in regard to mill matters.

So long as the competition was not keen, the mechanical plant well sustained and trade-marks and the prestige of former business of value retained all went well, but suddenly we plunged into a world war resulting in an unhealthy stimulation of business. Both in the north and the rapidly growing manufacturing south, enlargements went on rapidly. Almost every mill added to its floor area, and to its machinery, as well as to the temporary supply of raw material at the highest costs. The slump came! It was suddenly discovered that there was a general over-supply, and on top of this came the change of fashion, with the disappearance of women's skirts. Even the men contributed to the curtailment by abandoning their long drawers for short trunks, and the women as well as the men made matters worse so far as cotton manufacturers were concerned by developing an insatiate appetite for silk or whatever looked like silk—in the main rayon, an article of inferior wearing quality.

Why Dividends Have Gone

It is easy to understand why dividends in half the New England mills have disappeared. The only wonder is that they are being continued is something like the other half.

One looking into the condition of almost any one of a dozen of the larger mills now on the market for sale will easily learn the truth. In addition to indifferent or incompetent management, and (generally corollary to this) much old and only partially efficient machinery, antiquated selling methods, and old, badly arranged and badly lighted buildings are found to exist.

It is a period of fierce competition and narrow margins of profit at best—one where the most modern efficiency as well as the best kinds of new machinery are essential. So far as the latter is concerned the conditions in ordinary yarn-spinning are typical of the whole situation. Fully 800,000 of cotton spindleage is offered for sale for removal today in Massachusetts alone. An examination in detail shows that at least 75 per cent of this is from 10 to 40 years old and, except where it has had very exceptional care and use, should go into the junk heap. The writer of late has seen busily turning spindles that are 35 to 40 years old and which at best can have 80 or 90 per cent of the efficiency of new ones. A difference of 10 per cent means more than any profit obtainable in ordinary manufactures today.

Three Essentials Needed

To manufacture successfully at present three things are needed—a competent head, new machinery which means new money, and effective selling agencies. A fourth matter, i. e., mills to manufacture with, is of minor importance as they are a drug on the market, and can be bought almost at nominal prices.

For success needed a high order of talent in management is needed. A new mill treasurer should be one thoroughly trained in mechanical science, either through systematic education or long experience as a progressive workman, or both. At the same time he should not only be possessed of energy and progressiveness, but of inherent business acumen. He must be a good mechanic. When such a man is secured, really competent support in his directorship is imperative.

When our textile schools have turned out more men of this type, and our mill owners are wise enough to employ them in place of incompetent family connections, or old men sticking to obsolete methods, and semi-obsolete machinery, we shall see success again in many of our textile establishments. We shall see under the new management not only a large junking of old machinery but destruction of antiquated buildings poorly arranged and badly situated for the work of modern days or a turning of them to other mechanical uses, all of which means less textile product and more profit.

New England Will Survive

The writer intends by no means to be understood as dismissing all the present New England mill managers as incompetent. On the contrary it is realized that among the older men at least a few are possessed of a high order of talent as business men and textile heads. Some of the "still income paying" textile mills are managed by men of this type. Even among those that have ceased to pay dividends are a very, very few where confidence may be placed in the managements and where stockholders have a strong likelihood of ultimate return of good income.

Incidental to all this it is worth while to realize that New England is not starving under the depressed condition of our "textiles." She is far from lacking in mechanical capacity. It is a significant fact that, while Lowell has today but about 10,000 operatives at work in her cotton mills, Cambridge, a city of approximately the same size with no "textiles" employs 23,000 in mechanical work. New England is busy making razors and radiators, refining oil and sugar—assembling automobiles, producing paper by the billion yards, and casting metal into a 1,000 forms of machinery, to say nothing of our "shoemaking" and our hat making. Even our "textiles" will in the end refuse to "down" but will live as Lancashire lives in England.

Mills with sufficient reserve capital to tide over a short period, with the infusion of new young blood and the elimination of "deadwood" will live on, leaving a more compact and effective mass of New England textiles, which will generally pay its way or become distinctly profitable. An old story of the survival of the fittest!

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Defying the Laws.

Mr. Editor: As usual President Coolidge in his Fourth of July speech at Philadelphia gave his audience his best thought. Clearly and succinctly he demonstrated the functioning of the constitution of the United States. Doubtless the majority of his audience were familiar with the fundamental principles—but the earnest presentation of them must have been an inspiration; it certainly was timely, for there is a large number of men and women who are not 100 per cent. Americans who need to be reminded that when they defy the laws of their own country, they are not only sadly wanting in loyalty, but common sense. They have to learn that President Coolidge spoke the truth when he said: "It is not the enactment, but the observance of laws that creates the character of a nation," and he might have added, reveals the character of the citizen. This point has been terribly illustrated by the defiance of the Volstead act and brought great discredit upon our people. I heard a woman only the other day, say that when the boys came back from over the seas they took every opportunity to break the Volstead act in spirit, to show their disapproval of prohibition; that they felt it was a put over job, while they were away. This was the version her son gave. It was too true in some cases, but many, however, I can not believe that the majority of our brave men did not understand that it was a war measure and was as much for their own good as for the people at home. It proves that President Coolidge was right when he said: "We do need a better understanding and comprehension of our laws and a better knowledge of government in general."

Doubtless there were many in that vast audience who had not thought of the constitution as a document founded upon a religious ideal, the first constitution, if not the only one the world has ever known. It is truly American and has stood the test for 150 years. It has been the beacon light, that has attracted the notice of the world and brought millions of foreigners to our shores. President Coolidge has done more to educate the public in the fundamental principle of our government than any other president. The keynote of all his addresses has been obedience to the laws, and the country has needed it during these years of unrest and turmoil. He has been a Moses to call the people back to the old fashioned religious ideas of the founders of the constitution. It is with more than ordinary interest that we scan an article in the June issue of the 19th century on "The Crisis of Prohibition" by S. K. Ratcliffe, the American correspondent of the "influential Manchester Guardian. It is of more than passing interest at this moment because he is a keen observer in personal behavior and habits. What he has to say is very disquieting to say the least. He says that the "present situation can hardly be exaggerated." He even declared that, "it has become a singularity to recognize the laws." "Women drink their share." "The houses of good citizens accept alleged liquor." "The cocktail habit is back." "The hipflask is an institution." There is no denying that the "peppy" American girl expects to be given a drink by her companion, etc., etc. This is a terrible indictment of American social life and shows the need of just such an address given by President Coolidge. Mr. Coolidge submits that "in the whole range of constitutional practice and of social ethics there is nowhere any problem that transcends in importance the question now raised by the good citizens of the United States." He is surprised that the resentment or bravado of so many has reached the point of civil disobedience.

"But," says Mr. Radcliff, "to speak as many people do, of their being more drinking in America since prohibition is either malice or folly." From a long personal observation he would say the same about drunkenness in the streets and other public places. We are grateful for the good word he has to say in regard to prohibition. The fact that President Coolidge received the overwhelming vote proves that the majority of American citizens are imbued with the idea that "the end of all good government is to cultivate humanity and protect the happiness of all and the good of every man in all his rights, his life, his liberty, estate, honor, and so forth."

Let us hope and pray that the minority who have been so conspicuous in their defiance of law may sincerely repent and face about and shoulder their responsibility in upholding the spiritual ideals which are the bed rock of our constitution. The object of a good citizen will not be to get all he can out of life for himself, but to try to make the lives of others happier. It is the essence of Christ's admonition, "He that findeth his life shall lose it and he that loseth his life for my sake shall find it."

Sunday Morning Talk

OUR COMFORTER

There is no journey of life but has its cloudy days; and there are some days in which our eyes are so blinded with tears that we find it hard to see our way or even read God' promises. Those days that have a bright sunrise, followed by sudden thunderclaps and bursts of unlooked for sorrows are the ones that test certain of our graces the most severely. Yet the law of spiritual eyesight very closely resembles the law of physical optics.

When we come suddenly out of the daylight into a room even moderately darkened, we can discern nothing, but the pupil of our eye gradually enlarges until unseen objects before visible. Even so the pupil of the eye of faith has the blessed faculty of enlarging in the dark hour of bereavement, so that we discover that our loving Father's hand is holding the cup of trial and by and by the gloom becomes luminous with glory.

The 14th chapter of John never fails with such music upon our ears as when we catch its sweet strain amid the pauses of some terrible storm, "Let not your hearts be troubled; ye believe in God believe also in Me. I will not leave you comfortless, and again in Matt. 28.20. So I am with you alway, even unto the end of the world."

IN DAY'S NEWS

YILDIZ KIOSK—PAVILION OF THE STAR

Yildiz palace is to be a Monte Carlo on the Bosporus, according to an announcement from Constantinople. The Turkish government, endeavoring to put its surplus imperial palaces to some profit, is said to have closed with Italian concessionaires, who will convert the former Ottoman White House into a casino.

"Yildiz Kiosk is the full name of the palace," says a bulletin of the National Geographic society from its headquarters in Washington, D. C., "and it is a name which can serve as well in the near future as it has in the past—Yildiz Kiosk, the Pavilion of the Star. Lucky or unlucky? That is not a new question at Yildiz.

"For its old master, Sultan Abd-ul-Hamid II, the Star probably can be called a lucky one. Any Sultan who reigned 33 years was fortunate. True he was turned out in the end with little more ceremony than was accorded Louis XVI and Marie Antoinette, when they were ejected from a far grander palace at Versailles. But 33 years is a fairly long lease on a view of which it has been said, 'No other sovereign on the globe can contemplate from his chamber windows a scene which approaches this.'

"The view that Yildiz commands is the Bosporus and the Sea of Marmora. Within the sweep of the eye (or in the case of the hermit Sultan, his telescope) lies palaces on both shores of the storied strait; the needle minarets of Constantinople's quarters, Stamboul, Pera, and Scutari; the Golden Horn, that impudent spit of land where 27 Sultans were born to terrify Europe for three hundred years; and finally the colorful parade of ships of the nations in and out of the Black Sea.

"To appreciate the setting of the Yildiz palace, one must first fix in mind the geography of its position. The Bosporus is a Main street. The Sea of Marmora is its open common or park beyond which 'The Street' narrows again at the Dardanelles. Like the great avenues every American is familiar with, the Bosporus has its thickly populated downtown business districts which in this case are the quarters of Constantinople. The open Black Sea takes the place of the open countryward which our Bosporus avenue leads and as the crush of the city is left behind magnificent suburban residences and palaces command one's attention right and left.

"On the left, soon after one leaves the city riding north, appears a magnificent palace stretching along the shore for a third of a mile. This is the Dolma Bagtche, the true Versailles Palace of the Turkish Empire. It cost $15,000,000. Sultan Abd-ul-Mejid tripped on a doorsill as he entered with the proud architects and builders to inspect the newly completed palace. That was enough for him. He left immediately and never set foot in the place again. Dolma Bagtche was too grand for Abd-ul Hamid's taste, so he had built for himself Yildiz on the dominant hill a mile to the north. And close to it one sees the private, minaretted mosque he built of the same white marble.

"Yildiz Kiosk is a two story palace. It would pass for the fine country residence of a rich gentleman. There is very little that is Turkish about its architecture and a very great deal that is French. It is set in a park surrounded by staunch walls. Once a week in daylight and once a year at night time Abd-ul Hamid drove through the gate of the wall and down the hill a short block to his private mosque. Beneath his tunic he wore a bullet-proof vest for he was mortally afraid that some one of his subjects who crowded the line of march would take a shot at him. The annual night promenade to the mosque commemorated the date when Gabriel began to reveal the Koran to Mohammed. Torches lighted the scene. The curious and the devout in thousands came to see the spectacle. Night of Power, Turks called it, and the custom was that the Sultan each year on this night took a new wife.

"Narrow-minded old Abd-ul Hamid, who prohibited the use of dynamos in Constantinople because he confused them with dynamite, never went into his city. The city never peeped within his walls. That was forbidden. So it came to pass that Abd-ul Hamid did not dare to look into the heart of Constantinople except with a telescope. Finally when the young Turks in 1909 resuscitated the Constitution the Sultan had suppressed, the populace crowded in to see what kind of a place the old man had shut himself up in to all the comfortless, and again in Matt. 28.20. So I am with you alway, even unto the end of the world."

Dear Doctor

I have only taken one bottle of Dr. Reilly's Herb Tonic and I feel like a new person.

I was troubled with constipation—had to take laxative all the time and felt very weak—no ambition.

Then one of the ladies at Houghton & Dutton's Store told me of this wonderful spring tonic and I tried it out.

I can tell you I am not sorry and can safely recommend it to anyone desiring an all round spring tonic and builder.

Sincerely,
MRS. M. COLLINS

In 1880 she was married to George Lippitt of Norwich who was then engaged in the wholesale grocery business. THAMES VALLEY REPRESENTATIVES TO PLAN FOR MONSTER BARBECUE

At the invitation of the United Commercial Travelers and the Thames Valley Citizens committee, representatives of the various civic bodies of Norwich, New London, Danielson and Niantic met Friday night at Buckingham Memorial to discuss plans for a monster barbecue to be held soon.

The meeting was presided over by Robert W. Perkins, president of the Thames Valley Citizens committee, who stated that in order to bring eastern Connecticut before the public something out of the ordinary should be staged and that a continual line of publicity should be kept up that the Thames Valley should become known not only in this state but throughout the country as an ideal location for business houses. The Thames Valley as stated, offers unlimited advantages to manufacturers and it is the aim of the citizens committee to keep this information before the public at all times.

Speaking of the origin of the plans for a monster barbecue to be participated in by all leading manufacturing and civic organizations of eastern Connecticut, Mr. Perkins stated that the United Commercial Travelers had planned on baseball games, golf or other competitive sports, to be played previous to the day of the outing the final games to be played on the day of the barbecue.

Several locations for a barbecue of the size of the one planned were discussed and it was finally voted that the representative heads of all eastern Connecticut manufacturing and civic organizations constitute the general committee for the outing and that this committee meet at New London during the coming week to complete the plans for selections of working committees and arranging for the time and place of the barbecue.

During the discussion it was unanimously voted that the women of eastern Connecticut be invited to participate in this great all-Thames Valley barbecue.

SUES FOR $10,000 FOR DEATH OF HIS SON

Andrew Salkowski of Norwich has brought suit for $10,000 against Michael Pisarko, also of this city, alleging that his 10 year old son, Waclaw, died as the result of injuries received when struck by a car owned by Pisarko. Papers in the suit have been filed with Clerk George E. Parsons of the superior court and the action is returnable the first Tuesday in September.

It is alleged in the complaint that on or about June 29, 1923 young Salkowski was standing on the sidewalk near the intersection of West Thames and Everett streets waiting for a team which was to enter an open lot nearby. At the time mentioned Pisarko was operating a Stutz automobile along West Thames street from Montville to Norwich, which machine it is alleged, was not registered.

It is alleged that Pisarko drove his machine on the sidewalk striking young Salkowski and knocking down, injuring the boy's skull, which resulted in death shortly afterwards.

It is claimed that the boy's death was caused solely by the recklessness, carelessness and negligence of the defendant, Pisarko. The father of the boy brings action as administrator of his son's estate, through the counsel, Attorney John T. Lacey.

After the fatal accident Pisarko ran off down the road to reach a telephone to summon help and was not seen again till he gave himself up at night at police headquarters. It was then learned that he had gone to the home of his Attorney, V. P. A. Quinn.

STRUCK BY AUTOMOBILE NEAR LISBON BRIDGE

Udel Libo of Lisbon was severely bruised and cut when he was struck by the automobile driven by Charles J. Parkhurst of Jewett City late Friday evening. The accident happened just across the Lisbon road bridge at the I. B. Mart'n Co. on a straight stretch of road.

Libo could give no clear version of the accident other than that he knew something hit him and he found himself lying in the road. According to Mr. Parkhurst he was driving home from Norwich and as he crossed the bridge another car approached from the direction of Jewett City and he was blinded by the glaring headlights on the machine. Just as the machine passed he caught a glimpse of an object beside the road. He swung sharply to his left to avoid hitting the object but sideswiped it. Being blinded by the lights of the other machine Mr. Parkhurst was under the impression that he had grazed a pole or a tree and came to a stop a little further on where he was hailed by Constable Aubrey Potter who happened to be in the immediate vicinity. Going back to the place where his car struck the object Libo was found getting up in a dazed condition and unable to tell what had happened. The injured man was taken in Mr. Parkhurst's car to Dr. Lucas' T. Cassidy and his cuts were dressed.

The marks in the road bear out Mr. Parkhurst's statement that he did all in his power to avoid the accident, for the tire marks show that he turned almost at right angles across the road away from the man.

Parkhurst was placed under arrest by Constable Potter and will appear in the Lisbon court this (Saturday) afternoon before Justice Walter Drew.

NEED CITY ORDINANCE FOR THREE-LIGHT BEACON

When City Attorney Leo Roy Robbins in the city court Thursday morning threw out the charge of driving to the left of the automatic traffic beacon at the corner of Broadway, Main and Shetucket streets, which was made against Carlos H. Kennedy, 18, of Waterbury, it was disclosed that the city attorney will not entertain prosecution on arrests made for driving to the left of this beacon nor for passing it when the red light is showing.

It is understood that City Attorney Robbins takes the position that there is no city ordinance covering the situation as to this beacon, either as to which side a driver is to pass or when to pass it in relation to the light which is showing. The state law relating to beacons provides that the driver shall "proceed as directed," but there is nothing on the Norwich beacon which directs the driver to go to the right and City Attorney Robbins maintains that the custom varies in different cities in the state and also varies here as the busses and trucks are frequently directed to pass the beacon on the left.

If this three-light beacon, which was put in at an expense of about $672 to the city, is to direct traffic the way it was intended to do, it is apparent that it will need to be bolstered up by a city ordinance, since drivers may disregard it as far as any fear of prosecution in the city court is concerned under the present conditions.

POLICE SEARCH FOR HARTFORD MAN'S ASSAILANT

HARTFORD, July 9—(AP)—The police tonight were trying to find the mysterious assailant whose blow in the abdomen last Monday caused the death of Ernest Bushaw, 39, of 1093 Main street at the city hospital tonight. Efforts by Detective Sergeant John F. Madigan to resolve rumors that the quarrel which caused the man's death began over a woman failed.

Dr. W. V. Tromblev was called last Monday to the rooming house where Bushaw lived to attend the man. The death was said to have admitted receiving a blow in the abdomen but insisted that it took place outside the rooming house. The physician ordered him removed to the city hospital where his condition gradually became worse.

Medical Examiner Henry N. Costello said tonight that the cause of death was an infection of the abdomen caused by a rupture of the intestines which in turn was caused by a blow.

RUM RING'S "FOREIGN AGENT" PLEADS GUILTY

NEW YORK, July 8.—(AP)—Jack Kirschein described by the government as the "foreign agent" of the Dwyer international rum ring entered a plea of guilty today shortly after the jury had been completed for the trial of William V. Dwyer and ten co-defendants.

Dwyer was referred to by Assistant United States Attorney Stichman as the head of this gigantic combine, the self-fledged king of the bootleggers to whom all other operators paid for protection. He and the other defendants are charged with smuggling liquor into the country, failing to pay customs duties and concealing liquor in violation of the tariff act.

The miners mutined today and locked the cake in the shaft, making it impossible to send help down to the guards, Warden Mackey said tonight.

WASHINGTON SWELTERS IN GRIP OF HEAT WAVE

WASHINGTON, July 8.—(AP)—President Coolidge got out of Washington just in time. The first real heat wave of the summer gripped the city today, and one of its immediate reactions was that government clerks who work in some of the temporary war-built structures were dismissed an hour early.

GUESS WORK REMOVED FROM MOLDING SANDS

ITHACA, N. Y., July 9 (AP)—Science has taken the guess work out of another industrial process.

It has evolved standard methods for testing molding sands which enable the foundryman to tell whether the sand he is using for a given casting has the right properties for preventing flaws, whether it is strong enough and whether it contains the proper venting qualities.

The standardization which already is effecting substantial savings in the industry, has been perfected by an international research committee organized by the American Foundrymen's association and the National Research council. Much of the research work that attended the development of the standard tests has been done in the laboratory of geology at Cornell university.

As a result, the committee has recommended several pieces of apparatus for testing the strength, permeability and texture of molding sands. Previously the foundryman had had no accurate means of determining whether he was using the sand that exactly met his requirements and consequently many castings were spoiled due to experimentation with various grades.

Now, however, he can test his sand before he starts a casting, thus often eliminating the possibility of costly mistakes. With the same methods he can maintain a daily control over the properties of his sand heaps.

One of the factors leading to the organization of the research committee was the gradual depletion of the deposits of high grade molding sand and the increased costs of shipments from new and less accessible beds. The annual sand bill of the American foundrymen it was estimated, had soared to $6,000,000 and so scientists were asked to find a means of preventing waste.

MODERN VAMP COMBINATION OF OLD TYPE, SAYS HENLEY

CULVER CITY, Cal., July 9 (AP)—Every era has its vamp, from the days of Adam and Eve on. With the changes in civilization there are changes in styles of vamps.

The modern vamp, however, is not unlike the ancient species as the flapper is to Cleopatra, in the opinion of Hobart Henley, Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer movie director.

"The panther-like lady who used fantastic tricks to capture men was the first modern vamp," he said, "Hers was a long reign, but she stepped out of the picture to make room for the flapper.

"This later devastator of the hearts of men rode the crest of the wave for sometime. She seemed harmless but she was really mischievous enough to cause a great deal of trouble.

"But the flapper, too, is passe. She lived for honors with the devil-may-care, heedless type, who also is a back number. The little lady who did not know how to back her car out of the parking space and just had to ask some nice man to do it for her ran the vivacious flapper a close second. But men soon 'got wise' to the girl who characterized herself as 'just an old-fashioned person.'

"The new vampire is a cross between all these types. She is an interested in outdoor sports as the flapper. She plays a good game of golf and tennis and knows how to be a regular fellow but away from the tennis court and golf course she dresses in organdie and floppy hats and is just demure enough to be interesting. In evening clothes she is quite as seductive as the first vampire type.

"Because she is clever enough to combine all three types she is utterly baffling to men and hers will be a long reign."

YOUTHFUL BURGLAR IS CAPTURED AT MIDDLETOWN

MIDDLETOWN, July 9.—(AP)—Stanley "Smigel, 18, of this city who escaped from the state reform school at Meriden, recently, was captured here today after he had attempted to wreak into the home of Isaac Altman in Prospect street. He admitted that he and a companion had broken into the Noiseless lunch a few nights ago and that they were planning to hold up the workers in the Middletown Savings bank tomorrow.

Smigel and the companion, whose name is now known, have been camping three miles below this city since the former's break from the reform school. Early this morning they made the attempt to enter the Altman home by using a skeleton key. Mrs. Altman heard them and notified the police. A chase followed in which several shots were fired and Smigel was captured. The police have been searching all day for the second man but he has not been found.

PRES. COOLIDGE RECEIVES NEWSPAPER CORRESPONDENTS

PAUL SMITH'S, N. Y., July 9—(AP)—Making his first trip outside of White Pine camp since his arrival in the Adirondacks Wednesday, President Coolidge motored late today to the executive offices, three miles away, and received the newspaper correspondents who have followed him into the mountains.

Accompanied by Mrs. Coolidge who remained in the automobile when the president walked a hundred yards to the offices, the chief executive appeared in excellent health and rested after close attention to duties in Washington while he indicated his pleasure at being in the forest country where the change from life in the city is expected to put him in excellent condition for another arduous year.

Mr. Coolidge intends to make no long trips from the camp other than a visit to Plymouth, Vermont, his boyhood home, where he may go for a few days next week. The time for making this visit, however, has not been definitely settled and will depend much upon the situation as it develops in the next few days.

UNABLE TO IDENTIFY MAN KILLED ON TURNPIKE

NEW BRITAIN, July 9 — (AP) — The police after an all-day investigation reported tonight that they had been unable to identify the man almost instantly killed on the Hartford-Berlin turnpike early this morning when he was struck by a truck owned by the Holmes Transportation company, of Worcester, Mass., and operated by Ernest W. Henderson, of that city. The man's neck was broken.

He was dressed in working clothes and carried a gold watch with a silver initial "C" on the fob. The same initial was on a belt buckle.

So Politicians May Sleep

MINNEAPOLIS, July 10 (AP)—When members of the Minnesota Federation of Professional and Business Women's clubs hold their next annual convention early morning "larks," if not wholly taboo, will be closely scrutinized.

This appears likely in view of the mild sensation created among federation members because a band of 1926 convention delegates playfully aroused a former "dirt farmer" United States senator from his hotel suite for a protested two a. m. speech in behalf of his own candidacy for the gubernatorial nomination.

An ideal woman is one who is blind to your imperfections.

GIL JONES PITCHES NO-HIT GAME BUT LOSES THROUGH TEAMMATES' ERRORS

Altho Gil Jones, Yantic's star right-hander, turned back Saint Joseph's without a hit Friday evening, his team lost a close fast game 1 to 0. Yantic's big pitcher was never in better form, only three men reaching first in the five innings he was on the mound. Teo Gilbert in the second when he was hit by a pitched ball, Stanley on a walk in the third, and Nap Liberty on an error in the fourth by Normandin coupled with another one by Sweet in the same inning which allowed the Saints to score their only run.

Eddie Koslowski, in the box for the Saints although nicked for five hits, kept them well scattered and was invincible in the pinches. Koslowski fanned five while Jones struck out seven.

Due to a misunderstanding regarding their transportation, the Saints did not put in an appearance until nearly 7:30 p. m., nearly an hour after the regular scheduled time for starting. Manager Peckham of Yantic declared that he would play the game only under protest, as he claimed the game should be forfeited to his team considering the lateness in starting the game. The Saints, however, refused to play at all under these conditions, as they said it was not their fault that they were late. After a heated argument, the rival managers, rather than disappoint the large crowd that had gathered, consented to play the game without any protests attached to it.

The only score of the game came in the fourth. Nap Liberty, heading off for the Saints, was safe when Normandin juggled his grounder and then threw low to first. Chip Dugas laid down a bunt toward first, and while Sweet was running him down between first and home, Liberty went to second and tried for third. Sweet threw to third to catch Nap, but his throw went wild, and Liberty scored.

Yantic had several chances to push across a run, but did not have the necessary punch. With one out in the first, Hoxie singled, went to second when Nap Liberty mussed up Jones' hit, but died there while Normandin filed out. Again in the third, Hoxie doubled with two out but Sweet ended the frame by popping to Dugas. In the fifth, Yantic made a last bid for the game but careless base-running spoiled any chances they might have had to tie up the game. Jerry Lamphere led off with a single which took a bad bound over Chip Dugas, but when he tried to stretch the hit into a double was caught, J. Gilbert to L. Gilbert. McCall then singled to left, but H. Lamphere struck out, and Porter forced McCall at second for the last out of the game.

RIVERVIEW AND FALCONS IN BATTLE THIS AFTERNOON

At the State Hospital diamond this afternoon Riverview and the Falcons of New Britain will clash in the third meeting of this club this season. At the last meeting of these two clubs at Riverview the local team nosed out a close victory over the invaders and upon today's game depends the series between these two clubs. The Falcons have a strong team and will pitch Gordy, a class A. A. league pitcher, against Riverview this afternoon. Gordy has been playing ball steadily in an organized league and has been going good, and it will be with difficulty that Riverview will be able to touch him.

Manager Zemke of the Riverview club will start Lefty Dugas on the mound for his club. Lefty has shown the Riverview team that he has the goods and has improved greatly since he has a real ball club in back of him. Cimikoski, Academy second baseman, will be given a chance at the keystone position with Riverview this afternoon and should fit in well with this club. Jigger Farrell will cover the first sack for Riverview in the absence of Lefty Harrell. The lineups:

Riverview—Normandin ss; Cimikoski 2b; Mills 1f; Hamil rf; Liberty 3b; Farrell 1b; Moore cf; Belair c; West p; Dugas p.

Falcons of New Britain—Ferguson rf; Huber lf; J. Kania 2b; Stan. Budnack ss; St. Budnick 3b; Klatka 1b; Kopec c; E. Kania p; Gordy p.

VELVETMEN CLASH WITH HERRUPS ON SUNDAY

Sunday afternoon at the J. B. Martin grounds the Velvetmen meet the fast Herrup club of Hartford, Connecticut's premier road club. This club has defeated some of the leading semi pro teams in the state and if the local club wants to get away with the long end of the score they will have to hit the pill as this club has a mean bunch of stickers. This club out of seven starts this season has only met defeat once.

Manager Waite will present the same lineup on the field Sunday that defeated Ashland A. A. several weeks ago and is confident that he will duplicate the same with the Velvetmen. The Hartford club is composed of players such as "Ginger" Cleary and "Porky" Flynn, two of the best semi pro twirlers in the Capitol City. Jardine will do the backstop work, "Jigger" Farrell will cover first, Webb at second, Kelley will be seen at third, with Farrell at short. In the outfield will be Tibbles lf. Barleau cf, and Caron rf.

The J. B. Martin lineup will be J. Murphy c, Lemieux or Pepin p, J. Joubert 1b, F. Murphy 2b, F. Gley 3b, DeCelles ss. The outfield will be picked from E. Murphy, E. Joubert, C. Krauss, and W. Gley. Utility, F. Smith and U. Pepin. Game called 3:15 (D. S. T.) Simcox and Roy will officiate.

KENSINGTON TO BE GUESTS OF TAFTVILLE A. A. TODAY

The All-Kensington team, one of the fastest clubs in the state, will clash with the Taftville A. A. team at the Providence street grounds this afternoon in what is expected to be one of the fastest games in the eastern part of the state today. The visiting team comes to Taftville today with a long string of victories including wins over the American chain team, Corbin Red Sox, Middletown I. H. team, Herrups, Naugatuck, Hudson A. C., and Elm City Giants.

Manager Troland realizing that he must strengthen for his future games has added Lefty Buckland and Ginger Cleary to his pitching staff and in all probability Buckland will get the assignment in today's game. Buckland is one of the best of the semi-pro hurlers in the state. He will be opposed by Politis, former pitcher for the New Britain Falcons. The lineups:

Kensington—Politis p, Sullick c; Beagle 1b; Patrous 2b; Zeigler 3b, Jasper ss; McCormick lf; Huber cf; Sheehan rf.

Taftville A. A.—Buckland or Cleary p; Eccleston c; Cardle 1b; Tombari 2b; Yerrington 3b; Gauthier ss; Lathrop lf, Lloyd Jarvis cf; Leo Jarvis or Dona rf.

The moundsman for the local club has not been decided upon as yet but Jab Burns will be behind the bat, Kampf at first, Marchand at second, Gibbs at short and Hamil at third round out the local infield. Fitzgerald in left, Jackson in center and W. Burns in right will compose outfield.

POOLE'S HOMER IN TENTH WINS FOR ATHLETICS

PHILADELPHIA, July 9.—(AP)—Jim Poole's run over the right field fence with two out and the bases bare in the tenth inning gave the Philadelphia Athletics a 4 to 3 decision over Chicago here today in the second game of the series. Poole's homer was his third for the day.

Four-baggers played important roles in the game, Dutch Ruether Barrett's homer in the sixth with two on base giving the White Sox a 3 to 1 lead. The Athletics tied it up in the eight and put over the run for them in the tenth. Score:

WESTERLY

BROKEN GAS PIPE CAUSES EXPLOSION AND CELLAR FIRE

(Special to the Bulletin)

WESTERLY, R. I., July 8—One of the most stubborn fires with which the Westerly Fire department has had to cope for some time, was that which broke out in the basement of the Smith Flower Shop, No. 4, Rhode Island hotel block on Broad street, about 3 o'clock Friday afternoon. The blaze started with an explosion, which resulted from a broken two inch gas main, when employes of the South County Public Service company put a Stillson wrench on the pipe, back of the meter, with the result that the pipe was broken off. The workmen rushed upstairs and informed Farquhar Smith, proprietor, that the cellar was ablaze. He rushed into the square and pulled fire alarm box No. 56. The alarm, sounding from Dixon square brought out to the scene thousands of people who watched the firemen under Fire Chiefs George E. Egger of the Westerly department; Francis MacMahon of the Pawcatuck department and Engineer Reggie Peck of the Watch Hill department put up a stubborn fight. Before the Pawcatuck department came over into Westerly, they had a fire of their own with which to contend. Not ten minutes after the Westerly alarm sounded, the Pawcatuck fire whistle was blown from Box No. 46, West Broad street, near Pawcatuck river bridge for a fire in the Lyric theatre. Operator Donald Fancher was working on the picture machine, when an explosion set fire to the film. Mr. Fancher was burned. Firemen of the P. S. Barber Hose company made short work of the blaze and were then able to assist the Westerly department.

Three hose lines were carried through Rhode Island hotel court and around the hotel to the rear door of the Smith Flower Shop, which was the closest the firemen could get, due to the dense clouds of brownish smoke, which poured up from the cellar, where the gas main proved an immense torch. The Watch Hill department also carried its line of hose to the rear of the flower store.

Lines of hose were laid to the front of the flower store and attempts made to flood out the blaze from this quarter. As the gas connection with the building was made many years ago, there was no shut-off at the street or curb line. Under direction of Highway Engineer A. L. Leon, a force of highway workers began to dig up the street, with the aid of a pneumatic drill, seeking to find the gas main, where it entered the building.

All this time clouds of smoke rolled into the Square, found its way into the adjoining stores of William Segar & Company, grocer, 3 Rhode Island House block, and the Edward M. Dodge & Company, clothiers at No. 5. The smoke also penetrated the millinery store of Mary E. Nestor at No. 6, and the stores of Hugh A. Dunning Hardware, No. 2 and Addison S. Archie, No. 1 clothier. On the floor above the Rhode Island hotel rooms and the Brown Betty Tea Rooms were filled with stifling smoke, while clouds blew out across the rear porches. The firemen, equipped with smoke protectors and handkerchiefs soaked with water, relieved each other from time to time.

From the nature of the construction of the building, the flames were kept within the Smith Flower store basement for three foot brick walls on each side prevented the spread of the blaze and the massive stone steps, leading to the Rhode Island hotel above the cellar stairway of the Flower Shop proved poor material for the flames. The contents of the cellar of the Flower Shop was entirely consumed. One fire fighter, who attempted to visit the basement, when the blaze first started reported a rush of flame from the broken gas main roaring across the cellar. It was though that if sufficient water was poured into the cellar the blaze might be drowned out. Meanwhile, the search for the gas main in the street was continued with an emergency crew of workmen recruited from the South County Public Service Co., while General Manager William C. Clark directed the work in person.

Fire lines were maintained by Chief of Police Thomas E. Brown, Police Patrolman and Westerly fire police, who were stationed at the junction of Elm and Broad street to send auto traffic up Granite street and at the junction of High and Canal street to route traffic up High street, to detour the square. Four lines of hose were laid from the hydrant and the Ahrens-Fox Pumper was stationed at the hydrant in front of the Colonial club, while two more hose lines were led from the hydrant at the foot of Union street.

The whistle on the Cottrell Press Works sounded the recall for the Pawcatuck Fire department at about 5:45 o'clock.

The gas service pipe was dug up and the main plugged by 5 p. m. Fifteen minutes later, Fire Chief Egger declared the fire out. It was found when a hole was cut in the floor in the front part of the flower store to let out the smoke fumes and heat in the basemnet that at least one hard pine joist under the floor had been burned nearly through. During the progress of fighting the fire it was thought best to cut two holes in the floor, at the front of the Dodge store and one in the rear, through which water was poured into the basements of these stores. Water as well as smoke damage resulted to their stock. Miss Nestor, coming from the front door of her millinery shop as a hose nozzle was swung into the front of the Dodge store, received a thorough soaking.

Many of the firemen were more or less overcome by smoke and fumes. Among the more seriously affected were Arthur Scott, of 48 School street, a member of R. I. No. 1 fire company, who was taken out unconscious. A pulmotor was used and he was attended by Dr. E. R. Lewis and later was taken to his home; Fireman White, of Mechanic street, was overcome for a short time.

The work of laying a new gas service pipe with shut-offs to the R. I. Hotel was continued until late in the evening. Water was swept from the Smith Flower store so that business could be resumed but the Dodge store will be closed until the insurance adjustors arrive. All but one line of hose was picked up at 8 p. m. and the Arhens-Fox pumper returned to the engine house. Two firemen kept close watch of the building throughout the night to guard against possible outbreaks of the flames.

Pawcatuck fire whistle was blown about 7:30, Thursday night from Box 46, West Broad street, near Pawcatuck river bridge for a fire in the laundry of Charles Kip, 5 Liberty street in the building owned by the New York, New Haven and Hartford railroad company. The flames started in a rubbish barrel and communicated with the building, some of the flames getting into a partition. Traffic was shut off on Liberty street. Fire Chief Francis J. MacMahon of Pawcatuck Fire department, fought his fire as chief with the assistance of the members of P. S. Barber Hose company. The blaze was soon brought under control, with comparatively small damage.

Members of Harley P. Chase post, Veterans of Foreign Wars, of Pawcatuck, held their meeting Friday evening in Vets hall, Walton block on West Broad street. Members were shown a sketch of a memorial shaft, prepared by a New York designer, which it is planned to erect for a World war memorial at the junction of South and West Broad streets, on a site already owned by them.

Judge Oliver H. Williams, at the regular session of the Third District court, Friday morning, at 9 o'clock read the following: New writ entered: Addison S. Archie vs. Harold Peckham.

Trial Calendar

State, Thomas E. Brown vs. Harry Stewart. Stewart said that he now entered a plea of guilty to illegal possession of intoxicating liquors and furthermore had nothing to say except that this was the first time. Judge Williams learned from Solicitor Ferguson that a quantity of beer and eight quarts of whiskey were seized, when the police raided the Stewart apartments on Canal street. Stewart informed the court that the beer belonged to Mr. Nugent. Judge Williams, on asking the defendant if he could refrain from illegal possession in the future, said, "On payment of costs, sentence is suspended and the case continued three months."

After a short recess the court declared that certain liquors and vessels seized in the raid, there being no appearance for same, were adjudged forfeited to the state.

State, Warren D. Nichols, department of Rhode Island state police, vs. George R. Finch of Anthony, R. I. State Trooper Nichols informed the court that Finch aged 16, operated an automobile on the Noose Neck hill road in the town of Richmond, R. I., which was not equipped with at least two powerful brakes, capable of stopping the automobile within a reasonable distance. The state trooper said that the foot brakes, at a speed of 25 miles per hour, would stop the car only within a 119 feet and that the emergency brake was fair. On questioning, Judge Williams learned that the car was owned by a Mr. Cahoone and on learning this and also that Finch was not employed by him, called Mr. Cahoone before the bench and told him that he was the one who should have appeared, although he said the state trooper had done his duty. He imposed a fine of $25 and costs.

State, Thomas E. Brown, vs. Antonio Pucci. Pucci, aged 21, was charged with the operation of an automobile on Bay street, Watch Hill, on July 3rd, not equipped with at least two powerful brakes. Through an interpreter Pucci admitted driving onto a sidewalk and striking a building. He was fined $25 with the payment of costs.

State, Thomas E. Brown vs. Edward Liotta. Judge Williams asked if there was any appearance for certain liquors seized on July 4th at the Black Coffee House of Edward Liotta, alias John Doe. Attorney Dunn asked for an appearance specially for John Roe and said that he did not want to appear for Mr. Liotta. Then you have no standing in this court, said the judge. Solicitor Ferguson said he had no objections to a continuance of one week for appearance for the liquors seized.

State, Thomas E. Brown vs. Edward Liotta. Attorney Dunn said that Liotta was ready for arraignment on the possession charge and waiving the reading of the complaint entered a plea of not guilty to a complaint, charging the keeping and maintaining a common nuisance, a grog shop and tippling shop, and building, place and tenement, used for illegal sale and illegal keeping of intoxicating liquors and for the habitual resort of intemperate, idle, dissolute, noisy and disorderly persons. Bond was set in the sum of $1,000 bail.

State, Thomas E. Brown vs. Concetta Liotta. In this case it was alleged that Concetta Liotta did make at the Black Coffee House a violent assault upon Police Patrolman Michael Curtin, and him did wound and ill treat. Through Attorney Dunn she entered a plea of not guilty and was required to furnish surety in the sum of $500 bond.

"French Macaroon Flavor"

If you never ate an ice cream that went right to the spot—here's one that will. First a chef has to make the macaroons. He takes blanched almonds and beats them into a smooth paste—mixes this with whites of eggs and fine sugar—drops spoonfuls on oiled paper and bakes in the oven until a delicate brown. Then these delicious, crisp little cakes are crushed and frozen with pure cream. Need any more be said? Enjoy some at your dealer's now—Have it Sunday for dessert. At dependable dealers near you.

THE SOCIAL CORNER

THE SECRET OF SUCCESS IS CONSTANCY OF PURPOSE.

SOCIAL CORNER POETRY
The Thrills of Yesterday

When I hear some folks ravin'
'Bout th' movies an' their thrills,
Of how Bad-Eye McGinty
Never draws without he kills;
An' vengeance-lovin' Velma
Steals a train to save her beau,
It starts me reminiscin'
'Bout th' thrills of long ago.

I picture our old parlor
With th' lamp a-burning bright,
Us children 'round th' table
On a winter Sunday night/
We didn't have no movies,
But th' sterryscope was there
To thrill us with its pictures
Of th' boundless everywhere.

Th' sterryscope—remember?—
Was a kind of picture show,
With scenes that made you wonder
At th' marvels here below,
It had two lookin' lenses,
There were double pictures, too,
But when you got th' focus
Only one scene came to view.

An' there, beneath th' lamplight,
Each child took his turn to see
Niagara Falls froze over,
Or Grand shakin' hands with Lee,
Then we'd go see th' White House
An' dear Dad would always say
He hoped one of his young'uns
Got to run that place some day.

Next thing th' snow-capped Rockies
Would come rangin' into view,
With half a dozen grizzlies
Brave old Buffalo Bill had slew.
Then scenes would shift to Iceland,
Or some far-off place like that—
Fact is, th' world kept changin'
Till you wondered where you're at!

We took in gray old castles,
Walked through royal gardens fair;
Met camels in th' desert,
Saw th' mandarins at prayer.
Each picture was a thriller
That gave each child a heart th' hope
Some day he'd see them truly
In a livin' sterryscope!

Old Grimes

Old Grimes is dead; that good old man
We never shall see more;
He used to wear a long black coat,
All buttoned down before.

His heart was open as the day
His feelings all were true
His hair was some inclined to gray,
He wore it in a queue.

Whene'er he heard the voice of pain,
His breast with pity burned;
The large, round head upon his cane
From ivory was turned.

Kind words he ever had for all,
He knew no base design;
His eyes were dark and rather small,
His nose was aquiline.

He lived at peace with all mankind,
In friendship he was true;
His coat had pocket-holes behind,
His pantaloons were blue.

Unharmed, the sin which earth pollutes
He passed securely o'er,
And never wore a pair of boots
For thirty years or more.

But good old Grimes is now at rest,
Nor fears Misfortune's frown;
He wore a double-breasted vest—
The stripes ran up and down.

He modest merit sought to find,
And pay it its desert,
He had no malice in his mind,
No ruffles in his shirt.

His neighbors he did not abuse,
Was sociable and gay,
He wore large buckles on his shoes,
And changed them every day.

His knowledge, hid from public gaze,
He did not bring to view,
Nor make a noise town-meeting days,
As many people do.

His worldly goods he never threw
In trust to Fortune's chances,
But lived (as all his brothers do)
In easy circumstances.

Thus undisturbed by anxious cares
His peaceful moments ran;
And everybody said he was
A fine old gentleman.

Just For Today

Lord, for tomorrow, and its needs
I do not pray;
Keep me, my God, from stain of sin
Just for today.

Let me both diligently work
And duly pray.
Let me be kind in word and deed
Just for today.

Let me be slow to do my will,
Unthinkingly say;
Set thou a seal upon my lips,
Just for today.

Let me in season, Lord, be grave,
In season gay.
Let me be faithful to thy grace
Just for today.

And if today my tide of life should ebb away,
Should ebb away,
Give me thy sacraments divine,
Sweet Lord, today.

So, for tomorrow and its work
I do not pray,
But keep me, guide me, love me, Lord,
Just for today.

The Charge of the Bobbed Brigade

Bobbed hair to the right of us
Bobbed hair to the left of us
Bobbed hair behind us
Tresses assundered.

Some with a heavy crop,
Some with a light crop,
In the barber shop
Walked the bobbed hundred.

Women of high degree,
Women past fifty three,
Determined that they shall be
One of the numbered.
Women of every class,
Mother, daughter, little lass,
Sweetheart, sister, join the mass
Of the bobbed hundred.

Some with bangs, some without,
Some are shingled round about,
Some in curls and some in doubt
In case they have blundered.
Some of them do look real swell,
Some of them do look like —— well,
Sometimes it's not just well to tell
How look the bobbed hundred.

READY FOR ATLANTIC BEACH PICNIC

Dear Social Corner Sisters: The Corner page for the last two weeks has looked as though somebody was on a vacation.

Grandma Gray: I think it was you who wrote about the association that met with your church the week the Danielson sisters had their meeting. I was much disappointed in not attending your meeting as I seldom miss them. The Sunday school convention is down my way so hope to attend that. Will you be able to get to that??

Beth C.: I am anxious to meet you and see if I know you.

Katinka and Myrtle: Where are your letters? You know you have to write to the Corner page to become a member. Hope to see you the 20th.

Dorothy Bradford: Was glad to see your letter with its reminder about dishes.

Our next meeting is to be at Atlantic beach, July 20th. Tables have been spoken for at the casino but as there are no facilities for making coffee each one must carry her own or if they prefer can purchase some kind of drink there. But don't forget your dishes and some kind of food. We want a good old fashioned picnic with a large attendance of our own club members and as many from the other clubs as can get there.

Mrs. T. B. K.: If I remember right your name is Jack. You know you thought you would be able to attend this meeting.

American Girl: If things make it possible hope the other lady in the house will come with you.

Grace: I think I saw you the other day. You were just leaving a roadside store as I went in.

Dorinda: Was in your village recently but did not have a minute to stop.

FUDGE CAKE

Dear Social Corner: You haven't won a booby prize yet Keziah Doolittle have you? Sorry I took it away from you in B.

Peggy Alden: You see I'm a week behind time. Its almost time for B. B's. I'm going to can some so I won't have to make any Christmas time.

Honoray: Polly want a cracker?

Jenzy: I hope you are better.

Lilac Lady and Azile: Why don't you write?

1492: I'm still studying Dutch. I take lessons from G. B.

Roseland: Here is the fudge cake.

Fudge Cake: Melt together 1 cup milk with beaten egg yolk and 2 squares chocolate. Put into mixing bowl 1 1-2 cups flour and 1 cup sugar. Pour the hot melted mixture onto the flour and sugar and stir well. Then add butter melted size of an egg, 1 teaspoon soda dissolved in a little hot water and 1 teaspoon vanilla.

SEASONAL RECIPES

Dear Cornerites: Seasonal recipes have always been sought by me so I will pass some on them alone.

One Crust Peach Pie: Line a deep pie plate with pastry, sprinkle the bottom with one half of a crumblike mixture make by rubbing together 1-4 cup butter, 1 cup sugar 1-3 cup flour. Lay on this halved peaches. Cut side down, add a few grains of nutmeg and 4 tablespoons of water; sprinkle on the remaining crumbs and bake 30 minutes.

Rhubarb Pie: Cut the rhubarb into one half inch lengths without paring. To every quart of rhubarb add one half gill of water, and stew until tender. Remove from the fire, add sugar abundantly and a piece of butter for each pie. Pour into a deep plate with a strip of cloth around the edge or a strip of paste around the rim to cover and bake.

Stewed Rhubarb Pie: Take one cup of stewed rhubarb add three quarters cup of sugar and the yolks of 2 eggs. Blend one tablespoon or corn starch with a little water, add a flavoring of lemon and a pinch of salt. Frost with whites of eggs after taking.

Prepared Flour: 2 quarts of flour, 12 teaspoons baking powder, 3 teaspoons salt, 3 tablespoons sugar.

To make biscuits, 3 cups of this prepared flour, 1-2 cup of shortening and milk or water enough to make a soft dough.

Plain Cake or Tea Cakes: 1 3-4 cups flour, 1 cup of sugar with 1 1-2 tablespoons taken out, 1 heaping tablespoon butter, 3-4 cup milk, 1 egg beaten separately.

Stir up and bake in a well heated oven.

Cow Heel Pie: One cow heel (cooked) 3-4 pound of lean beef stewed. Cut cow heel up in quite small pieces (in order to get all the black out). Put in with the beef, 2 onions, minced, 2 spoons flour, cook until tender.

Pie Crust: 3 cups flour, 3-4 cup lard, a little salt and baking powder, 1 teaspoon sugar, bake till done.

Huckleberry Pie: Line the plate as for other pies, fill with berries, sugar slightly, put a little piece of butter, a pinch of salt and 1 teaspoon of vinegar. Sprinkle a little flour on the under crust before filling. Make straps of the crust for the top.

Blackberry pie is made the same as above, without vinegar.

Elderberry pie is made the same, as blackberry.

GUESS WHO?

SUGGESTION REGARDING RECIPES

Dear Social Corner Editor and Sisters: I have been thinking I would suggest an idea that would be a decided help to the Cornerites and also a help to the readers. When sending in a recipe just state the cost of it; also the time it takes you to make. In giving a recipe for cookies either molasses or sugar, tell the number of cookies your recipe makes; also the cost and the time it takes to make and bake.

I know when Paul submitted all those ham recipes for mom, we knew ham is very expensive and of course all can't afford ham to such an extent, but if she when writing would just tell us what kind of ham, and how much it cost and the time, why it would be worth a mint to us poor mortals who have to budget our income. Some of her recipes I judge were good, but rather extravagant in a way but if she had told how much they cost we might have tried them and let her know how we liked them.

Speaking about being economical you might think I was like Mary's husband who said he really didn't know what to get her for a Christmas present so he said, "I'll postpone it until next year and then get something nice." Being the same thing he told her last year she didn't think much of it. "Well, he said, "that proves I never forget you."

She said: "Well John but you might be dead next year." John told her if he was not wasting any money this year on Christmas presents she would be so much better off.

I will send a little original help. My man of he house had a habit of letting his suspenders slip off his left shoulder, so I sewed a piece of tape about two inches long from the shoulder of his shirt next to his collar band and let it come down. He put his suspender through that and it held it in place.

TEACHING CHILDREN VALUE OF MONEY

Dear Social Corner Editor and Members: A question of real concern to parents is how to teach the child the value of money. The allowance plan has worked well in our family. We started when our little girl was four years old to give her 25 cents each week, agreeing that this would be increased five cents a week each year until she enters high school. Three stipulated items were taken from her allowance each week. The rest was her good time money. (Not much you may say, but we are a poor minister's family).

She is now eleven years old and receives 60 cents a week. She has increased her church subscriptions and has made regular bank deposits. She now buys her own tablets, note books, pencils. We allow her to use her own judgment about the use of her good time and little gift money, neither do we expect her to always consult us though she invariably does. The great pleasure to us is that we have to suggest her obligations; she has formed the habit of systematic giving and spending. At vacation time she is given a little more according to where and how we spend our vacations.

Several of our friends, with more than one child have followed our plan and thanked us for the suggestion.

I recommend it as a method, but the method must be worked fairly by both parents and children.

HOW TO MAKE ROSE JAR

Dear Social Corner Members: This is the way to make a rose jar and this is the time of year:

Whole allspice, crushed, two ounces; stick of cinnamon, broken, two ounces; bruised and shredded orris-root, one ounce; lavender flower, two ounces; oil of rose, five drops; good cologne, one-quarter pint; rose petals, salt.

Gather rose leaves in the morning; let stand in cool place to dry. Toss them lightly, then put them in large, covered dish in layers, sprinkling each layer freely with salt. Add to this for several mornings until enough leaves have been gathered to fill a quart jar. Shake up or stir every morning, and let the whole stand ten days after the petals are added.

Transfer to glass jars in the bottom of which have been placed the allspice and cinnamon. Let it stand six weeks, partly covered. It is then ready for a permanent jar. Add to it now the orris, lavender and a small quantity of any sweet scented dried leaves. Add a few drops of rose oil and then pour over one-fourth pint of cologne water.

From time to time a little lavender or other scents may be added.

I always think of friendship as a delicate plant a sensitive plant that shrinks from a too familiar touch. It should be protected with a fine reserve I think two persons can be constant friends without pouring out the contents of their mind for frequent inspection. When we indulge too often in confidences, we are pretty apt to disclose more of our weaknesses than friendship will stand.

Molasses Cookies: 1 teaspoon soda in a cup, 4 tablespoons of hot coffee or hot water, 4 tablespoons melted shortening, (I use bacon fat) and fill cup up with molasses, 2 1-2 cups flour, 1-2 cup of sugar, 1 teaspoon of cloves.

Sift sugar, flour, cloves all together then pour soda in cup, hot coffee, melted shortening and molasses. Stir up all together in a teacup and pour over flour. Put on floured board, knead well and roll out. This makes 24 cookies and takes about 45 minutes to make and bake them. When you wish you can place a raisin in the center of the cookie. I am never without them. My family is small so that is all I make at one time.

In my recipe for mahogany cake last week it was 1 quart of water not 1 quart of butter.

Sugar Cookies Rolled: 1 cup of sugar, 2 1-2 cups flour, 4 teaspoons of baking powder, 1-2 teaspoon of salt, 2 eggs, 1-4 cup of top milk with the addition of another tablespoon of milk, 1 teaspoon vanilla.

Sift sugar, flour, baking powder and salt together, work in butter with tips of fingers until like meal. Then beat yolks of eggs add to the cream and milk. Then pour in the dry ingredients and milk with yolks added, beat whites, stir them in, add vanilla, bake in not too hot oven, sprinkle sugar over top. This makes 24 cookies. It takes about 60 minutes.

This week I made them and put the cup of raisins through the chopper and stirred them in. They were delicious. I never use anything but bread flour.

BABY'S NECESSARIES

Dear Corner Members: I wish to send one of my greatest savings in time and strength to the Corner I receive so much benefit from it.

In many homes in the city, space is limited. I found baby's things were always getting laid around because there was not enough room for them. Husband bought a medicine cabinet, enameled it the same color as the upper part of my bathroom, and fastened it on the wall at the end of the bathtub. I stenciled a dainty design on it, and it is as decorative as a baby basket. On the top shelf I keep boric solution, nose and eye drops, medicines that belong to the baby, medicine droppers, bath and clinical thermometers, gauze, tape, bandages and scissors. On the next shelf are soap, oil, powder, toothpicks and cotton, safety pins, and the baby towels and washcloths. On the large bottom shelf I keep shirts, bands, stockings, night dresses and diapers folded tightly. Under the cabinet is a towel rod on which hang the shirt and stocking driers. And a large hook holds the folding rubber tub with its canvas dressing table which fits on top of the tub. A length of rubber tubing from the dime store fits on the faucet in the tub and brings the water directly into the baby's tub. It is the work of a minute to unfold the tub, set it up, turn the water on and with everything right at hand, give baby his bath with no waste of time or energy.

FOUND WASHINGTON VERY INTERESTING

Dear Social Corner Editor: Sincerely thank you for the yellow slip, which you awarded me for a June letter.

Also congratulate the other sisters who received one the same month. Very glad if any hint along the line of domestic economy will help some sister.

That is the wonderfully interesting point in the Social Corner one can choose their own subject, and all letters have their own special message.

Kitty Lou: I thank you sincerely for the little pinball. I shall place it in by pocketbook, and always think of you when I use it.

Lucille Drew: Was very interested in your account of your trip to the national capital. I have had the pleasure of visiting the capital on several occasions, seen many things you spoke of including the white house and Arlington and stood by the tomb of the unknown solider. You did not speak of the Congressional library, which is wonderful. Don't fail to see it if you should visit Washington again. You can be privileged to read the papers from your own home town, any day, in this library if you choose to go into the reading room where any one can spend the day if they choose. No books can be taken out but you can read and study all you please.

Yes it is a wonderful city full of interesting, historical buildings such as treasury, war, bureau of engraving, patent building and many others and beautiful drives, etc. Most of the avenues are named for the states in the union and the streets have letters and numbers.

Connecticut avenue is one of the most beautiful I have been told. Was sorry not to pass through that avenue but hope to some day. No subways, skyscrapers or elevated railroads it stands out distinctly from other cities. Regret we did not see President Coolidge although stood in line more than an hour. He had an appointment with his dentist and many were disappointed that morning. So we were shown the east room and the part of the white house open to the public.

Yes, every American citizen should try to visit Washington, D. C.

I send greetings to all shut in and sympathy to all in sorrow.

It is such a pleasure to read the Saturday Social Corner page and realize how much time is really given to writing the letters and sending them in to the editor in time for the paper each week. Let the good work go on. Sincere wishes to all the sisters.

ECLIPSE.

IDEAS THAT MAY HELP

Dear Social Corner Editor and Sisters: Just a few ideas that may help someone.

At a picnic one day the wind blew so hard that we were unable to place paper cloth and plates on table. So the next time I brought a paper of tacks, placed one tack in each corner of tablecloth and tacked each plate in place with tack through center of plate. We were not troubled with breeze thereafter.

I made my own floor wax and find it very good. Take equal part of melted paraffin and turpentine. Melt wax first, as turpentine is classed as an explosive when near fire. Apply to floors the same as other floor wax. Have floors free from dust.

This is how I clean my white footwear. Use small soft brush, sweet milk and a good white soap. Scrub, rinse off and wipe. Rub with talcum powder, stuff with paper and let dry. Wipe off powder and they are like new. You can clean cheap or expensive shoes the same.

Hope these ideas may be helpful and make up for my long spell of tardiness in writing the Corner.

MABS.

A WAY TO GET OUT OF THE RUT

Dear Corner Sisters: Though this is not a New Year's resolution, it may be used for such. Unless we break through the circle which keeps us (housewives) going in a circle we shall know little more 10 years hence than 10 years ago. Perhaps we'll gain experience, but experience in what? Just simply in the little circle. We would be happier and better company for ourselves (I put this first for it is a prerequisite to making others enjoy our company), for our husbands and friends. I notice so many housewives' conversations running in that circle and when you have been with them long enough to learn their stories, about how sick Betty was when she had the fever—how everybody fo. miles envied mother's flaky pies—how frightful it was when their home nearly burned and how annoying some of hubby's little eccentricities are, one wonders when they arrive which of those stories they are going to repeat.

So—occasionally I outline a program that will go outside that circle. Here it is:

1—Read a history of the United States for once when I got tangled in a conversation of the war between the north and south I found out how little I really knew.

2—Read a good music magazine every month as I am especially interested in music.

3—Read one of the high-class magazines to help keep me in touch with the outside world.

4—Study the biography of some famous person. I'm picking on Americans just now.

5—Read some stories that I later tell to the children.

6—Some things that I tell to no one.

Then in about six months I am ready for another outline. This may seem, to some, like an assortment of conglomerous information, but the very fact that one gets a variety makes it useful. Hope you find this useful for the department which I so much enjoy.

JULIETTA.

TOMATO DISHES

Dear Cornerites: We are nearing the tomato season. If you like tomatoes try these two ways of using them:

Baked Tomatoes and Cheese—Slice whole tomatoes, lay each slice on round of buttered toast, sprinkle with salt and pepper, lay thin slice cheese on top. Add juice of tomatoes, set in oven until cheese melts, and serve.

If a dessert is lacking, the accommodating tomato steps forward as tomato ginger jam to be used with cream cheese or alone on crackers.

Tomato Ginger Jam—A no. 2 can of tomatoes, one-half lemon, one-half cup chopped preserved ginger, three and three-quarters cup sugar, three-quarters cup pectin.

Cook tomato with the juice and grated rind of lemon until the quantity is reduced to one and three-quarter cups. Add ginger and sugar and boil hard for two minutes. Remove from stove, add pectin, pour into covered glass jar.

TRAVELING WITH CHILDREN

Dear Friends: It took me three years to learn how to travel comfortably with children. There was a time when I got out magazines as soon as the train started, handed one to each child and settled myself to read.

Usually I read a paragraph and then admonished, "Look at the pictures and keep still."

Another paragraph and then, "Look out the window and keep still."

By the time we had gone 60 miles there were two cranky, bored children and one cross mother aboard.

And then, I decided not to try to enjoy the trip myself but to see if I couldn't keep the little folks happy all the way.

As soon as we were well on our way I told them a thrilling story about Johnny Spotted cow and Molly Black cow and suggested we might see them in the fields we were to pass. It was a surprising long time before this were out but when it did I was ready with another story. And the funny part of it was I became more interested in my own imaginative products than I had ever been in the constantly interrupted reading attempted on similar trips.

The children did not grow restless and cross but after lunch and another story went to sleep and so for once we all arrived at "grandma's house" in good humor.

I would like to hear how others do.

IN NORWICH FIFTY YEARS AGO

Fourth of July in these days is a tame affair when comparisons are made with the celebrations of 50 years ago. From items in the Norwich Bulletin of 1876 it was fortunate if a single resident of the city enjoyed a "wink" between midnight and six o'clock on the morning of July 4th, because of the ringing of bells, blowing of steam whistles, firing of cannon, and everything else going on that would add to the din.

The items of the week a half century ago are in part as follows:

Monday, July 3, 1876—The Bulletin is in receipt of several letters relative to the recent appointment of a deputy judge in Norwich at a salary of $300 per year. The feeling is evidently very bitter over this piece of legislation for last year the deputy judge in Norwich received about $9 and the year previous about $35 and the writers take a stand that the legislation was surely tricked over nicely.

The new open cars for the horse railroad arrived yesterday and will be put on the road at once. The road is now in excellent condition and Mr. West deserves the patronage of the citizens of this city for his work in making it one of the best lines in the state.

The new collar for gentlemen is called the "safety collar," and is so named from the fact that it is high enough for a man who wears one to crawl up behind it and hide when his wife drops into the office to ask him if he has mailed her letters.

Yesterday was the warmest day of the season the mercury standing at 98 at noon. Violent thunder showers accompanied the heat wave.

Several of the churches were forced to suspend their services Sunday evening as there was no audience present to listen to the preaching.

Capt J. C. Comstock, the stroke oar of the Havemeyer boat club of New London cut his hand badly with a hatchet yesterday and it is feared that he will be unable to take part in the regatta on the Fourth.

Tuesday, July 4, 1876—The Fourth really began yesterday morning and the explosion of fire crackers and the dismal blast of fog horns gave warning of what the Fourth would produce. Later in the evening the noise increased rapidly. As the clock struck twelve the terrific din began. A rocket sent up by the O. D. Ones was the signal for the first discharge of their cannon which was fired 33 times. Bells were rung furiously, steam whistles blown and the sound of bells, horns, firearms and cheers mingled in a mighty combination. Bonfires blazed about the city and the streets were alive with people until the very early hours. It was about the same as the celebration of the centennial New Year, only, as Artemas Ward would say, only more so.

The celebration of the centennial of Independence will be great today. The O. D. Ones started the celebration with firing 33 cannon from Chapell's wharf, will add 33 at sunrise, 33 at noon and one at sunset. In the evening about 9 o'clock they will discharge the $100 worth of fireworks from barges anchored off the new wharf. At 4 o'clock the Greeneville horribles will make their appearance. The Catholics of Norwich plan a parade by 2,500 people, to proceed to Roath's grove for a monster picnic. Later in the morning the Norwich Caledonian society holds its sarade and field day at the Fairgrounds and in addition to these the centennial will be observed at Park church with a musical service at 9 o'clock and speaking at 10:30 o'clock. Besides all this are the boating trips and excursions and hundreds of private festivities.

The building formerly known as the "Traveler's Rest," standing near Preston bridge and occupied by Henry Huebner as a cigar store and dwelling house, was badly damaged by fire about 11 o'clock last night. The telegraph was out of order and the alarm was slow in spreading, thus resulting for a much heavier loss than would have been sustained could the companies have received notice of the fire in quicker time.

Mr. Marshall of Bridgeport is to give the famous demonstration of jumping in and out of 100 flour barrels in the short space of eight minutes, at the Caledonian celebration today.

The rain Sunday was 9-10 of an inch at Williams park but only 1-5th of an inch at the reservoir, thus indicating the severity of the storm in the center of the city.

Wednesday, July 5, 1876—There was no issue of the Bulletin on Wednesday, the paper stopping publication over the Fourth.

Thursday, July 6, 1876—Evidently many Norwich people enjoyed outings away from home on the Fourth, seven hundred tickets being sold at the New London Northern station during the day for tickets to New London or points beyond. The mercury stood at about 96 during the day but the energy of youth died out in the early morning and there was a Sunday like quietness on the streets by noon. The engines on the railroad were beautifully decorated and every thing planned for the day went off with unusual success.

On Monday night Dr. Carleton requested that the city bell not be rung as a patient nearby was near the point of death. While he was in the hall a boy threw a cannon cracker beneath Dr. Carleton's horse, causing the animal to bolt and upon reaching Franklin street, slip on the railroad tracks and crash into a tree, striking its head in such a manner as to cause instant death.

Mr. Winship has stated that nearly 1,440,000 gallons of water are being used in Norwich every day. There are in round numbers 1,600 families or 8,000 people who use the city water the average quantity consumed being 180 gallons daily to each individual.

Another new locomotive, the Henry Morgan, No. 26, has been put on the Stonington railroad.

Friday, July 7, 1876—A horse attached to a coal cart backed off an offset twenty feet high the other day on the West Side but escaped uninjured. Fortunately the driver of the truck was able to jump clear before the descent began.

The members of the police force who were dropped, finished their term of service Wednesday. The reduction has necessitated the arrangement of new and consequently longer beats.

Insurance companies are very huffy about Hartford's refusal to make an offer of $1,000 for the arrest of incendiaries, on condition that the underwriters offer a like sum.

Charles T. Barstow, one of the local Andersonville prisoners, who was in charge of the reunion here this spring has received a neatly engraved card from the association for his work on the convention.

Saturday, July 8, 1876—Fishermen along the coastal towns are debating whether or not they will lay up their boats for the season. The reason for this is the scarcity of codfish and the increased expense of engaging in that business. It is stated that the fishermen or shoremen have made less money this year than in any year since 1861.

The old flag under which the people of Stonington fought their battle of 1814 was exhibited in that village on the Fourth.

According to information from New London a policeman is to be stationed at the Pequot house hereafter. This action will make two hours extra for every policeman in New London, a city which already possesses the art of making her police watch more miles of territory to the man than any other city in the United States.

Mrs. Hannah Stanton Cox of Holdarness, N. H., who before her marriage was Miss Hannah Stanton of Preston, celebrated her 100th birthday on June 25th. Her husband has been dead for 54 years and she has never remarried.

A match for $500 a side between two well known Norwich horses is to be held early in August.

WEEKAPAUG

A number of the property owners between Atlantic Beach casino and the bridge at Weekapaug have placed poles bearing the numbers suggested at the last meeting of the Pleasant Beach Fire district and also the names of their cottages on their lots near the road. This enables the passerby to identify easily the cottage, not only by number, but by name.

The summer schedule of church services at Weekapaug chapel is in progress and will continue throughout the season. The sermon July 4 was in charge of Rev. Robert Keating, while Rev. Robert K. Smith of Westfield, Mass., will conduct the service next Sunday morning at 10:30.

There will also be the regular Sunday morning mass in the chapel at 6:45 each week throughout the summer.

LONG COVE GIRL WITH A SAILOR IN ACCIDENT AT NEW LONDON

(Special to the Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, July 9—Miss Josephine Maier, of Long Cove, Gales Ferry, is under treatment at Lawrence hospital as a result of serious injuries sustained last night by being thrown from an automobile. She has lacerations of the face, but it is believed she has suffered a much more serious injury, a fractured pelvic bone. This latter injury will not be determined until a day or two.

Miss Maier and Herbert T. Larson, a sailor aboard the U. S. S.-3, submarine base, went for a ride early in the evening in Larson's automobile. About 11:30 o'clock the auto was headed for Ocean Beach by way of Ocean avenue. When the car reached the intersection of Gardner avenue, ie, an automobile operated by Alton Rowley, of Groton, emerged from Gardner avenue. The two automobiles were traveling at a fast rate of speed and before either Larson or Rowley could bring his car to a stop or steer clear of the other, the machines came together with terrific force. The occupants of the two automobiles were thrown to the highway. Larson escaped injury, but his companion was so painfully injured that she was removed to the hospital in a passing automobile. Rowley suffered a compound fracture of the right arm and he was taken to Home Memorial hospital. When the girl was removed to the hospital, Larson told the police that he did not know her identity, but this was established after she had been admitted to the hospital. Rowley made complaint to the police, charging Larson with reckless driving and requested his arrest. Larson was ordered to present himself in the police court this morning, but the accused was not presented because of the inability of the complaining witness to be present. Larson will probably be prosecuted next week. Both automobiles were damaged.

SENTENCE TO CHESHIRE FOR HARRY LEROY WARD

(Special to the Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, July 9—Harry Leroy Ward, formerly a coast guard sailor, but discharged for reasons, stole the automobile of David Barnes of Waterford a month ago and started for the south. He got as far as Darien, where a telephone message intercepted him and he was arrested. There he asked for water and when it was served to him he put into the tumbler a tablet of bichloride of mercury that poisoned him. That sent him to the hospital at Bridgeport where he remained till Sergeant Cavanaugh was sent after him. Today he was committed to the state reformatory at Cheshire. Ward is in bad condition physically. He has not been able to eat solid foods since he swallowed the poison, but he is taking more nourishment now than he has taken during his experience. That case has cost the city of New London nearly $1000 in the expense of bringing Ward to trial and committing him to Cheshire.

Oscar Lee driver of a coal truck for the Howard Street Coal company, escaped a severe penalty when in the police court this morning, for he was charged with operating a truck with defective brakes, to have evaded responsibility and to have lacked a certificate of registration when he was delivering coal to the W. M. I. Lee drove his truck against the auto of Carl A. Haughton of 183 High street, Hartford, and then into a horse and wagon with the result that the horse ran away. Then Officer Thomas Cavanaugh put these after Lee and overtook and arrested him. Lee has been driving an auto but a short time, but he had experience enough yesterday to last him if ever. He did have registration in his truck but he did not know where it was to be found. He represented that when he scraped the Haughton auto that he did not realize that he had occasioned any damage, and he believed the brake was rendered defective by the force of the collision. Lee is not likely ever to be arrested for superior intelligence for it was with difficulty that he understood what was taking place in his arraignment in court. His home is in Mystic and he has operated a car but a few months.

There were several cases of traffic ordinance violation in the court today. Charles B. McClellan of Niantic, who does business in New London, was charged with blocking traffic on State street at the busiest time of day when he stopped his car and allowed his wife to alight. Officer Lenihan declared that McClellan blocked traffic and the officer represented McClellan as saying the ordinance was a nuisance and that the officer "had it t gfor him." McClellan denied having made this statement but represented that he did not understand the signal the officer gave to him. He disclaimed any intention of violating an ordinance and said he had been driving many years without ever having offended. He secured a suspended judgment, as did William O. Stewart and William Ronzee, employes of the Connecticut company, who parked their cars in Meridian street on the west side of the highway.

Max Levine, drove into North Bank street in the opposite way from that in which traffic was moving and stayed long enough to do some lettering. When he had finished he found that his car had been tagged. Levine's excuse was that he was busy and forgot the passage of time, as many another man has forgotten. He got a suspended judgment.

"There will be a murder at that house some day, unless there is a clean-up there" said a policeman who was active in the arrest of Michele Baldasserri, alias Mike Mondano, when the latter was presented in the police court today charged with having made an assault with a revolver upon Rose Verdi of 15 Brewer street, also to have robbed her of $100 which she carried in a handbag. The story of the trouble was not told in court today. It will be related in testimony next Friday. Mike is now in jail and he is apt to stay there as he could not today furnish a bond of $5,000 to secure his liberty till the 16th inst. Mike has been in trouble of much the same nature, for he shot at Mrs. Verdi on another occasion and then he ran away and was apprehended at New Britain, where he has a wife and several children. What the trouble is between Mike and Mrs. Verdi is not disclosed, but there is a lot of talk among the Italian people as to what it may be. The woman's husband complained to the police late last night that his wife was on the way home from the theatre and had reached the Allen Hook and Ladder company house when she was accosted by Mike. He held her up with revolver and, according to Verdi took $100 from a handbag which she carried. It is understood that Mike claims the woman is indebted to him to the amount of much more than $100 but the statements each makes is denied by the other. It was the repetition of the shooting trouble that led the policeman to prophesy a murder at the Brewer street house.

Waldo E. and Daisy L. Clarke have sold a building lot on Glenwood avenue to Miss Frances O. Jones, of Chicago. The land adjoins other property of Miss Jones.

Ignazio Ramistella, about 55, of 35 Spring street, died yesterday afternoon at Lawrence hospital where he had been under treatment several days. He is survived by his mother, who resides in Italy; two sons, Louis and John Ramistella, this city and three brothers, Ernest, Fred and Louis Ramistella, also of this city. Mr. Ramistella had been ill many weeks suffering from a complication of diseases and when his condition became grave he was admitted to the hospital. He was a barber by occupation, but he was also a musician of ability and several years ago when the Italian band was organized, he was its organizer.

Mrs. Fred Beckman, 25, of 23 Maple avenue, suffered lacerations of the left leg and possible fractured ribs, last night, when she was thrown from a motorcycle in which she was riding with her husband. Mr. and Mrs. Beckman started for a ride in the cool of the evening. Mrs. Beckman occupied the rear seat. When the cycle was passing along Montauk avenue and at a point south of Lawrence-Memorial hospital where the highway passes over the tracks of the New York, New Haven & Hartford railroad the front wheel of the cycle skidded along the trolley tracks. The skidding was so great that Mrs. Beckman lost her balance and with considerable force to the bicycle. Passing autoists assisted Mrs. Beckman to the hospital where her wounds were treated. It will be several days before she is able to return to her home.

An automobile owned by George Brady, 119 Golden street, was stolen last night and no trace has been obtained of it by the local or state police. Brady, who is a painter, drove the car to the rear of 69 Bank street for the purpose of parking it. While he was absent, about two hours, the auto was stolen. Brady finding the machine gone about 9:30 o'clock.

Mrs. Lewis Brown and infant son, of Ashaway, R. I., patients at Lawrence-Memorial Associated hospital, were discharged today.

The funeral of George Trakas, 4, son of Mr and Mrs. James Trakas, 45 Terrace avenue, who was struck and killed by a gasoline car of the Central Vermont railroad at Riverside park yesterday afternoon, was held this afternoon at 2 o'clock from the residence of the child's parents. Burial was in St. Mary's cemetery.

James E. Barlow, former city manager, now employed by the Frigidair company, New York, is spending a few days with his family on Hempstead street.

Joseph Bixby, agent for the New York and Eastern News company at New Haven railroad station, formerly employed as agent in New London, is in this city for the week end.

Harold Coates, Hartford, formerly of New London, is spending two weeks with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. George A. Coats on Williams street.

The annual visit to the island forts of coast artillery troops of Massachusetts will start tomorrow; during the morning the 211th regiment C. A. C. from Boston will come to New London by special train. The soldiers, about 800, will detrain at the union station and will proceed to Fort Terry by transport. A considerable amount of the regiment's equipment arrived in New London yesterday afternoon and in the evening was taken to Fort Terry by barge. The 241st regiment will come to one of the island forts later in the month. Each regiment will remain at the forts about two weeks.

Complaint was made to the police this evening by a resident of the northwest section that two boys were driving a horse through the streets of that section of the city in a manner most inhumane, especially because of the terrific heat. Patrolman Frank Philopena was sent to the outskirts of the city in the speed automobile and after a brief search found the boys complained of on Vauxhall street and with the horse. The animal, it developed, was purchased by one of the boys for $10 a few days ago and they were en route to their home when intercepted by the officer. The boys were brought to the police station and Humane Agent John Sweeny was summoned there. The horse was inspected by the agent, but as the animal was not suffering from abuse of any kind the boys were allowed to go to their home in the custody of their mother, who assured the police that the horse would be disposed of by sale as the boys had previously purchased a horse and by so doing they were always in trouble although not trouble of a serious nature.

An automobile of the coupe type, in passing through Main street at 6 o'clock this afternoon came to grief when the rear end collapsed. The automobile dropped to the north bound tracks of the Connecticut company preventing the passage of trolley cars. The delay to trolley traffic however, was brief, as Traffic Officer Charles Murphy caused the disabled auto to be towed from the path of traffic by another automobile.

The intense heat today drove thousands of men women and children to the beach to get relief from the torrid rays of the sun and as a result patronage at the shore was better than on any day this season, except the Fourth of July holidays, when a record business was done by merchants in every line. The trolley cars were crowded until late in the evening with pair-ons seeking the cool breezes from the ocean and they remained at the beach until the last cars, between midnight and 1 o'clock this morning.

HIGHWAY DEPARTMENT LAX, BEACH MERCHANTS BLAMED

(Special to the Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, July 9.—Store proprietors at the beach who were complained against yesterday because of trouble arising from garbage receptacles declare that the nuisance was caused by the city, inasmuch as the garbage collectors failed to collect the vegetable matter Wednesday, on which day assurance was given merchants that the collections would be made. Acting on the statement that the garbage would be collected Wednesday and in view of the fact that the garbage had accumulated because of the Sunday and Fourth business, barrels of garbage were placed on the sidewalks. There they remained because of the failure of the collectors to make their rounds. When Inspector John Arnold, of the health department, visited the beach to investigate the complaint, he decided that the merchants were not at fault for the nauseating odors and stated that he had three times requested the highway department to cause the garbage to be removed. The collections were not made until about 5 o'clock yesterday afternoon.

HEAVY INSURANCE PLACED ON MOVIE STARS AT WORK

NEW YORK, July 9 (AP)—The monetary value of movie stars to producers is indicated, among many ways, by the heavy insurance carried on several of them.

When a picture is in production, the general policy appears to be to insure the life of the star since so much depends upon the actor living through the period of work unhurt.

Mary Pickford is one of the most heavily insured women in the world, her policies aggregating $1,500,000. These cover life, accident, endowments, furniture and travel, as well as prints of several films she prizes highly.

Douglas Fairbanks, her husband, during the course of production sometimes carries insurance amounting to $2,000,000, the figure being smaller in proportion to the cost of the film play being made.

Personal insurance of Rudolph Valention totals approximately $1,000,000. He always is insured for an amount equal to the cost of the picture being made.

Buster Keaton has increased his personal insurance with the growth of his family. His beneficiaries now include his wife, Natalie Talmadge, their two young sons, and his mother and father. The total approaches $1,000,000.

Samuel Goldwyn, the producer, pays premiums on a $500,000 policy carried on Donald Colman, one of his stars. Ilma Banky, another, had her eyes insured for $100,000 when the producer brought her to this country several years ago, and also has $250,000 to cover her life.

Broadway Theater

Percy, Charles Ray's second Thomas H. Ince feature for Pathe release, which will be shown at the Broadway theater starting Sunday is the story of a mamma's boy and "teacher's pet" who grew up and got into "a scrape," as such boys often do, got railroaded out of town, arrived in the Mexican border in the midst of a political row, mixed in, and after being ground between the upper and nether millstones, emerged a "regular guy."

Percy, is said to be the type of role that Ray plays to perfection, and the story is an absolutely fresh and novel treatment of his always amusing theme. Reviewers report that it is replete with new Ray quips and quirks and whimsicalities, and as entertainment rates one hundred per cent, plus. Charlie Murray, one of the screen's foremost comedians, has what is said to be the "fattest" part of his career in this picture. He plays Holy Joe, a bewhiskered desert evangelist and is responsible for much of the fun, which the picture abounds. Betty Blythe is cast for the part of a beautiful and sirenic dance hall senorita and "vamps" Charlie Ray all over Mexicali, the same an American oasis across the Mexican border.

Some time ago there appeared in Smart Set Magazine a story which attracted nation-wide attention. It was written by T. Howard Kelly and was titled His Buddy's Wife. It brought out in a striking way the marriage problem of the girl who remained at home while her husband went overseas. What was to be her plight if he was reported missing? Was she freed from the marriage vows? Or was she to remain single and live in hope that some day he would come marching home from some hospital behind the lines?

In this story the husband does come back but not until he is reported as killed in action and his buddy, who loves her dearly, comes first to comfort her.

This excellent story of American youth, true as steel in love and war, has been adapted for the screen and will open Sunday as the second feature at the Broadway theater. If the advance reports are true it is our humble opinion that every good American should see this production rich in drama, filled with pathos, humor and heart throbs. Its suspense is said to carry until the very final scene, when one doughboy has to make the great sacrifice and pass on in life to fight the battles without the girl he loves.

Signor Mario Capelli

Signor Capelli is now on tour in Europe, having completed one in Canada, in early June and will return to this country in August. Caruso said after hearing Capelli, "There is no doubt you will sing before hundreds of thousands throughout the world."

From childhood Mr. Capelli had a natural talent and at the age of ten won a prize in the Musical Academy of Caserta. The great tenor has been greatly influenced by Caruso, and when not 14 years of age rode a freight train 860 miles to New York city to hear Caruso sing.

Though a son of Italy, his enunciation of English is clear and superb, his personality has an indescribable charm, and the masterpieces of Mozart, Handel, Dvorak and Rogers he sings with unapproachable manner. He also renders Italian folk songs exquisitely, and spent two years in parts of the south of this country to perfect the study of the negro motif and themes.

He has been asked to sing one of Dvorak's numbers, Going Home, which has been so popular where he has appeared in this country.

Capelli's voice is not only large but very sweet, and has abundant power which carries his audience to the same heights of enthusiasm to which the singer himself soars.

His dramatic action fully equalls his superb vocalization his impassioned operatic airs and beautiful folk songs reach a mastery seldom equalled and his gracious manner in responding to applause is in happy contrast to the begrudging concessions of some artists. He frequently sings in costume.

Some of his selections reveal wonderfully the beautiful color and warmth of his voice, which has a pyric softness and sweetness, shading quickly to the big vibrant tones reminiscent of Caruso. Many seem to feel that Mr. Capelli is the logical successor of the great artist.

The services of Mr. Capelli are everywhere in demand and no other artist has so many return engagements. His opera tours in Italy, France and Spain scored triumphs continually, and his appearances in Boston, New York, Philadelphia, Washington, Detroit and the great cities of the west required return engagements. He seems to have every quality requisite for the most famous tenor of his time.

The Methodists extend hearty invitation to the general public to share with them the musical distinctions which this great artist will bring and render. Signor Capelli will be at Willimantic Camp Ground in August.

Breed Theater

Eleanor Boardman and Conrad Nagel, whose appearance together in several pictures within the last year has established them as one of the most popular "teams" in motion pictures, play the leading roles in John M. Stahl's production of Memory Lane, which he directed for Louis B. Mayer. It is coming to the Breed theater on Sunday.

Memory Lane was written by Stahl and Benjamin Glazer directly for the screen. There are only three leading roles, and William Haines portrays the third.

Moving Pictures, Life of Jesus

The last half of the impressive religious moving picture, "The Life of Jesus," will be shown at the Norwich Y. M. C. A. tomorrow (Sunday) at 4 o'clock, and both men and women are cordially invited to see it.

Music will be furnished by H. C. Zabriskie, baritone and Miss Marcia Zabriskie, pianist.

Following are some of the scenes that will be shown on the screen on this occasion: Events in the last week of Jesus' life; triumphal entry into Jerusalem; the purging of the temple; the last supper; the night on the Mount of Olives; the betrayal; Jesus before Pontius Pilate and Herod; the journey to the cross and the crucifixion. From beginning to end this picture is one of very deep impressiveness, and one which is true to the Gospel narrative of the wonderful life of the Master. In case the weather is warm, the large electric fans will be used, insuring comfort for those who attend this service. A brief talk in line with the picture will be given.

An Appeal

The committee of the Family Welfare department of the United Workers urgently ask for sympathy and help from all who are interested in the needy and tired mothers, poor children, and babies of our city, that they may be offered some daily outings at the seaside or in our Mohegan park. Arrangements will be made whereby they can be transported to these places, under watchful care, but money is very necessary to make these vacation days possible.

Nothing is appropriated for this purpose from the relief funds of the United Workers. Therefore this appeal is made, hoping most earnestly for substantial help for this worthy work.

Please help us to give a little enjoyment, change of scene and occupation to these people whom we know and wish to make happy.

Contributions of any amount will be most gratefully received and please send as soon as possible to the Family Welfare Department of the United Workers, No. 9 Washington street.

COORDINATION STRESSED IN CHILDREN'S THEATER

NEW ORLEANS, July 9 (AP)—The play is the thing with regular actors, but not so with the Children's theater Guild of New Orleans. Here the audience is the thing.

The individuality of the children appearing in the six plays given each season is kept in the background while stress is laid on the coordination of the child players for the enjoyment of the audience or children. The guild's slogan Children's Plays with Child Actors for Child Audiences has struck a responsive chord in the hearts of juvenile New Orleans.

The "all inn" attitude on the stage is reflected in the rule against flowers for any one young actor or actress. The hundreds of flowers sent to the stage are for the cast.

The New Orleans guild was organized in 1924 by Miss Ruth Voss, who had spent two years in New York studying the development of the Children's theater there. The organization was announced to wean little folk away from "grown up" entertainment that might be sensational or suggestive and substitute plays commanding at once the respect of parents and educational leaders. Fourteen is the age limit.

The New Orleans children showed the way in the south in giving radio plays, producing three "on the air" and also staged an open air fete to aid municipal playground improvements.

The regular season this year saw productions including: Robin Hood, Snow White and the Seven Dwarfs, Mrs. Wiggs of the Cabbage Patch, Aladin and the Wonderful Lamp, and The Piper.

Birth Rate Drops

BUENOS AIRES, July 9 (AP)—The birth rate in Argentina—with 9,500,000 inhabitants in an area of 1,000,000 square miles—is slowly decreasing but on the other hand the mortality rate is steadily diminishing.

Though falling, the birth rate is considerably in excess of many countries and in Europe only Poland gives a higher percentage. The birth rate during the 1920-24 period is given as 3.3 per cent.

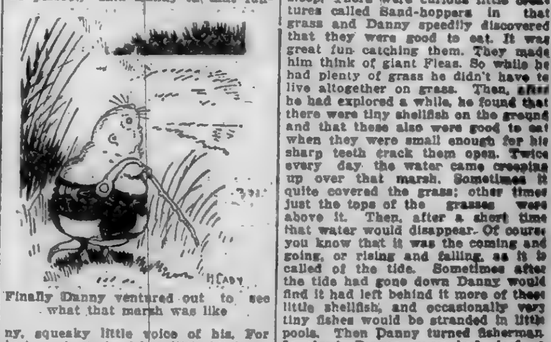
Danny Likes His New Home.

Food and sleep and peace of mind
Are all some people need, you'll find.
—Danny Meadow Mouse.

Danny Meadow Mouse was very much pleased with his new home at the seashore. Not very far away Jimmy Skunk—not the one he used to know back at Farmer Brown's, but another one—was living under a bathhouse. Already Danny had heard a Fox sniffling at the entrance to his new home in an old log on the edge of the marsh. That sniff was all that Danny needed to make him feel really at home.

"If only Nanny were here it would be perfect," said Danny in that funny, squeaky little voice of his. For just a minute he felt a little bit lonely. Then in the excitement of going exploring he forgot all about Nanny. He first made a little passage for himself underneath the dry seaweed along the old log where he was making his home. It was just big enough for him to run along. Then he cut a little path down to the edge of the marsh. All along the edge of the marsh were masses of dry seaweed which had floated in there on a high tide and been stranded. Never had Danny found a place where it was so easy to keep under cover. He promptly started to make little passages underneath some of these masses of seaweed. They were only short distances apart all along the edge from one to another of these patches of seaweed Danny had to expose himself only for a moment.



Finally Danny ventured out to see what that marsh was like

Finally Danny ventured out to see what that marsh was like. It was very much like the Green Meadows back home in appearance, for it was covered with grass. However, when Danny tasted that grass he found it was a different kind of grass from that he was used to. There was no clover there. It tasted just a wee bit salt. He rather liked it. It was tall enough for him to feel well protected, so he started at once to cut some little paths through this grass. As he cut the grass he ate it. It was a very convenient way of getting rid of the grass. Of course, he didn't get very far by night—for Danny was Danny whatever he happened to feel like going out—he carried those little paths farther and farther into the marsh.

The truth of the matter is, Danny was finding new and strange things and he really begrudged the time to sleep. There were curious little creatures called Sand-hoppers in that grass and Danny speedily discovered that they were good to eat. It was great fun catching them. They made him think of giant Fleas. So while he had plenty of grass he didn't have to live altogether on grass. Then, after he had explored a while, he found that there were tiny shellfish on the ground and that these also were good to eat when they were small enough for his sharp teeth crack them open. Twice every day the water came creeping up over that marsh. Sometimes it quite covered the grass; other times just the tops of the grasses were above it. Then, after a short time that water would disappear. Of course you know that it was the coming and going, or rising and falling, as it is called of the tide. Sometimes after the tide had gone down Danny would find it had left behind it more of those little shellfish, and occasionally very tiny fishes would be stranded in little pools. Then Danny turned fisherman. In short, Danny never had had a greater variety of food than he was finding down there on the marsh.

When he wanted a complete change all he had to do was to go up on the high land back of the marsh and there he found seeds and berries and sweet grasses such as he had been used to before he came to the seashore. So, take it altogether, Danny liked his new home. He liked it very much, indeed.

SQUIRRELS DIMINISHED BY DEMAND FOR FURS

Much regret is felt that the world's demand for furs threatens the extinction of the squirrels in the Norwegian woods.

The tempting prices offered — as high as 75 cents a pelt—have led to unusually active hunting. Last year there were exported to the United States 500,000 squirrel skins.

WAVE OF HEAVY SELLING

NEW YORK, July 9.—(AP)—A sudden wave of heavy selling for both accounts swept over today's stock market in the last hour, forcing moderate recessions throughout the list.

The break came after an earlier period of strength which had been featured by a sustained demand for the railroad shares. Trading was again in relatively heavy volume, the day's sales aggregating 1,647,100 shares.

There was nothing in the day's news to explain the reaction, which was generally considered as a correction of a weakened technical position resulting from the rapidity of the recent advance. In some quarters, however, there was a tendency to look for more stringent credit conditions as a result of the drop in the federal reserve ratios. The weekly mercantile reviews called attention to the improvement in business sentiment and the continued increase in bank clearings over the corresponding period last year.

Selling pressure was particularly acute in such recent strong spots as Allied Chemical, American Tobacco, Dupont, General Motors, General Asphalt, Mack Truck, New York Canners, Pullman, Remington Typewriter, Sloss-Sheffield Steel, Union Oil of California, U. S. Rubber, U. S. Steel and Youngstown Sheet and Tube, all of which showed net declines of 1 1-2 points or more.

Rails yielded with the industrials in the late selling movement but the recessions were not as large. Reading touched par for the first time since 1930 and Southern Pacific attained a new peak for the year at 106 1-2. Moderate gains also were recorded by the Wheeling and Lake Erie preferred issues. The Van Sweringen group lost ground on profit-taking.

NORWICH PROTESTS EFFECTIVE IN RESTORING POSTAL SUB STATIONS

Because of the protest which has been made to the post office department regarding the abolishment of the Norwich sub stations on account of the new regulations compelling them to handle parcel post packages, the post office department has agreed to permit the local sub stations to carry on the business as heretofore. These are the stations in Greeneville, at the Boston store, at John Jordan's on Central Wharf, at Ricker's drug store on West Main street, at Charles S. Treat's in Thamesville and at Louis Haggerty's at the Falls. They had been closed since June 30 when the old contracts expired and they declined to sign the new contracts which required them to handle parcel post matter.

Postmaster Casper K. Bailey immediately took steps upon receipt of the news of the new regulations to state the existing conditions in the Norwich sub stations.

Telegram to Senators and Representatives

The chamber of commerce sent the following telegram to Senators Bingham and McLean and to Congressman Freeman:

The enforcement of the post office department regulations compelling sub stations to handle parcel post packages, issue package insurances, etc., will prove a great hardship and handicap to stores wherein sub stations are located, especially during the Christmas season. We have a department store located in the heart of the city which is a sub station. The abolishment of this station will be a serious inconvenience to the general public. During one of the busiest post office days of the Christmas season of 1925 this station sold more than half of all the stamps sold in the Norwich post office. The accumulation or packages during the Christmas season in sub stations located as this one would prove a very serious handicap to the regular business of the store. We earnestly ask your cooperation to have this new regulation abolished.

Signed: Norwich Chamber of Commerce.

JOHN J. O'ROURKE,
Secretary

July 1, 1926.

Answers To Telegram

Their replies were as follows:

Washington, D. C., July 1st, 1926.
Mr. J. J. O'Rourke, Secretary,
Norwich Chamber of Commerce,
Norwich, Connecticut.
Mr. Dear Mr. O'Rourke:—

Your telegram duly received. I have been doing all in my power to get the department to eliminate from the pending bids the receipt of parcel post by the sub stations.

With kind personal regards, I remain,

Very sincerely yours,
R. P. FREEMAN.

July 3, 1926.
Simsbury, Connecticut.

Gentlemen:—

I have your telegram and have forwarded same to the Postmaster General requesting his personal attention to the matter

Yours sincerely,
GEO P. McLEAN.

July 3, 1926.

Gentlemen:

Upon the receipt of your telegram of July 1, Senator Bingham took up with the Post Office Department the subject matter of your communication, and is now in receipt of the inclosed letter from the First Assistant Postmaster General

The Senator desires me to express his pleasure that the matter has apparently been adjusted to your satisfaction.

Sincerely yours,
HENRY M. BARAY,
Sec'y to Senator Bingham.

July 6, 1926.

Hon Hiram Bingham,
United States Senate.
My dear Senator Bingham:

In connection with your reference of the 3d instant of a telegram addressed to you by the Norwich Chamber of Commerce, Norwich, Connecticut, urging that the clerks-in-charge of the contract stations of the Norwich office be not required to handle parcel post matter, I wish to inform you that the department has received a letter from the postmaster in which he submits strong reasons why the stations should not be required to receive parcel post packages for dispatch. Consequently, in view of his representations it has been decided to accept new agreements for the conduct of these stations with the requirement that they shall transact parcel post business eliminated.

The telegram of the Chamber of Commerce is returned as requested.

Sincerely yours,
JOHN H. BARTLETT.
First Assistant Postmaster General.

As a result of the explanations made by Postmaster Bailey and the protest offered by the chamber of commerce on the sub stations in Norwich, the sub stations are doing business as before.

Mail From New London Slow

There has been some complaint about the delivery of mail from New London to Norwich. In some instances it has taken three days to receive a letter from New London in Norwich. Postmaster Bailey investigated these complaints and the chamber of commerce caused a test of the postal service from New London to Norwich to be made by some fifteen members who wrote to New London and received their replies, noting the time sent and the time received in each instance. The result of this test showed that a letter mailed in New London before 12 m. was not delivered in Norwich until the next morning. This was caused because of the fact that the first train to arrive from New London during the afternoon was too late to deliver the mails for local afternoon delivery. Complaint of this service was registered in Washington with the post office department. As the result, several inspectors conferred with Postmaster Bailey Friday afternoon and they are making arrangements to have the New London mail carried on the 12.15 trolley, standard time, leaving New London. This mail will arrive in time for local afternoon delivery.

Secretary O'Rourke told the inspectors that there was also some complaints regarding the delivery or parcel post packages from New York and Philadelphia. In some instances it takes three days for parcel post packages mailed in New York to be delivered in Norwich. It takes one week for parcel post packages mailed in Philadelphia to reach Norwich. The inspectors assured the secretary that in such cases the wrappings should be turned over to Postmaster Bailey and that then a special investigation would be made of this service. The Norwich public who receive parcel post packages which they believe is delayed for local delivery should present the wrappings showing the cancellations to Postmaster Bailey so that he can have some tangible evidence to work upon.

Hay Was on Fire

A small grass fire on property of Dr. Daniel I. Jones at East Great Plain about 3 o'clock Friday afternoon resulted in a request by phone that the city fire department be allowed to lend assistance. Chief Howard L. Stanton and Squad A responded but on their arrival found that the fire had already been extinguished.

The fire started in a patch of hay which had been cured preparatory to being stored away and it was feared that the wind would cause a rapid spread of the flames and threaten nearby property.

CITY PULMOTOR IS READY FOR EMERGENCIES

Now that the summer season is on hand the danger from drowning is ever present, Mayor Milo R. Waters called attention Friday to the fact that the city possesses a pulmotor which is in the custody of the fire department and the mayor requested that the public bear this fact in mind in emergency cases. A telephone call to central station, telephone 199, the mayor said, would bring instant response with a competent crew to operate the pulmotor.

RHODE ISLAND VILLAGE SOLD FOR $197,134

PROVIDENCE, July 9.—(AP)—Maplesville, a mill village in the town of Burrillville, R. I., the site of the Coronet Worsted company, passed into the hands of scores of owners yesterday for a total of $197,134 when it was sold at public auction by the heirs of the late Colonel Joseph E. Fletcher, of this city. The amount received from the sale is slightly less than half of the assessed valuation of the village, but is considered a fair return in view of conditions prevailing in the textile industry.

Sixty nine dwellings, two mills, post office, casino, village store and water works system went under the hammer.

Items of chief interest were mills number 1 and number 2 of the old worsted company, which were purchased by H. E. Buck, of Danielson, Conn., for Austin T. Levy, president, treasurer and director of the Stillwater Worsted company at Harrisville, R. I. Mr. Levy declined to say what his plans for the property are. He did not buy the equipment, but did buy 17 of the houses. The purchase price for both mills was $46,000.

Most of the remaining houses were sold to residents of the village who now work in mills in nearby communities. Prices ranged from $250 to $6,800. The mill machinery, which brought $43,554, included 174 looms, 11 wool spinning mules, carding machines, pickers, twisters, spoolers, wet and dry finishing and dyeing equipment.

AVERAGE LIFE 8 YEARS FOR AUTOMOBILES NOW

Although the average life of motor vehicles has recently been found to be eight years, the files of the state motor vehicle department show that there are automobiles at least 16 years old in operation in Connecticut today. When some of these old veterans first went into service, Connecticut had less than one-sixteenth the number of motor vehicles it has registered today and there was only one car for every 67 people in the state, as against one for every seven people of today.

Most of these old cars, registered as far back as 1910, have long since gone out of manufacture, but a few were made by manufacturers who still turn out cars by the same name.

The average life of motor vehicles has been extended in recent years. Cars made about 1909 had an average life of five years. Beginning about 1914, the average life of cars became about 6 1-2 years, and the trend has been gradually upward.

About 19,000 motor vehicles are estimated to have been scrapped in Connecticut last year, notwithstanding an increase registration of about 38,000 cars in the state. Throughout the United States about 1,503,000 cars were scrapped last year.

BUSINESS TOO POOR FOR THIS BUS LINE

Lack of patronage on the Norwich-Middletown bus line, via Gardner lake, especially as concerns the end of the route running from Norwich to Gardner lake, has resulted in the Connecticut Motor Transportation company, holders of the bus franchise, abandoning this route. The last trips over the route by Connecticut busses will be made on this (Saturday) evening.

The route was opened last September after the present holders had successfully won out over other bus owners who sought the route and it is alleged that it has been operated at a loss since the opening day.

The route runs from Norwich to Leffingwell, Gardner Lake, Salem, North Plains, Hadlyme, East Haddam, Haddam, Higganum and Middletown. It is alleged that the franchise for the route has been sold to a New London bus company and that the route will be covered by busses owned by the new concern beginning next week.

HOW I IMPROVED MY HEALTH

Did It in Less Than One Month

As Mrs. Weaver herself says, "I was never very strong." This is a mild statement describing her condition, for according to her letters, she was subjected to no small amount of ill health. Fortunately, her sister was familiar with Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and begged Mrs. Weaver to try it. "After three or four weeks," writes Mrs. Weaver, "I felt a great difference in myself. I would go to bed and sleep sound, and although I could not do very much work, I seemed stronger. I kept on taking it and now I am well and strong, do my work and take care of three children. I sure do tell my friends about your wonderful medicine, and I will answer any letters from women asking about the Vegetable Compound."—Mrs. LAWRENCE WEAVER, East Smithfield St., Mt. Pleasant, Pa.

If you knew that thousands of women suffering from troubles similar to those you are enduring had improved their health by taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, wouldn't you think it was worth a trial?

POETRY

Silver Poplars

God wrote His loveliest poem on the day
He made the first tall silver poplar tree
And set it high upon a pale-gold hill,
For all the new enchanted earth to see.

I think its beauty must have made Him glad,
And that He smiled at it—and loved it so—
Then turned in sudden sheer delight, and made
A dozen silver poplars in a row.

Mist green and white against a turquoise sky,
A-shimmer and a-shine it stood at noon;
A misty silver loveliness at night,
Breathless beneath the first small wistful moon.

And then God took the music of the winds,
And set each leaf a-flutter and a-thrill—
Today I read His poem word by word
Among the silver poplars on the hill.
—Grace Noll Crowell, in Scribner's Magazine.

If Only You Remember

If in the world my feeble deeds are lost,
And those who praised have quite forgotten me,
All effort will have well been worth the cost
To live again within your memory,
If only you remember for a while
The comfort of this room's soft gray and rose,
Wherein I always waited with a smile
For you to come to me at daylight's close,
If only you remember well this place,
Fresh flowers on the table set for two,
The garden glimpsed through softly falling lace,
Embroidered linen, painted cups of blue,
If you remember I am unafraid,
From memories like these is Heaven made.

AT LEAST 10 DEAD, 20 MISSING AND SCORES INJURED IN NAVY ARSENAL DISASTER

Explosion, Caused by Lightning, Practically Demolished Navy's Principal Ammunition Depot at Lake Denmark, N. J.—Towns and Hamlets Within Radius of 15 Miles Bore Marks of Continual Hail of Debris—Sixteen Inch Shells Hurled Through Air in All Directions—High Explosives Demolished 200 Buildings on Reservation—Military Guard Thrown Around Danger Zone—Secretary of War Davis Inspects Devastated Area—Damage Estimated at Over $100,000,000.

DOVER, N. J., July 11.—(AP)—Seven bodies were discovered tonight in the area devastated by the explosion of the naval ammunition depot at Lake Denmark. The bodies were not brought out of the guarded area due to the continuing danger from bursting shells. In addition to the seven bodies three other persons are known to be dead and upward of 20 are missing.

Damage to the naval arsenal and the adjoining Picatinny arsenal on the army reservation was estimated tonight by army and navy officers at $100,000,000. Stores of munitions at the naval depot were valued at $87,000,000, and Secretary of War Davis, after an inspection of the army reservation tonight, said that a conservative estimate of the damage there was $5,000,000.

Towns and hamlets within a radius of 15 miles of what was until yesterday the navy's principal depot, bore the marks of the continual hail of debris and the shock of the detonations of stores of powder, T. N. T. and even more powerful propellants. With the less severely injured under treatment in several hospitals and private homes in the hilly region in and about Lake Denmark it was difficult to obtain an accurate check up of those hurt in the successive blasts set off by a bolt of lightning.

Tonight, 24 hours and more, after the initial explosion, desultory discharges of ammunition supplies shattered the smouldering debris of 200 demolished buildings within the reservation limits.

A change of wind had removed, temporarily, the danger which throughout the night threatened the adjacent army arsenal at Picatinny. Army officers said there had been no fire at the arsenal but that an army laboratory had been burned and there has been considerable other damage.

The known dead were:

Captain George W. Bott, of Richmond, Va.

Harry C. Brown, pharmacist, Poughkeepsie, N. Y.

Mrs. Frances Feeney, of Brooklyn, a visitor at the plant.

Secretary of War Davis came from New York today to visit the scene of the disaster. He was advised of the danger of inspecting the shell torn area which still flamed and smouldered. Naval men reported that 18 naval magazines were still intact and it was hoped that with the dying down of the fires that they would be saved. Secretary Davis viewed the scene from just inside the reservation gates.

Tonight 200 marines are en route from Quantico, Va., to aid in gfarding the devastated area which has been surrounded by army and navy pickets to keep away the throngs of curious who might be injured in some belated explosion.

Secretary of War Davis, after an inspection of the area damaged by the explosion of the Lake Denmark arsenals said tonight that he believed most of the danger was now past.

The war secretary went over the army reservation adjoining the naval ammunition depot and upon his return said that "there had been no explosion in the army reservation so far" and that he believed the danger from flying shells was about over, so far as their setting off the army arsenal magazines was concerned.

Two buildings, the laboratory and a storage building on the army reservation were fired by shells shortly after the first explosion, Mr. Davis said. While nearly all of the other buildings suffered considerable damage there had been no other fires there. The damage was caused chiefly by the concussion of the explosions, Mr. Davis said.

"We have had no time yet to consider rebuilding the arsenal," Mr. Davis said in reply to questions. "The chief of the ordinance department tomorrow will appoint a board of investigation to look over the entire situation."

The war secretary complimented Major General Summerall and Brig. Gen. Crum for the way in which they had maneuvered troops to reach the scene of the disaster in the shortest possible time.

Maj. Gen. C. C. Williams, chief of the ordnance department of the army this afternoon estimated the damage to the army reservation at about $5,000,000. The comparatively small damage to the Picantinny arsenal was due, it was said, to the small amount of reserve munitions stored there. Lat-serve muntions stores there.

MARINES RUSHED TO SCENE OF DISASTER

WASHINGTON, July 11.—(AP)—The message sent by Captain William R. Sayles, naval officer in charge of relief activities, said that the fire was still burning and that explosions were continuing, making it unsafe to send men into the area of wreckage. The first navy casualty reported was that of Harry Christian Brown, pharmacist mate, first class, whose mother Mrs. Lito Brown, lives at 7 Market street, Poughkeepsie, N. Y.

Brown's death was the only one reported to the department, although Captain Sayles said that a number of navy men and marines were missing or wounded. He said it was impossible to ascertain the number of civilians killed or wounded.

Sayles' telegram was sent from Dover, N. J., near the Lake Denmark depot which was struck by lightning late yesterday. He said that Lieutenant Commander E. A. Brown of the Naval Medicia corps, reported killed last night was "missing," as was Cpatain Burnwell H. Clarke, Little Rock, Ark., in charge of the marine detachment at the depot and Chief Gunner J. M. Gately.

Captain O. C. Dowling, of the navy, in common of the depot was reported by Captain Sayles as "seriously wounded" and Naval Lieutenant Herman C. Schrader and Chief Gunner W. A. Gerdts as injured.

Twenty enlisted marines, the department was informed, and one enlisted man of the small naval detachment at the depot were missing and 24 enlisted men wounded, six of them having been sent to the hospital.

Captain Sayles also reported that the wives of Captain Dowling, Lieutenant-Commander Brown and Chief Gunner Gerdts had been wounded. Chief Clerk Wadshams also was listed as injured and his wife missing.

Sayles said that if conditions warranted he intended to send men into the danger zone late today to ascertain the extent of the damage.

In a later despatch he said it had been found that 15 or 18 magazines at the northern end of the depot had not exploded, as it had been believed, and that if the wind held its present direction they might be saved.

To assist in relief activities 200 marines were dispatched today by train from the Quantico, Va., base in charge of Lieutenant Colonel Robert Y. Rhea. They expected to arrive at Lake Denmark shortly before midnight.

The navy department also made public a message sent by Secretary Wilbur, aboard the U. S. S. New York off Newport, Rhode Island to Rear Admiral Plunkett, commandant of the Third Naval district, expressing deep regret over the disaster and asking to be kept informed as to the developments.

Captain Sayles said that private property damage was "large," but he made no attempt to estimate it.

A mid-afternoon telephone message to C. T. Haris, Jr., executive assistant to chief of army ordinance, said that Second Lieutenant George W. Bott, Jr., was the only one stationed at Picatiny Army arsenal, near the naval depot, who had been killed. No one there was seriously injured, although a number received minor hurts.

Major Norman F. Ramsey, commandant of the army arsenal, and Major F. H. Miles, second in command, were among those slightly injured.

The war department transmitted to the navy department the following message concerning the situation at Picatinny, received from Lieutenant Pike, of the Second Corps area:

"General Crum and troops have arrived. The fire is being blown away from the army area. However, the buildings are badly battered due to the concussion of the explosions, the refugees are being well cared for and nothing more can be done at present. The navy estimates that three officers and 20 men are missing."

SIX YEAR OLD GIRL BLINDED BY SHOCK

MORRISTOWN, N. J., July 11.—(AP)—Twenty one persons, one of them a six year old girl blinded by shock remained at hospitals here tonight, of the 136 brought last night from the vicinity of the arsenal explosion near Dover.

Authorities thus far were unable to locate the parents of the blind child. She was registered as "Baby Peterson" when brought in by refugees from Mount Hope. They said the girl was hurled to the ground during one of the major explosions and arose a moment later, dazed and sightless.

The injured included Privates John Singleton and Pearsley Davidson, marines from the Philadelphia navy yard who brought a military prisoner to the arsenal and were spending a few hours at the barracks before returning.

The most seriously injured were Leonard Garrier of Rockaway, who received a fractured thigh and suffered shell shock and John Harper, who received fractures of both legs.

The others were victims of cuts and shock.

Scenes at the Morristown armory, where 150 refugees from mining towns near the arsenals were quartered until late today, resembled those seen in Ellis Island after the arrival of an immigrant ship. Clergymen and Red Cross and welfare workers provided bedding and clothing and comforted members of families who had become separated.

Most of the refugees who spent the night in Boonton early today left for Newark and other large cities.

SIXTEEN INCH SHELLS HURLED THROUGH AIR

DOVER, N. J., July 11.—(AP)—An army officer and a woman are known to have been killed and two other officers and a gunner were believed to have lost their lives in the explosions which destroyed the navy ammunition depot at Lake Denmark last night. About 30 soldiers and marines were unaccounted for today, but most of them were believed to have been away from the station on leaves of absence.

Thirty-four marines were injured, but probably none fatally.

Army officers on the ground said today that first reports of the number dead last night were exaggerated.

Explosions occurring at frequent intervals throughout last night and today were throwing shells a distance of about a mile. This barrage made a war-time inferni of an area of four square miles immediately surrounding the depot. Troops who were hurried to the scene last night, stood by throughout the day, helpless to cusb the ceaseless explosions.

Scores of civilians in nearby towns were injured, but the hegira of hundreds of families from their homes

Former Secretary Weeks Near Death

Lapsed Into Coma Yesterday —Condition So Alarming End is Expected Within Few Hours.

LANCASTER, N. H., July 11.—(AP)—Former Secretary of War John W. Weeks lapsed into a coma today and his condition was so alarming that his physicians were doubtful that he would survive more than 24 hours.

A bulletin issued late this afternoon by Dr. R. E. Wilder of Whitefield, one of the medical staff at the Weeks' summer home on Mt. Prospect, near here, read: "Mr. Weeks has been in a coma since early this morning. His pulse is feeble and his respiration labored. He seems to be nearing the end and the attending physicians do not believe he can survive more than 24 hours."

The former war secretary has been in failing health since an operation for gallstones at the Massachusetts General hospital in Boston in May, 1925.

Late tonight another statement from the attending physicians said that Mr. Weeks was still sinking, but that it was probable he would live through the night. No hope for an ultimate rally was held out, however.

"It is just a gradual but steady decline," it was said. "The pulse is growing weaker."

The former war secretary had not recovered consciousness at any time, nor was he expected to throw off the coma into which he lapsed early today.

MOUNT HOPE RESEMBLES DESERTED FRENCH VILLAGE

NEW YORK, July 11.—(AP)—Secretary of War Davis arrived in New York from Port Washington this afternoon and departed by motor immediately for the scene of the expdlosion at Dover, N. J. Secretary Davis said there was little comment he could make upon the disaster before his arrival at Dover. He had been in communication by telephone with Major General Charles P. Summerall, commandant of the Second Army Corps area, and had been informed that while the damage at the Picatinny army arsenal was serious, the havoc did not compare with that wrought by the explosion of the naval ammunition depot.

Relief workers from the American Red Cross also departed this afternoon for the scene of the explosion. In addition General Sumerall who departed this morning for Dover, issued orders for all supply trucks and army ambulances at Forts Hamilton, Wadsworth, Jay, Slocum, Scuyler, Totten and Hancock, to stand in readiness to procede to Dover.

Lieut. H. C. Schrader, of the naval detachment was reported missing last night but officers today did not include his name among those believed to have been killed. Reports said that he had been found wounded near the depot and taken to a home in the neighborhood.

A military guard was thrown about the danger zone, in a circle within a radius of a mile of the center of the detonation. Soldiers occupied six villages and towns on the edge, and some within, the danger area. Members of the New Jersey State constabulary also were assisting in guarding the towns.

Mount Hope, a village with a population of 500, about three-fourths of a mile from the arsenal, resembled a deserted French village during the war. All residents of the community were ordered from their homes last night. Some of the families spent the night on the roads in their automobiles a safe distance from the danger area.

Buildings in Rockaway, a town of between 2,000 and 3,000 population, about five miles from the navy depot, were damaged by the shock of the explosions. The bursting of the shils could clearly be heard from this town today.

Damage to the Replogle iron mine at Mount Hope was estimated by the superintendent at $150,000. The only workers remaining at the mine were those operating the pumps.

JUST LIKE SCENE ON WESTERN FRONT

DOVER, N. J., July 11.—(AP)—A reporter, a photographer and a motion picture camera man were allowed inside the danger zone of the explosion of the naval ammunitions depot at Lake Denmark, N. J., for the first time this afternoon.

At the entrance to the Picatinny arsenal the party, under military escore was met by Brig. General Crum, who said, "Well, boys, you'll find it just like the western front."

The car carrying the party had not gone 200 yards beyond the picket lines marking the entrance to the army reservation before shell holes appeared on either side of the roadway. The road itself was almost impassable from limbs of trees and other debris scattered upon it.

The brick headquarters building on the army reservation had collapsed and the roofs of officers' quarters were scattered over the lawns. Not one of the 500 buildings on the army reservation was intact. Concrete buildings looked as if they had been smashed by a giant sledge hammer. As the party proceeded nearer the naval reservation the intermittent shell explosions increased in violence and dense smoke and powder fumes made breathing difficult.

The party of newspapermen were informed by the officers conducting them that it was impossible for anyone to go inside the devastated naval reservation and that the most they would do would be to skirt the danger area.

Motorcycle Driver Hurled to Death

New Haven Man Thrown Against Pole Receives Fractured Skull—Died in Hospital Hour After Accident.

STRATFORD, Conn., July 11.—(AP)—Patrick Gianotti, 32, single, of 156 Dewitt street, New Haven, was fatally injured at 3:20 o'clock Sunday morning when a motorcycle which he was driving, with sidecar attached, struck a telephone pole at the side of Lordship road, Stratford, about one mile east of the Bridgeport city line. Gianotti's skull was fractured when his head struck the pole. He died at Bridgeport hospital at 4:45 a. m.

Julius Mojiti, 164 Dewitt street, New Haven, who was with him was flung through the air but landed in soft ground at the side of the road, escaping serious injury.

At the time of the accident the Stratford ambulance patrol was out on another call to Ferry Boulevard, where John Kenny of Catherine street, Bridgeport, had been overturned in his sedan after crashing against a trolley company pole and then hitting a billboard at the side of the road.

In the meantime Frank Armstrong of Bridgeport, whose summer home at Lordship is a short distance from the scene of the accident, came along in his car and at once offered assistance. The unconscious man was rushed to the hospital in Armstrong's car.

The police found friends of the injured man at the place where the motorcycle left the road. At the time that Giannotti's motorcycle shot from the road, another machine operated by Guiseppi Tulli of 258 West Carlyle street, New Haven, with Dominic Monitti, of 125 DeWitt street, New Haven in the sidecar was following. They told police that they had all been fishing near Lordship and were on their way back to New Haven when the accident occurred.

PRES. COOLIDGE ATTENDS CHURCH AT SARANAC LAKE

PAUL SMITHS, N. Y., July 11.—(AP)—Driving 13 miles to Saranac Lake, the President and Mrs. Coolidge were given a warm welcome by the people of that famous health resort today when they attended morning service at the First Presbyterian church.

The ride was the only one they have taken beyond the immediate vicinity of White Pine camp since their arrival for the summer and hundreds were outside the little church to see them, while Mr. and Mrs. Coolidge rode through the streets of the town of some 3,000 inhabitants. Invalids from their cots on porches and at windows looked eagerly out.

Word spreading that the chief executive was at the church, the crowd of two or three hundred outside increased until twice that number were present when the President and Mrs. Coolidge entered their automobile to return to the camp. The crowd clapped their hands and cheered as the president appeared and he responded quietly by lifting his gray felt hat and smiling.

The service in the church with its accomodations for less than 250 was simple, the sermon being preached by the minister, the Rev. George K. Newell, who made no reference to the presence of the distinguished visitors, but devoted his sermon to an exposition of the spiritual authority of Christ.

After the benediction, however, the minister stepped down the aisle while the congregation remained standing and greeted the President and Mrs. Coolidge with a cordial handshake and a word or two before escorting them to the door.

Returning directly to their camp, the President and Mrs. Coolidge arranged to spend the rest of the day and the evening in quiet seclusion. Log fires in the huge fireplaces of the cabins they found comfortable, as the day was overcast and chilly so that even top coats were none too warm outside.

The day found them apparently enjoying as much as ever their life in the woods while there was no indication of a change in the routine of the life they adopted immediately upon their arrival in the mountains. Both obtain plenty of exercise, Mrs. Coolidge through strolls about the camp with the white collies, Rob Roy and Prudence Prim, and Mr. Coolidge in walks under the trees and in practising casting for fish from the foot bridge below the camp buildings. Several times also he has gone out on Lake Osgood for a spin in one of the camp launches or in a row boat to try his luck at fishing.

During the afternoon the clouds lifted and the President and Mrs. Coolidge took advantage of the clear and cool weather to motor seven miles to a fox farm. After looking over black and silver foxes for half an hour, they returned to the camp.

The president learned late in the day from press reports of the serious condition of John W. Weeks, his former secretary of war. It was said he was very much distressed over the reports, and arrangements were made to keep him informed of the condition of his former cabinet officer.

DISABLED FRENCH VETERANS LED PROTEST PARADE

Invalids and Blind Headed Line of 12,000 Men Who Paraded Streets of Paris in Demonstration Against Ratification by France of Washington Debt Settlement—Thousands Stood Bareheaded Along Line of March—Stone Plaque Expressing Wish That Franco-American Debt Settlement be Revised Was Placed at the Statue of George Washington—Protest Parade Was Also Held at Nice.

PARIS, July 11.—(AP)—War veterans propelling themselves in invalid chairs, the blind with hands on the shoulders of their wives or children for guidance, others with the wounds of battle showing plainly led the protest parade of 12,000 men today against the Washington debt settlement.

The procession moved up the Champ Elysees, around the Arc de Triomphe and down the Avenue D'Iena. A wreath was deposited at the Alan Seeger monument erected in the Place des Etats Unis, and another at the equestrin statue of George Washington, inscribed: "To Washington, with hope." Here also was placed a stone plaque expressing the wish that the Franco-American debt settlement be revised.

As soon as the backs of the veterans' officials were turned, a police officer in plain clothes took the plaque from under the wreath, put it under his coat, and jumping into a waiting automobile, speeded away, leaving only the wreath as a testimonial of the veterans' visit.

The plaque was inscribed as follows:

"Over the head of diplomacy and far from political and financial combines the war veterans of France appeal straight to the people of the United States. After the deceptions of peace the proposed debt settlement would consecrate the ruin of France and the loss of its independence.

"Americans will understand that the war veterans of France, who are honest, sincere and loyal are asking in a friendly manner that the study of the question should be taken up at once more."

The franc government had originally prohibited the parade, which was intended, prior to objections by Ambassador Herrick, to take the form of a much stronger protest against the Franco-American settlement.

Thousands stood bareheaded along the line of march.

The police were on hand to prevent demonstrations before the American embassy and Ambassador Myron T. Herrick's residence, but the parade passed neither. Colonel Charles Sweeney, J. G. Hopper, Charles Beaumont and P. Salisbury, members of the American volunteers, received the wreath at the Seeger statue, where the French veteran heading the group remarked: "I am glad you had the courage to come."

Toward the end of the mach, a fine rain fell, but this rather added to the solemn spectacle which was one of the most moving in the history of Paris, for the veterans marched in utter silence; and flags were dipped as each delegation passed the monuments.

A special edition of the veterans' newspaper issued for the occasion calls attention to speeches by various American statesmen in 1917 regarding the loans to the allies, in which it was said that the United States at that time was not able to fight with men, so it would fight with dollars until an American army was available.

After the procession had disbanded several hundred ex-soldiers of royalist tendencies together with hundreds of young fascisti in blue shirts, scarrying yellow canes continued parading, and gave a decidedly political atmosphere to the demonstration, but there was no conflict between the two factions, which had marched behind the thousands of veterans.

There was a parade also at Nice against the debt settlement terms, and a resolution was adopted declaring that the settlement ought to be arranged by a committee composed entirely of French and American veterans.

CAILLAUX READY TO NEGOTIATE WITH ENGLAND

PARIS, July 11.—(AP)—M. Caillaux, the French finance minister, is prepared to proceed with his negotiations at London for a settlement of France's war debt to Great Britain, but the plan which he will present to the chancellor of the British exchequor, Winston Churchill is not definitely known.

The newspaper "Intransigeant" published today what purported to be a summary of the terms of the agreement, saying that it would be signed tomorrow, which drew from the ministry of finance late tonight the following statement:

"The minister of finance formally denies the exactness of the information furnished by an afternoon newspaper concerning the Franco-British accord in preparation."

The intransigneant says the agreement includes the return to the Bank of France by the Bank of England of 500,000,000 gold francs from the gold deposit made by the French during the war. The paper asserts the Bank of England also will open a sterling credit with the Bank of France.

In this Franco-British agreement the debt annuities are reported to be fixed at from 10,000,000 pounds to 12,000,000 pounds in the succeeding years. France's debt to great Britain originally amounted to about 623,000,000 pounds.

Finally, France will obtain safeguard, transfer and non-commercialization clauses by the agreement.

NEW YORK, July 11.—(AP)—The detailed reorganization plan of the American Writing Paper company, made public tonight, provides for the disposal of its Ohio and Wisconsin properties and a few Massachusetts and Connecticut mills, with a concentration center in the 16 mills to be retained in Holyoke, Mass., Unionville and Windsor Locks, Conn. New money, estimated at $1,400,000 which will be obtained from the sale of the discarded mills will be used to rehabilitate the plants to be retained, and for other corporate uses.

The plan, financial details of which have been previously announced, had been approved by the committees acting for the bondholders, stockholders and merchandise creditors. These committees have called for a deposit of securities and claims under the plan.

LITTLE SLACKENING IN BUSINESS ACTIVITIES

NEW YORK, July 11.—(AP)—Week by week developments in the principal industries have confirmed previous indications that summer activities would be maintained at an uncommonly high rate. With midsummer now at hand, the general business situation contrasts sharply with that of recent years when complaints of slackening operations were the rule.

Moderate recessions over the next two months are inevitable, but present indications are that they will be less than normal. Curtailment of steel production, the trade reviews predicted would be the slightest for the season in six years. A normal relaxation in new buying has been noted since the first of the month, but the business on hand was sufficient to keep most of the mills operating over the holidays with only a one day suspension. From the automobile industry came the significant announcement that one of the largest manufacturers would forego its customary shut down during the annual inventory.

The decrease in unfilled tonnage of the United States Steel corporation at the end of June, amounting to 170,609 tons, was the smallest since last January. Normally, when unfilled steel orders have been declining, the recessions in the early summer months have been more pronounced; for the past three years the decreases in June have ranged between 300,000 and 400,000 tons.

Latest reports from the railroads testified to the steady strengthening of their financial and operating positions. Freight traffic in the first six months of the year, measured by the number of cars loaded with revenue freight, was the greatest ever handled by the railroads for a corresponding period. The final compilation of earnings of all the class one carriers for May showed that net railways operating income totaled $88,120,501, with one exception the largest for that month since 1920 and nearly $12,000,000 above May, last year. Moreover, the earnings were at an annual rate of return of 5.60 per cent on the interstate commerce commission valuation, within striking distance of the contemplated "fair return" of 5.75 per cent.

Minor irregularities cropped out in certain lines of trade and industry without causing any visible concern. Following a slight increase in petroleum production, certain grades of crude oil were reduced in price but these cuts are not expected to spread far. New prices on staple woolen fabrics for the 1927 spring trade were the lowest since 1917, averaging 10 per cent below those named a year ago. To remedy the recent slump in cotton textiles, a national campaign was inaugurated to increase sales and improve conditions in the industry.

NEARLY 500 REFUGEES ARE AT MORRISTOWN

MORRISTOWN, N. J., July 11.—(AP)—Altogether 50 persons have been treated for injuries sustained in the explosion of the navy ammunition depot at Lake Denmark at the Morristown General hospital. No new patients have been received here since early this morning, and only 14 of the 50 treated have been held at the hospital. None of their injuries are serious.

Between 400 and 500 refugees from the villages of Mount Hope, Hibernia, Rockaway, and Denmark are being cared for in Morristown. All public buildings have been thrown open to the refugees and women's organizations are caring for them. The streets of this little village resemble a war-torn French town just after an invading army had passed, with parents searching frantically for missing children and children looking for their parents. No estimate of the number of missing persons among the residents of the villages on the fringe of the devastated area was available tonight.

MRS. GEO. WHEELER'S HOSE HIDING PLACE FOR HOOCH

(Special to the Bulletin)

WILLIMANTIC, July 11—A raid at the home of George Wheeler, 1166 West Main street shortly before 2 o'clock this evening netted a pint bottle of moonshine, a quantity of home-brew and about 100 empty bottles. Wheeler was not present but word was left for him to appear in police court Monday morning to answer to a charge of violation of the liquor law. He is recorded as a previous offender, having been convicted of liquor charges in the local court. When the raiding crew entered, Mrs. Wheeler attempted to slip the pint of liquor into her stocking but later gave it up. Captain Frank McLean of the police held the warrant, the other officers being County Detective W. E. Jackson, Federal Officer Briggs and Police Officers Arthur Hurley, Piche and Marrotte.

The raiders visited another home in the city but got nothing for their pains.

MOTHER ILL, CHAPLIN FATHER ACCUSED BY DAUGHTER

(Special to the Bulletin)

WILLIMANTIC, July 11—One of the most revolting cases of parental depravity to shock the residents of the town of Chaplin in some time has come to light with the arrest of Henry Linkill, 38, a resident of the Bear Hill road, Chaplin, charged with incest by his 15 year old daughter, Irene, and of Louis Corbellini, 32, an employe of the state highway department, on a charge of statutory rape on Sarah, the 14 year old daughter of the first accused. Linkill and Corbellini both pleaded guilty when in presented in Chaplin town court at noon Saturday. Justice of the Peace Cahrles B. Russ bound both over to the next term of the superior court under bonds of $2,500 each. Grand Juror George A. Reed, assisted by Frank P. Fenton of this city, representing the State Humane society, prosecuted the cases. The two girls have been placed in proper care to await further action by the authorities. The investigation and arrests were made by County Detective William E. Jackson and Constable Ternor A. Rice of North Windham. Captain of Police Frank McLean figured in the arrest of Corbellini in the early hours of Saturday morning at a cottage owned by the Burnham estate which he and several other members of the road construction gang occupied, in North Windham.

The daughters, for whose welfare the townspeople have much solicitude, had left home July 1st. Irene, who told the officers that her father had been committing low acts with her for a period of over a year, said that she could not stand his actions any longer, in explaining why she left home. Something of a stronger moral fibre in the young girl had caused her to rebel against the life she had been forced to lead. With her sister she secured Corbellini to take her to Danielson. The two girls spent the first night at the inn there. The man called for them the next day and took them to the home of relatives in East Hartford. They were found there by the officers late Friday night and returned to this city. The girls made complete confessions of their acts. Sarah accused Corbellini of being intimate with her on several occasions and a warrant was made out for his arrest. He at first denied his guilt.

Linkill is a farmer. He is the father of six children, the two daughters mentioned and four children younger. Mrs. Linkill has been ill for some time and was a patient at St. Joseph's hospital for several weeks. Irene, the oldest daughter, has been employed as a domestic for Mrs. Guay in Chaplin for some time.

In discussing the case, Justice Russ and Grand Juror Reed asserted that they were prepared to assist in the launching of a campaign to put an end to immoral conditions in Chaplin. The present case is the second of a similar nature within a comparatively short time, and County Detective Jackson intimated that it would not be the last shocking disclosure. At least two more arrests are expected to be made within a short time.

The cheery notes of the bugle sounded assembly call at eight o'clock at the state armory here, Sunday morning and 92 enlisted men with three officers of Company C, 169th Infantry, the largest unit of the regiment piled into three big Blue Line busses. They were on their way to two joyous weeks of camp life at Niantic and were the only unit traveling in such fine style. Other companies made the trip in trains. The officers of the local company are Captain Joseph R. Morrison, Lieutenant Ellison S. Smith and Second Lieutenant Edward A. Morrison.

Arthur J. Caisse of 47 John street, this city, discovered to his amazement about 10:30 o'clock Saturday morning that even while a car is standing on a grease-case pit and undergoing repairs it is not safe from collision. His Ford coupe was at the Standard Oil company service station, corner of Main and Bridge streets and Manager Louis French was making the repairs. Charles A. Bjorklund of 15 Commonwealth avenue, New Britain, driving a five-ton truck of the Hardware City Transportation company, pulled into the station yard, missing the brake pedal and his foot slipped onto the accelerator. Throwing an anvil on the gas feeder would have brought identical results. The big truck lurched forward into the Ford and threw it partly off the pit. Tires were ripped off, a rear left wheel demolished, frame bent and glass broken on the car. Manager French escaped injury. The truck driver told Chief of Police Thomas J. Grady that he would settle for the damages.

Arthur Hamilton, colored chauffeur for Mrs. Catherine P. Humphrey, of 141 Height road, Ridgewood, N. J., was fined $10 and costs, in Columbia town court Saturday afternoon, after the Lincoln sedan which he was driving collided with and damaged an Overland touring car operated by Winifred B. Dimon of 62 Fairview Drive, Wethersfield, at the junction of the Columbia highway with the Willimantic-Hartford road. State Policeman Henry Heinold made the arrest. Justice of the Peace Hubert T. Collins held court and Grand Juror Joseph N. Clarke prosecuted the case. Hamilton pleaded guilty.

Registrar of Motor Vehicles Frank A. Goodwin announced from his office at Boston, Friday that he had suspended the operator's license of Miss Alice Yeomans, 17 year old daughter of Superior Court Judge Edward M. Yeomans of Andover, Conn. The suspension was on the grounds that the young woman had used a Massachusetts operator's license to operate a Connecticut-registered motor vehicle. Miss Yeomans is to appear in the Andover town court July 13, to answer to a charge of operating a motor vehicle without a Connecticut operator's license. She was arrested some ten days ago by Deputy Sheriff Allison L. Frink. The girl had secured a license in the Bay State, where the age limit is 16, while a student at Dana hall, Wellesly. Although no one can question her ability as a driver she could not secure a Connecticut license due to the age limit being 18.

I. The only damage resulting was a hub-cap torn from the rear wheel of the truck by the bumper of the touring car. Loidano demanded damages enough to buy a whole crate of hub-caps and the Providence man balked. Later he dropped his price to $5 without result. He finally cooled down to $2 and Pratt paid it.

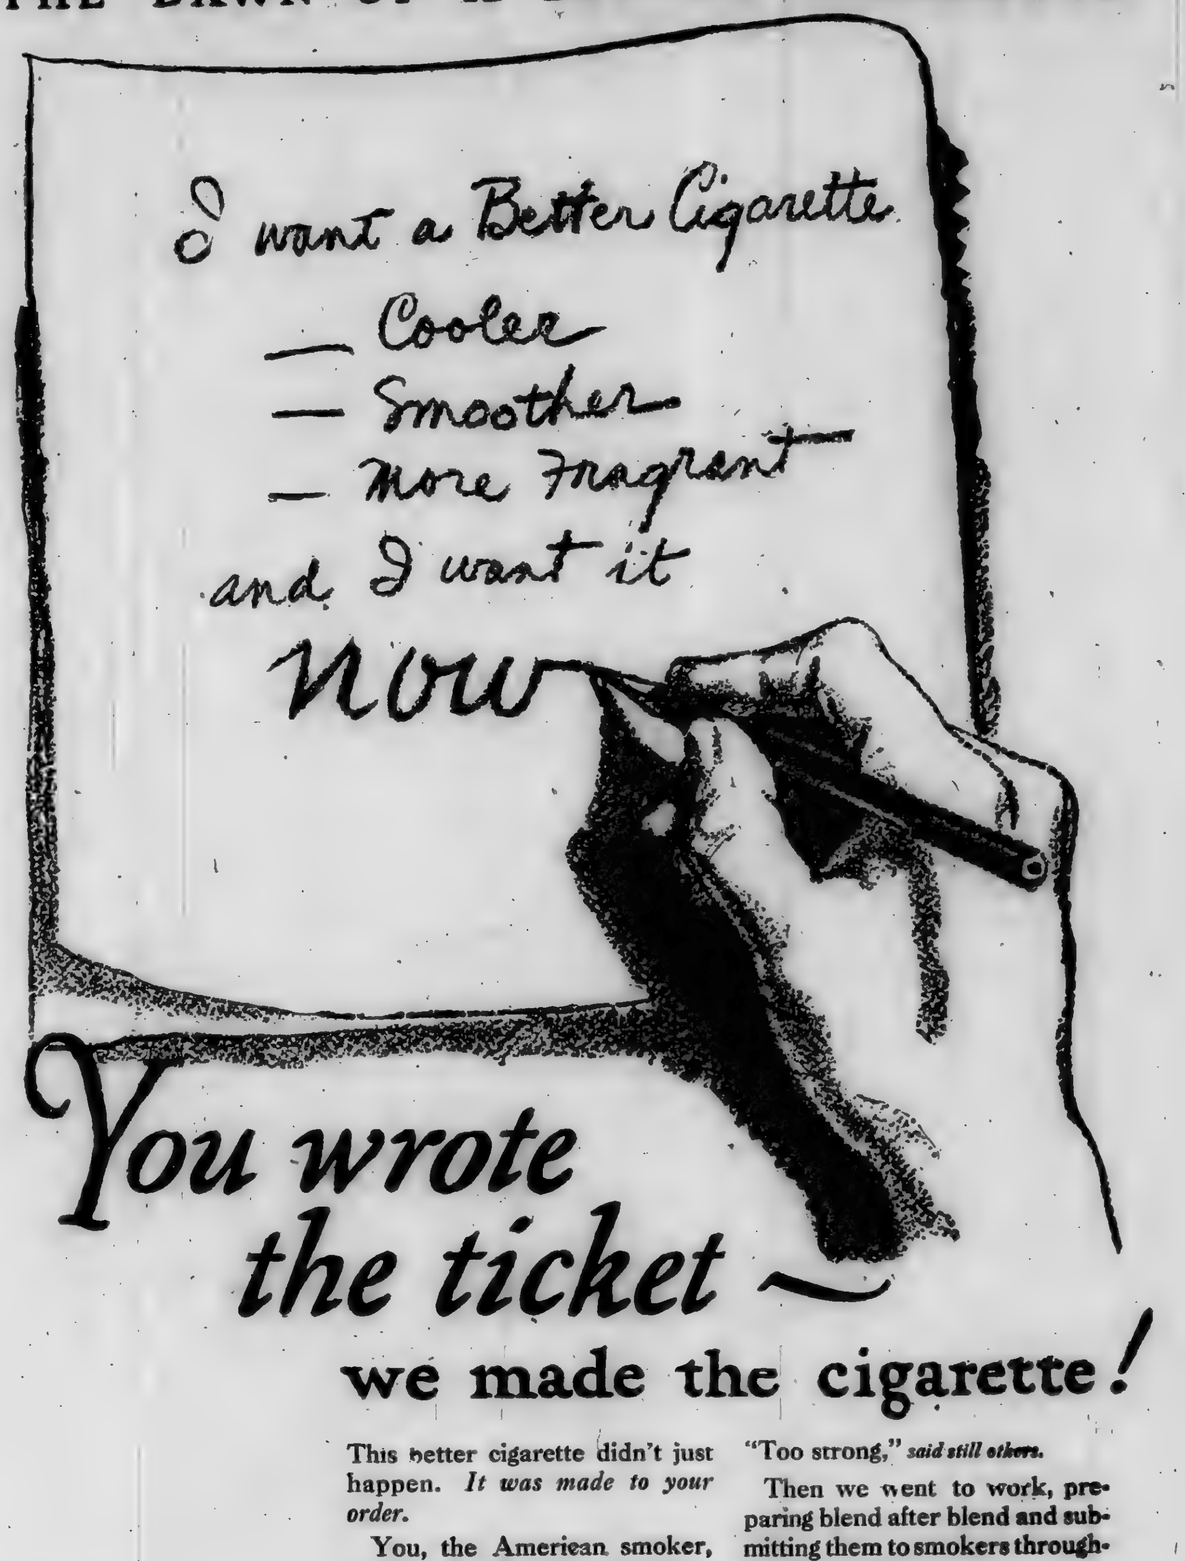
THE DAWN OF A BETTER CIGARETTE



You wrote the ticket — we made the cigarette!

This better cigarette didn't just happen. It was made to your order.

You, the American smoker, told us just what you wanted in this better cigarette.

You wrote your own ticket—and we made a cigarette to fit it.

For a year and a half we asked smokers everywhere to tell us what was wrong with their favorite blends.

"Too hot"—said some.

"Burns too fast," said others.

"Parches the throat"—said still others.

"Too strong," said still others.

Then we went to work, preparing blend after blend and submitting them to smokers throughout the nation.

Finally you said—"You've got it."

And so came this smoother, cooler, more winsome cigarette—this cigarette that delights the palate—caresses the tongue—and feels like velvet to the throat.

What better name could we give it than OLD GOLD to express its incomparable quality standards—its 100% solid smoking enjoyment without alloy!

DANIELSON

MARRIAGE OF LAST MARCH MADE KNOWN AT WEEK END

(Special to the Bulletin)

DANIELSON, July 11.—A feature in the Providence Evening Bulletin of the following, having to do with the secret marriage here March 27 last, by Rev. C. J. Armstrong of the Baptist church, of David Wright and Miss Dorothy E. Baker, the latter a Providence girl, who has been a high school teacher.

David Wright, son of Mr. and Mrs. John E. Wright of Lonsdale, and Miss Dorothy E. Baker, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Frank E. Baker of 155 Reynolds avenue, this city, and a history teacher in the Burrillville high school until the end of the last school year, were secretly married in Danielson, Conn., March 27, last. It became known at the week end through an announcement by the bride's parents.

While the bride's parents would say nothing more about the wedding than that they were ignorant of it until a week or so ago, and the bridegroom's parents declared they also were in the dark, Mr. Wright's mother said that after the news of the wedding reached her, last Saturday, she recalled having heard her son make obscure references to a honeymoon trip he would like to take to Bermuda.

The new Mrs. Wright, who is a graduate of the Women's College in Brown University, class of 1921, resigned as teacher in Burrillville, where she had gone from a position on Cape Cod, this spring.

The bridegroom is employed as a payroll clerk by J. & P. Coats (R. I.), Inc. He was an inspector at the Brown & Sharpe Manufacturing Company when this country entered the World War. He entered the army and was assigned to a training camp in Tennessee. After the war he was graduated from a local Business College and later worked as a clerk in the Veterans' Bureau here.

Although the young people have visited the respective homes of their parents frequently of late, the wedding news was successfully kept quiet according to the parents.

Mr. Wright's parents live at 32 Arnold street, Prospect Hill, Lonsdale. Mr. and Mrs. Wright, who were married by the Rev. Chester J. [illegible] will be at home at 918 Main street after Sept. 1.

FORMER NORWICH WOMAN DIES AS RESULT OF A FALL

(Special to the Bulletin)

DANIELSON, July 11.—Mrs. Sarah Lucretia Norton is dead at her home in what is known as the Deacon Weaver farm, near South Killingly, Monday two days ago. Mrs. Norton fell and broke her hip. This serious injury is regarded as having been responsible for the final shattering of her health and the cause of a shock that was the cause of her death.

Mrs. Norton was born in Stamford, December 27, 1869, a daughter of Charles J. and Elizabeth Miller Smith. The family had been resident in this town about seven years, coming here from Norwich.

Mrs. Norton leaves her husband, Chapman W. Norton, a son, Charles, and a daughter, Della. An uncle, James Miller, is a resident in New Haven.

Showers Saturday night and Sunday afternoon served to bring relief from the scorching heat of Saturday, when humanity just wilted, melted and sweated with a temperature of 95 degrees matched the hottest of the days of any recent summer. Numbers of people were so weakened by the onslaught of the heat that they were compelled to relinquish all activities and seek such relief as was available. The temperature was still high after nine o'clock when a thunder shower brought some relief. Among those who underwent a fine sweating were the Danielson people who went over to Putnam to see the circus and found the atmosphere under the big top little less than trying.

A novelty motor coach owned by Chief Two Moons attracted a considerable amount of attention here Saturday and was inspected by numbers of people who were extended the courtesy. The coach is a monster affair and splendidly appointed. At the rear is an observation platform much after the style of those on cars on limited trains. It has facilities for sleeping, for cooking, for restful lounging about, in fact, it provides a comfortable place of abode that can move about over the country at the will of its owner. It is estimated that the coach cost not less than $15,000, and may have been even more expensive.

Philip Stanley Codding, 10, died Sunday morning at the Day Kimball hospital in Putnam, where he was unlawfully taken Friday morning suffering from an acute attack of appendicitis. He was the son of Chester and Evelyn Short Codding and was born here. Recently he had been staying with his aunt, Mrs. Della Bond, on North Main street. He is survived by his parents and by a number of brothers and sisters.

Is it possible that people here and hereabouts are losing interest in tented attractions? The question is inspired by the fact that carnivals circuses that have been playing Windham county towns this season stress the fact they have lost money. A carnival here two weeks ago attracted great crowds, but the management said the spending was very limited. Saturday, a circus at Putnam failed to attract patronage in the degree that was expected. Some of the tented shows are passing up Connecticut entirely this season on account of poor business experienced in other parts of southern New England.

Chautauqua came to a close for this season in Danielson Sunday evening when a union service of the Methodist, Baptist and Congregational churches was held in the tent on the school grounds, School and High streets. Saturday was marked by the junior Chautauqua gathering in the morning and the junior pageant in the afternoon. Applesauce, a merrily successful comedy drama was the Saturday night offering.

Down at Tobbyhanna, Pa., officers and men of the Service battery are now hard at work with their annual tour of field duty. This is not a picnic period for the soldiers. There is hard work to be done and plenty of it. Their schedule keeps them on the go practically all of the time and rest is welcome when it comes at night. Tobbyhanna affords the ample areas that are required for the working out of field artillery programs and for use of the great guns included in the equipment. The majority of the members of the battery have been through the grind before, so have no illusions as to what will be required of them during the next fortnight.

Fully 225 employes of the S. N. E. Telephone company and sons of the officials of the organizations are expected to be at Moosup pond Tuesday, August 3, for the annual outing of the Eastern district. The affair will bring together representatives of all the divisions in the eastern end of the state. King George Jacques of East Killingly is to prepare the "shore" dinner and arrangements have been made for the use of the dance pavilion and the bathing privileges. A committee has the arrangements for the affair well advanced.

The meeting adjourned to July 13 when the plans will be worked out in detail. Club members are assured that the course will eventually be put in better condition than ever before.

The Walter L. Main circus drew fair sized crowds at both the afternoon and evening performances here Saturday. There is said to have been some trouble arising the canvasmen and local help was employed to a considerable number in erecting and dismantling the tents.

In the United States District Court at New Haven, Guy L. Baker, former assitant cashier of the defunct First National bank of Putnam was declared a bankrupt. Baker is now serving a term of two years in Atlantic federal penitentiary for confessed embezzlement of bank funds.

As summer traffic grows there are daily demonstrations of the congestion caused in Main street between Academy and Reynolds street, through the unlimited parking arrangements that allows two lines of cars bordering the street in this area. There is barely room, on account of parked cars, for moving machines to pass each other, one of the moving machines happens to pass each other, especially if to be a big truck or motor coach. Some time since it was suggested that parking be allowed only on one side of this section of Main street, but there has been no action on the matter.

NEW WORLD WAR MEMORIAL TO BE ORNATE BUT PRACTICAL

WESTERLY, R. I., July 11.—Rear Admiral Herbert O. Dunn, retired, of Haversham, was appointed general chairman of all committees in the erection of a world war memorial in Pawcatuck from Harley P. Chase post, No. 1265, Veterans of Foreign Wars of Pawcatuck as announced by Post Commander James A. Keane, at the Friday meeting. Among other committee members are Capt. Elvin B. Byers, chairman; Harry T. Powers, secretary; Louis J. Rossi, Merton B. Lewis, engineers; W. Russell Dower, auditor and Harry M. Bricker, Al J. Twomey, Charles W. Opie and Laurence E. Rook.

Wednesday evening next a joint meeting will be held of Chase Post committee and the committee representing the Pawcatuck Board of Trade, when it is expected formal action will be taken on the adoption of the type of memorial. Chase Post members are generally in favor of the design made up by Emile Pozzi, which includes landscape gardening of the plot at the junction of South and West Broad streets, already owned by Chase Post. The general effect of the memorial is, that of a semi-circular bench or ornamental settle with a central shaft of ornate design, possible to include a flag staff.

The past week end at the beaches in and about Westerly was a busy one for cottage colonies and hotels. Favorable weather caused many to seek the shore. Some hotels report better business than over the Fourth of July week end. Larkin, third. In the Alden Junior class boat race results were: Pollywog, William Everdell, 3rd, first; Scapha, Samuel Spencer, second; Billow, E. B. Knowlton, third; Mary H., H. S. Marston, fourth; Cricket, M. Thacher, fifth; Fluke, D. G. Tenney, Jr., sixth and Aloha, L. and B. Briggs, seventh. Afternoon tea was served at the yacht club house.

Recorded in the office of the Westerly town clerk is the following lease: July 9, Stephen Turrisi and wife Maria Turrisi to Great Atlantic and Pacific Tea Company of Boston; lease for one year from July 1, 1926 for store and back room at 147 Canal street.

The July meeting of the Westerly town council is to be held this (Monday) morning at 9:30 o'clock. Meetings of the council are held on the first Monday's of each month but as last Monday was observed as the Fourth of July holiday, it was voted at the June meeting of the councilmen to hold the July meeting on the second Monday of July.

The fire in the projection booth at the Lyric theatre, on the Pawcatuck river bridge, Friday afternoon, was so serious that the moving picture machine was put out of commission. Operator Donald B. Fancher received a burn on the top of his left ear, when exploding film shot by his head. He had just learned of the fire in the Rhode Island Hotel block and as his gaze rested on the small light opening of the picture machine he saw a particle of film rest there. A wisp of smoke curled up and becoming ignited set fire to the reel in the magazine above the picture machine. He grabbed an extinguisher and poured the contents on the blaze, this resulting in keeping down the flames. Other films caught fire and more extinguishers were used, the flames being confined to the asbestos booth. The door was blown open with the first explosion but was quickly shut by Mr. Fanches as he jumped out. So intense was the heat in the asbestos booth, even after the fire was out, that the outside was like a heated stove. Mrs. Jessie C. Davison of the management force, who rested her elbow against it got a burned arm. Members of the audience during the fire left the house in an orderly manner. It is expected that adjustments will be made so that show will be resumed during the present week.

N. Henry Lanphear, employed in the office of the C. B. Cottrell & Sons Company's printing press works and residing at 7 Moss street, Pawcatuck, is confined to his bed as the result of a fall down stairs at his home at an early hour Saturday morning. You can always count on P.A.

THERE'S something very solid and substantial about Prince Albert. Dependable . . . as a good friend should be. Uniformly mild and mellow. It always tastes the same—which means that it always tastes great! The reason for all this is the excellent quality of the tobacco.

Prince Albert quality has made this one brand the most popular among pipe-lovers; has earned for it the title of the National Joy Smoke. Get yourself a tidy red tin of P. A. today at the nearest P. A.-sunshine shop and know for yourself what a grand and glorious smoke it is.

The very first pull will tell you that Prince Albert was made for you. Cool, as a breeze off the water is cool. Sweet, with the uncloying sweetness of sun-ripened fruit. Fragrant, as flowers are fragrant. Fragrant in the tin and fragrant in the bowl of your pipe.

Men who thought they were all set on smokes have tried Prince Albert and become converts from the very first puff. There's a bare possibility that you have been fooling yourself. The pleasure you'll get from a jimmy-pipe and P. A. will top any you think you're getting now!

P. A. is sold everywhere in tidy red tins, pound and half-pound tin humidors, and pound crystal-glass humidors with sponge-moistener top. And always with every bit of bite and parch removed by the Prince Albert process.

PRINCE ALBERT

CARING FOR THE HORSES

In keeping with its annual custom the Connecticut Humane society is making an appeal in behalf of the horse calling attention to the need that exists for treating it with consideration during the hot weather and giving it care which it deserves at all times.

The hot weather appeal has been heeded somewhat this year by the teamsterman, but even though the horse doesn't occupy the place that it did in transportation, there are horses and no long as there are they should be treated with due regard for the fact that they are not machines and there can be no justification for abusing them.

The motor truck has reduced the number of horses. There are not as many of them employed in hauling heavy loads, not as many seen on the highways, not as many standing in the sun, not as many overloaded as a couple or decades ago, but just as long as there are horses the humane society will be required and its services in behalf of better care for the horse will be needed, for there will always be owners of horses who will be quite as thoughtless and inconsiderate of the animals they depend upon to help them get their daily bread as if the animals had no feelings and could be treated with about as much disregard for feeling as if they were depending upon an automobile.

There will be cases which the appeal of the humane society will fail to reach. They will be oblivious to the advice because it directly concerns them or because they do not care. There will be those who consider they are kind and considerate, whether they are or not, and there will be those who don't care, which sort might not to be allowed to have charge of horses.

All horse owners ought to recognize the fact that by the treatment that is accorded the beast of burden can be measured the benefits obtained from it. Kind treatment pays good dividends. The well treated horse is a much better asset than the one that is abused and overdriven, or the one that is neglected and overlooked.

FLEET CORPORATION CHANGES

When the shipping board accepted the resignation of President Palmer of the fleet corporation there was a great hue and cry made because of the valuable service he had rendered in that position. Now that the board has removed his successor, President Lasker, there is similar criticism voiced and the claim made that there is not a better informed man in shipping circles and that he has been a big means of saving much money during the time he has been in office.

As he goes he will be succeeded by Brigadier General Dalton who plans to work hand in hand with the shipping board, which board has made it obligatory that he should file a blank resignation with the board to be made effective by it whenever it considers the time ripe.

This plan of including a resignation with the acceptance of an office is unquestionably advantageous in various respects. It leaves the shipping board in full control at all time. It overcomes the situation whereby the president of the fleet corporation might persist in following his own policies regardless of the board and would cause much trouble before his removal could be effected.

But while this relationship between the shipping board and the head of the fleet corporation is being pointed out, it is to be realized that the shipping board isn't subjected to any such control. It can act as it pleases and it has done so in defiance of the administration because it is answerable to congress and congress is not in session at all times, so that when congress is enjoying a recess it can, if it is so disposed, run matters with a high hand. That was the reason for the agitation that the fleet be placed under one of the departments of the government.

Through the changes which have been made in the shipping board it is possible that it has seen a new light and that along with the cooperation which President Dalton has announced he intends to give to the shipping board, the shipping board plans to extend to the administration that cooperation which has seemed to be lacking at many times in the past.

CROSSING ATLANTIC IN AIR

With interest in long distance flying trips lagging a bit since the lull in the several flights to the north pole it promises to be whetted by the plan of Capt. Rene Fonch, the great French flier, to start out during the first week in August on his flight from New York to Paris.

This isn't a sudden decision. Plans for it have been underway for a long time and, Captain Fonch will have the company of Captain Homer Berry of the United States army and Lieutenant Smedley of the United States navy, the former serving as alternate pilot and the latter as navigator.

There will be no arctic conditions to contend with on this flight, but there is the problem of distance which must be prepared for. There will be a fuel supply weighing seven tons which it is expected will be sufficient to send that big Fokker plane the 3100 miles regardless of the conditions encountered. There will be no guard ships along the route but air tanks on the airship are expected to keep it afloat in case there is a forced landing on the water.

In leaving New York, the flight will be made up the North American coast to reduce the ocean distance as much as possible and there will be many ships on the transatlantic hop that will be in a position to note its passing and furnish information concerning its progress. Likewise help can be expected from such a source in case of needed. But the flight isn't going to be in the nature of a picnic party. It is figured that it will require 35 hours to complete the crossing and to thus establish a new record, but men of the highest qualification will have charge of the undertaking and there will be confidence in their skill to accomplish what is sought. The aim is to establish a new flying accomplishment. The uncertainties of the far north flights and those over the deserts and wastes of the east will not be faced but there will be plenty of hazards peculiar to the crossing of the ocean, although the advancement that has been made in airplanes and in flying firmly support the belief that the flight will be successfully accomplished.

THE NEW JERSEY BLAST

What lightning did a few months ago for the oil tanks in California it has now done for the ammunition stores in New Jersey, and along with it has gone death and destruction. In a brief time, according to the estimate an $80,000,000 loss has been sustained, many have been injured and driven from home but the death list thus far promises to be not large in comparison to the havoc and loss caused.

One of the officers in speaking of the situation within the reservations said it was characteristic of the western front in the World war. That tells the whole story to those who went to participate in that struggle and it furnishes to others an idea of the devastation and danger in the immediate vicinity.

With the bolt of lightning striking a vulnerable spot, explosions, the discharge of shells and fires furnished a continuous bombardment as the storehouses were reached and a peaceful locality became an inferno in a twinkling. Limited aid could be rendered and there's no telling how soon it will be reasonably safe to attempt to approach the part of the reservations where the trouble was started. Favorable wind conditions have probably served to check the loss and devastation.

Following the California oil tank fires steps were immediately taken to surround them with lightning protectors and to make possible the more effective fighting of fires. Just what has happened in New Jersey raises the question as to whether this is possible as a means of protection for the ammunition stores. Isolation is one of the means of protecting storehouses in case one should blow up, but lightning apparently found an arsenal where it required but a short time to cause great wreckage. There will be an investigation to follow this frightful affair, but lightning and earthquakes pay no attention to investigations.

THE PROPER SOLUTION

When Secretary Hoover of the department of commerce urges the broadcasting stations of the country to make the best of the situation which has been created by the ruling of the attorney general concerning the authority given his department by the law of 1912 relative to radio, it is an appeal that should be accepted in the spirit given.

It rests among the broadcasters to determine how much trouble they are going to cause each other. The situation has been well taken care of up to the present. Even though it is maintained that that authority should not have been exercised and cannot continue as it has been doing, it would be folly for the broadcasters to disregard what has been done for their own good and for the good of the radio industry and public.

By deciding to stick to the regulations and make the most of the situation until congress assembles again and takes needed action, the situation will be eased. By common consent the stations can continue to do as they have been. It is in the interest of the service they are rendering that this course should be followed, and unless we are greatly mistaken they will be quick to realize the desirability of conforming to the appeal of the secretary of commerce. The easiest way out of a bad situation is the best.

WOMAN IN LIFE AND IN THE KITCHEN

SUGGESTIONS FOR THE HOUSEWIFE

A wooden spoon is a splendid utensil for cake mixing as it is so much less tiring for the arm.

A few whole cloves added to the fat in which doughnuts are fried gives them a very pleasing flavor.

Linseed oil will remove any rust spots that accumulate on the stove during the summer weather. Any obstinate spot can be sandpapered.

When scraping new potatoes protect the finger tips by a light bandage of cloth or strip of paper, brown or white.

A paste made of cornmeal and vinegar is excellent for removing obstinate stains from the hands.

To facilitate the cleansing process when sieves are clogged and sticky rub with salt before putting them in the water.

Sprinkle a little sugar on a coal fire that is slow in coming up.

Paint may be removed from wash goods by soaking them in kerosene oil for half an hour, then squeezing out and washing as usual.

A fork is the best implement to use when making mayonnaise dressing. A beater is likely to cause the egg and oil to separate while a fork will thoroughly mix the ingredients.

A taffeta dress should not be hung in a warm closet. Heat dries up the moisture and is injurious to the sizing in the silk. Hang silk dresses in cool closets and they will last much longer.

A stick with a notch in the end will be found a great help in taking pictures from the walls. The picture wire slips right into the notch and makes climbing up and down unnecessary.

Rub leather covered furniture occasionally with castor oil or leather polish. The oil in the leather dries out. Wipe off after it has been rubbed in well.

To remove the cloudiness which comes over highly polished furniture wash it with a sponge and tepid water, and rub it dry with a wet chamois wrung out of cold water. A dry chamois streaks the surface and does not remove the blur.

KITCHEN WALLS

If your kitchen is not a painted one, it will pay you to have it papered in an oil-cloth paper, so it can be wiped free of cooking grease when necessary. The walls and ceiling of the kitchen cannot help but accumulate grease and must therefore be washed to remove it.

THAT PURPLE STAMP

That purple stamp you see on the meat at the butcher's should give you a feeling of satisfaction. The letters on it, U. S. I. P., mean United States Inspected and Passed. The stamp of government approval is on the meat and we know it is fit food for the family.

SOMETHING GOOD TO EAT

When making custard, using the stiffened whites on top, try sweetening the whites with a couple of spoons of strawberry preserve. It adds a delicious flavor and makes the egg whites a pretty pink.

HEALTH AND BEAUTY

After cleansing the skin with cold cream after being out in the sun pat on a mild bleaching lotion such as one ounce glycerin, 1 ounce rose water, 2 drops tincture of benzoin. Some may need a more drastic remedy like the following: Four ounces lactic acid 2 ounces elder flower water, 3 ounces glycerin, a tiny pinch of borax. This may be diluted with more elder flower water or rose water if it proves too strong.

Girls who are underweight should, first of all, have a thorough physical examination to ascertain whether or not their leanness is due to any form of ill-health. If they are found to be in normal health, the next step is to adjust their diet and habits of living so that they will be able to build up strong, graceful bodies.

Children should have an afternoon sleep period until well into their sixth year.

Establish the habit of early and regular bedtime.

Discourage baby's habit of depending on his bottle. Substitute for it as soon as advisable the habit of feeding himself with appropriate solid food.

THE MEDICINE BOTTLE

Always pour medicines from the side of the bottle opposite to that on which the directions are printed. Then there will be no difficulty in reading the label in case of renewal.

A TIP TO YOUNG SON

Dad's old fishing rod reel is just the thing to let out and wind the string when flying a kite. The string will not become knotted as it does when wound over a stick.

CLEANING AUTO UPHOLSTERY

No longer need the fastidious woman worry about soiling her gowns on automobile upholstery that isn't as clean as it appears to be. All steel automobile bodies are so constructed that the upholstery can be removed with ease and taken into the house where the vacuum cleaner can be applied.

BABY'S BOTTLE

Two little woolen stockings placed one inside the other, and finished with a seam at one end and a rubber at the other, will just fit the baby's bottle and help to keep the contents at an even temperature.

HOT DAY DRINK

As a thirst quencher on a warm day try a punch made according to these directions: To the juice of six oranges add a cupful each of the juice of a can of peaches and pineapple. Chill in icebox until ready to serve, add a quart of ice water.

WHEN PIE MAKING

When baking pie shells for pies or tarts, always prick the crust in several places with a fork before baking, so it will not puff too much in one place.

DICTATES OF FASHION

A popular shade for summer footwear is parchment, often combined with a darker shade.

The accent of color in a white costume is provided by a hat and by the envelope bag of red ecrase leather.

The small girl will welcome a rainy day if she ventures forth in a coat of plaided rubberized silk, a close little hat to match, and a wee umbrella of the same silk.

Advance models in furs show many wool coats in which patches and fancy pockets of fur are used very interestingly.

In Paris putty beige or tan are reported to be more popular than bois de rose and the pinkish grays.

The kasha coat in natural color, lined with blue polka dot foulard, and a dress of the same silk, is as practical and smart an outfit as one may own.

Second in popularity only to the white polka dot on the blue ground is the red polka dot on white. It is a most youthful and dashing combination, excellent for the country.

Lovely new slippers, which imitate the old Grecian Sandal, are of gold brilliantly colored kid. The toes are very small and there is a strap up the middle of the foot meeting a strap across the toe.

Boyish looking collars and white pique stocks are appearing on the market in large numbers.

The two-piece evening frock of lame or brocaded silk often has a V neckline and a suggestion of a tie—all very attractive because of its incongruity.

Some of the new cloth coats show interesting treatments that feminize and intrigue. One is the use of flowers, made of the material forming the collar or perched on the shoulder.

Instead of the gardenia or orchid which have become somewhat commonplace, many women wear on the lapel of the tailleur or the shoulder of an evening frock a carnation in natural or exotic colors.

WHITE SLIPPER VOGUE

In keeping with the vogue for white costumes for summer wear, particularly out-of-town, the plain slipper of white kidskin is much in evidence. The newest model is classic in its simplicity, the opera pump, one-strap slipper, and spike heel. Oxford being equal favorites. The one-strap slipper makes a chic accompaniment for the two-piece frock of crepe de chine or heavy tub silk.

NECKS ARE HIGH

The smart foulard and taffeta bathing suits, worn over wool jersey tights, are nearly all high-necked, at least in front. If they are cut away at any point it is in the back. Even the one-piece knitted suits fail to reveal any great amount of throat and shoulder epidermis.

BUTTONS ON AND OFF

Rows of buttons frequently form the sole adornment of the toilette de soie summer frocks. But whereas formerly these buttons were firmly fastened to the material, now they hang, as it were, by a thread, being attached only at the top and hanging down like sequins.

NEEDLEWORK NOTES

The table oilcloth that has become worn at the corners and unsightly may do service as an apron. Slightly cover one end for the waist line and cut the cloth either round or into a point at the bottom. It can be bound with tape and tape can be used for the strings. It will make a handy apron for the sink work or for wash days.

When trimming the linen frock with hand-drawn work, the threads that are drawn and cut at one end are used to hem that edge without detaching the last pulled thread at one end. The drawn thread will not last the entire length of the drawn work, but to use it as far as will go will fasten it firmly and neatly. Then continue with another of the pulled threads.

SAVE THE CRUMBS

Bread crumbs, especially the crumbs of whole-wheat bread, are an amazing improvement over cracker crumbs in scalloped dishes. They give a much richer flavor and have none of the pastiness which cracker crumbs cannot help having. It is well to keep a box of bread crumbs on hand at all times. Broken and dried pieces of bread should be stored in an open receptacle (to prevent molding) and when a suitable amount has accumulated and has dried out well, the bread must be run through the grinder and the resulting crumbs stored away. One should not keep them in a box or bag which is too tightly closed as this will give them a strong taste. This method of utilizing bread crumbs combines improvement in cooking with economy of food stuffs.

CLEAN AS YOU GO

If bottles, jars and jelly tumblers are washed thoroughly, dried and aired before putting them away for preserving time, you will find a big part of your work done before you start. Then they need only have a boiling hot water bath and they are ready.

DID YOU KNOW?

You can buy a pie-sealing tape that comes by the yard and is used to wrap around the edges of the unbaked pie, to be removed when the pie is done. It would prove invaluable to the cook who bakes a number of pies, particularly during the berry season.

A SAFE POLISH

A splendid polish will be obtained on clean linoleum if linseed oil is rubbed into it. It will not make the floor slippery as do so many polishes.

CONCERNING WOMEN

An English woman of 74 years still earns her living as a circus acrobat.

Mrs. Clara Morgan Savage is the new treasurer of Winnebago county, Illinois.

"It is a privilege of women in all classes of society to nag their husbands," said a London magistrate recently.

Miss Agnes L. Short of St. John is the first woman to be elected to the Council of the New Brunswick Pharmaceutical society.

In a recent contest a 19-year-old English girl, Elinor Mitchell, typed 142 words a minute. She is the champion typist of Europe.

Mrs. Edith B. DeCoster, who lives on a 360-acre farm at Buckfield, Me., is known as the "Butterfly Woman of Maine," being a breeder of moths and butterflies.

Though she is past 91 years of age and never voted in her life; Mrs. Katherine Monranelli of Orange, N. J., has qualified to vote in the coming election in her state.

WON'T KNOW THE DIFFERENCE

By soaking shredded cocoanut in sweet milk and pressing the milk out gently just before using, it will be as juicy and delicious as fresh cocoanut.

INDOOR PLANTS

Sponge palms and other indoor plants with a little milk and water. Milk gives the leaves a glossy appearance and often prevents the disfiguring brown patches that appear when water only is used.

RECIPES

Cherry Pie: Wash and pit sour cherries; there should be two and one-half cups. Mix one-third cup of flour, one cup of sugar and one-half teaspoon of salt; add to the prepared cherries and juice, stir until well mixed. Line a deep glass pie plate with rich pastry, build up the rim well and flute with the fingers, turn in the mixture and place strips of pastry above to form a lattice. Bake 35 to 40 minutes in an oven at 425 degrees Fahrenheit.

Cherry Salad: Pick over, remove the stems from dark red California cherries; wash, drain and pit. In the pit cavity of some put a sliver of brick cheese and in others a quarter of a pecan nut meat or a shred of blanched almond. Arrange the filled cherries in a pyramid on slices of drained, canned pineapple, cut in small pieces "pie fashion," keeping them in their original shape. Surround with lettuce hearts leaves or watercress; marinate each service with a half teaspoon of French dressing, made with lemon juice, and mask with cream mayonnaise or cooked salad dressing, for fruit.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

G. & E. Dept. Methods and Some Figures

Mr. Editor: There are always two sides to any question and Satisfied Patron might go further when he says "No matter who you are you can get what you want and you are not dinged and pestered if you do not pay your instalments." He might have added to this statement "if you never pay at all," but the commission is paid just the same.

I have been informed the gas and electrical department employs Earl Taggert to sell the various appliances on a commission, furnishes him a beautiful room to display his wares and a collector to collect the money at $40 a week, pays for the printing and advertisements and Mr. Taggert gets his commission on the sale whether or the collector gets the money or not and what the collector does not get is handed over to the unfortunate householder to make good, while the unfortunate merchant in that line has not got this backing and therefore cannot compete with them. While Rome was betrayed by the quacking of geese as erroneously stated, perhaps the quacking of a goose may have some right in rescuing the municipal gas and electrical department from the insiders that run it in favor of the outsiders that are responsible and pay the bills.

In the report of the superintendent he reports net for gas income, $65,634.72; electrical department, $191,259.70; a total of $256,894.38. Deductions are depreciations, $42,246.04; interest on bonds, $45,030; making $169,618.38 profit.

New construction charged to plant account, gas, $62,943.73; electric, $71,887.39; miscellaneous, $10,088.14; making $144,719.26 as against $169,618.38 profit. Will some one up in figures tell us where we are at and how much benefit we received from municipal ownership with a plant worth $1,339,404.30 with an offer of $3,000,000, a profit of $1,670,595.70 and at least $100,000 a year for taxes?

At a city meeting when the matter came up for action we were informed by the powers that be we had a regular gold mine to relieve the overburdened taxpayers (I am one of them), but at present writing it looks to me like a very large sized gold brick for the benefit of the few.

Stories That Recall Others

It Worked

A deceased judge told the following as his most satisfactory divorce case:

"A client of long standing came to my office, when a practicing attorney, seeking my assistance in a contemplated divorce case. 'Before taking the case,' I replied, 'I desire to know the facts—probably after hearing the same I wouldn't consider employment.'

"The client related the facts. After hearing his story I said, 'If you will follow my advice and it doesn't work, come back and I will take the case. If my advice works you can pay me whatever you desire to.'

"I told him to go home and wherever he met his wife to throw his arms about her with a kiss, ask forgiveness for his shortcomings and pardon her for any misgivings. The client went home and did as directed. A year passed the incident had almost dropped from my memory, when one day the client came into my office, finding me busily engaged with other clients. He quietly laid a $10 gold piece on the table and left the office. That was my most satisfactory and most richly compensated divorce case."

A Way Out.

"Well, how did you and Johnny get along?" Robert, nine years old, was asked after he came in from playing ball with a small friend of his.

"Not so well," Robert answered. "He threw rocks at me and hit me and I hit him back. Then he told a big boy and he came out and started fighting."

"I suppose you ran. Why didn't you fight him back?"

"Oh, well, I had to come home anyway," said Robert, settling the matter.

Nothing jolts a narrow-minded man more than being forced to admit that he is in the wrong.

The Mud Patch

This much you will agree is clear;
Strangers are most always queer.
—Danny Meadow Mouse.

Danny Meadow Mouse was enjoying his daily life at the seashore. He was cutting little paths this way and that way through the grass on the salt marsh just as he used to do through the grass of the Green Meadows. It was very different there from what it had been on the Green Meadows. Always there was black, damp earth under his feet. It never was dry. You see, twice a day the tide came creeping in and covered the marsh. Danny never got over the wonder of it. He would always scamper back to his snug nest in a hollow log on the high ground just beyond the edge of the marsh. When the tide went out he would once more go back on the marsh. There was always something new to find. Sometimes he would come to little Smiling Pools and looking into them he would see minnows darting about in all directions. Then, one day one of his little paths opened onto a broad path of mud.

"I'm Peep the Least Sandpiper," said he

Danny sat there at the end of his little path, looking out at that brown mud, in fact, it was almost black. There wasn't so much as a single spear of grass growing on it. It was soft in some places, and out in the middle a little water was standing.

"It is no place for me out there," thought Danny. "There isn't a thing in the world to hide under. Anyway, it isn't interesting. I don't believe there is anything out there that I want, or that any one else wants."

"Pe-et, Pe-et, Pe-et," said a voice right over his head. Danny looked up in time to see a bird that reminded him at once of Teeter the Sandpiper, whom he had seen on the edge of the Smiling Brook. In fact, that is who he thought it was until he discovered his mistake. When he got a good look he saw it was a stranger. It was, if anything, a little smaller than Teeter, and it was not spotted as was Teeter. Teeter's legs were yellow, as he remembered them, and the legs of this fellow were rather greenish.

"Pe-et, Pe-et, Pe-et," said the stranger, running about rapidly and continually picking up something from the mud.

"Who are you?" demanded Danny in his squeaky little voice when the stranger came near enough.

The little stranger stopped abruptly and stared very hard at Danny. "I'm Peep the Least Sandpiper," said he.

"Then you must be cousin to Teeter the Spotted Sandpiper," said Danny.

Peep nodded. "I am," said he. "There are a lot of us Sandpiper cousins. Cousin Teeter seems to like the fresh water best, but give me the muddiest on the marshes. Excuse me, I'm very hungry and I hear some of my family coming. I must get what I can while I can."

A moment later Danny saw a whole flock, each one of whom looked exactly like Peep. Their wings were long and narrow and they turned in the air so exactly together that it looked as if they had been trained to do it. They saw Peep running about and immediately alighted and all began to run about. It was fun to watch them. They would make a little short run this way or a little short run that way, and down would go the slender bill and Danny knew something good to eat had been found. They ran in the edge of the water and all over that mudpath. They seemed to be having a lovely time, and such busy little people Danny never had seen. He was tempted to go out and try to get better acquainted. But just as he started to do this away they all went, crying "Pe-et, Pe-et, Pe-et," leaving Danny to start after them.

POETRY

Conquering the Handicap

Accept affliction as a challenge.
If handicapped, just do your best;
Use all your gifts religiously,
Have faith, keep sweet, try with a zest

Let friendships be devoutly cherished.
Wealth cannot buy a faithful friend;
It means far more than long acquaintance,
There's oneness in it without end.

Cultivate the love of childhood.
Make their presence your delight.
Confidence is quite contagious
And puts all fussiness to flight.

Seek the best in all about you.
Reeds may bend and fires burn low;
Lift the reed perchance to bless you!
Fan the embers, they may glow!

Cultivate the gift of humor,
Laugh when other scold and frown;
You may save the broken-hearted
From the moods that cast them down!

Never whine! Cheer up, be grateful!
Why sit down to mope and cry?
Pain may pinch you, but why whimper?
You can conquer if you try!

When affliction does its utmost,
Tries, and tests, and purifies;
All the finer virtues flourish,
And are wings by which to rise!

—Rev. William Wood.

Morn

In what a strange bewilderment do we
Awake each morn from out the brief night's sleep.
Our struggling consciousness doth grope and creep
Its slow way back, as if it could not free
Itself from bonds unseen. Then memory,
Like sudden light, outflashes from its deep
The cry of grief which it had last to keep
For us; and by the joy or grief we see
The new day dawneth like the yesterday;
We are unchanged; our life the same we knew
Before I wonder if this is the way
We wake from death's short sleep, to struggle through
A brief bewilderment, and in dismay
Behold our life unto our old life true.

The three best markets for American toys in 1925, with the exception of the United Kingdom, which is the largest market, were Canada, Cuba and Mexico. In 1925, total exports to Canada were valued at $709,699; exports to Cuba at $236,868; an increase over 1924 in the case of Mexico. It was a little more than 20 per cent as compared with 1924 in the case of Canada and Cuba.

A tree trunk found 45 feet below the tide level of the Hudson in the foundation excavations for a skyscraper, is a relic of the glacial era, according to experts at the American Museum of Natural History, who identified it as Juniperis communis, a species of red cedar that flourished in Europe about a million years ago but never previously supposed to have lived in America until the present geological age. Its present-day relatives are to be found as near as Long Island and New Jersey.

For 46 years people have walked around an old pillar projecting out of a sidewalk in Augusta, Ga., because no one had the nerve to move it. In 1878 an itinerant preacher pronounced a curse on the old market house. He said it would be destroyed and anyone who disturbed the pillars would be struck by lightning. Next day a tornado razed the building and left one pillar. When workmen clearing away the debris started on the lone pillar there was a terrific explosion and no one would go near the spot again, even after it was learned that a joker had touched off a giant firecracker. The sidewalk was built around the "pillar with a curse" and there it is today.

Dr. Reilly,

Dear Doctor

I have been troubled with rheumatism for 25 years; 25 years ago I was laid up in bed with it, so I could not walk.

I took several kinds of medicine, but got very little relief from them.

About 2 years ago, I took some of Dr. Reilly's Herb Tonic, and it helped me right away. It is the best I have ever taken. I can walk now just as well as I ever did and I am feeling fine.

Dr. Reilly's Herb Tonic is also good for your general health. It is very pleasant to take, and I recommend it very highly.

NAVY MAKES EXHIBIT AT THE SESQUI-CENTENNIAL

For the benefit of those who intend to visit the sesqui-centennial exposition in Philadelphia this summer the navy recruiting officer of this city, Chief Quartermaster McCarthy, announces that the navy department has installed an extensive and interesting exhibit in building 29 at the Philadelphia navy yard.

This building is located off Broad street, near the ships in the basin assigned for exhibition purposes and is readily accessible from the center of the city. The building is easily identified having a large sign, "Navy Historical Exhibition" over the main entrance.

The exhibition gives the progress of the navy from the old to the modern the steps in this progress being well displayed. It is an education to any person either military or civilian, as it gives a vivid and lasting impression of progress in every particular: ship building, uniforms, food rations, etc., but above all it makes one proud of the navy, displaying the wonderful achievements in time of war, peace, adventure, exploration and rescue.

On the ground floor can nbe seen the different styles of uniforms of officers and men; original correspondence of John Paul Jones, Civil war and World war; Captain Sigsbee's report of the destruction of the Maine; Admiral Sampson's report of the botting of Santiago harbor. Then there is the original of Admiral Dewey's report of the battle of Manila. One can not help but be thrilled in reading it, the total destruction of the enemy's fleet, not a casualty of ours. Admiral Sampson's original telegram reporting the battle with Cevera's fleet reading: "The fleet under my command offers the nation as a Fourth of July present the destruction of the whole Cevera's fleet, not one escaped." The sextant made by the crew of the Saginaw on their trip of 1,500 miles for assistance. There is a wonderful display of flags, showing evolution of the colors from the beginning to its present adopted form; the naval academy exhibition with a midshipman's room, fully equipped, their uniforms, pictures depicting their life at play and at work. The aviation section has interesting displays too numerous to mention. There are many oil paintings of naval heroes and figure-heads from the old ships. On the second floor there are many more interesting exhibits.

The one that attracts is a modern operating room of a battle ship. The display is as it would be on a ship—every detail shown, even the lanlard on the battle ports. For comparison there is a wonderful display of the operating room of the Constellation next to the modern one. This display is also shown in detail, the modern deck beams, low decks, oil lanterns, etc., but the comparison is made more in the antiquated instruments, the oakum dressings, the wooden operating table, the flagons of laudanum and grog to skill pain, etc. There is also a fully equipped and up to date dental office. All the displays are attractively arranged and well placarded so that each exhibit is identified. Those responsible have provided an exhibition that is a great credit to those whose efforts made it possible.

DISABLED FIRE APPARATUS IS WAITING FOR WHEELS

Except for its wheels, which will probably not be ready for a day or two, the combination chemical and pumper of Engine Co. No. 1, from the central fire station, is ready for service again. A mechanic was at work on it all day Sunday putting in the parts which were needed in the overhauling of the machine and as soon as the wheels are secured from the Scott & Clark shop they will be put on and the pumper will be in commission again.

It has been laid up since last Monday afternoon when a rear axle broke when the apparatus was responding to a bell alarm.

PASTOR GIVES INTERPRETATION OF DECLARATION OF INDEPENDENCE

"The Declaration of Independence 150 Years After" was the subject of the address delivered Sunday evening at the Central Baptist church by Rev. J. Harlow Graham, pastor of Trinity Methodist Episcopal church. The address was one first delivered at Rev. Mr. Graham's church on Sunday, July 4th, the sesqui-centennial of the drawing up of that document, and because of its quality and the straight out facts given, repeated last evening at the Central church, by invitation of the pastor, Rev. Dr. David A. Pitt.

The address in part was as follows:

Today is the 150th birthday of our nation; that is, it was 150 years ago that the first name that of John Hancock, was affixed to that immortal document called the Declaration of Independence. That document written by a committee of which Thomas Jefferson was chairman was addressed to mankind out of respect for its opinion, and in order to interpret the move for separation from the dominating and despotic ownership of Great Britain.

Today we celebrate with more than usual thoughtfulness and a wider universality that historic event and we do well as Americans who have been tried in the fires of these latter days to study calmly so as to be able to interpret correctly that movement known as American political democracy and our own part therein.

The tides of democracy have been running for centuries. They are is fact as old as humanity. Its incipient, if unchannelled, democracy which stirs in the child as he feels the restraint which parental solicitude puts upon his budding individuality and his beginnings of self-expression. It is thoroughly Christian insofar as it acts upon the sense of the sacredness and the authority of human personality. Of course it has its dangers as has all growth. There is little danger in the acceptance of subjection save the danger of death. When governments shift over from the control by kings or generals to self-control, there is always the possibility of a French revolution or a Russian chaos. But the shift is worth trial for it is democracy or death; growth or stagnation.

The Christian religion is bound up with democracy in the bundle of life together. If democracy fails our Christianity must fail, too. Christianity believes in the individual; in the poores:, weakest, blindest individual. Christianity asserts that man, that any man can be re-born if necessary and rise on the ruins of his failure to self-control and self-expression. And democracy in government is the attempt to make every man his own master; to give him power and make him responsible therefor. Christianity inspires self-respect and develops self-control and self-expression, democracy is self-respect in action, self-expression in process and self-control at work.

The preamble to the Declaration of Independence begins with a statement about man's essential nature; that is, about every man's nature. It asserts that all men are created equal. That can be interpreted so as to be at once silly and untrue, but the equality here meant is clear enough. Men are created equal, as all children in the family are born an equality before their parents, having equal rights for self-development and self-improvement, and equal claims upon the attention and affection of the home. They are not equal in that they are exactly alike; they are different. The only equality the literalist can imagine is the equality of sameness. All men are created different; different but equal. The "eye" man can not say to the "hand" man I have no need of you; the banker and the streetsweeper are equal, equally necessary, equal in the right to claim the affection and consideration of the community. All labor—and all manhood—ranks the same with God. "Who files the kite?"—that old parable of the absolute indispensability of every part, how interesting and how true!

The progress of democracy has seen two unfoldings. They emerge together—new powers granted to men and new powers of moral control over such powers developed. Step by step men are accepting more resonsibilities, but along with this as a necessary counterpart has gone a-puritanizing development. Men accept the throttle of the steam engine and the steering wheel of the motor car and give up the alcoholic intoxicant. And this working out of democracy, of acceptance of more powers can not go far or long without their acceptance of self-control. There is no control so narrowing, exacting, restricting as the control which must accompany complete independence which the equality doctrine will eventually issue in.

Then the declaration deals with rights of men, to life, to liberty, to pursuit of happiness. All institutions must bend to serve men. Governments exist not to be served but to secure these rights to mankind. Whenever these rights are destroyed by the governments of men then men have recourse to another right, the right to alter, or even to abolish such government.

Here again we have a strictly Christian statement. The Christian movement throughout its history has been a story of liberations from thralldoms. The characteristic statements of Jesus approve such. "I came that ye might have more abundant life." "My yoke is easy and my burden is light." "The Sabbath was made for man and not man for the Sabbath."

A word about the author of the document should be inserted here. Thomas Jefferson was an apostle of democracy to his age. He chose for his epitaph mention of three achievements, authorship of the Declaration of Independence, authorship of the State of Virginia for Religious Freedom and Fatherhood of the University of Virginia. These are related, not detached interests. The principles of democracy declared and expounded; a religion of freedom rather than of authority, whereby every man may approach God in the way most successful for him; and institutions of educations which prepare men for democracy; these are basic American interests.

These suggestions I would pass on from my re-study of this document and our age of origins.

First: A pride in our origins. There are priceless elements in the interests of Thomas Jefferson. There are ageless principles in the Declaration of Independence. The stars in their courses fought with the signers of the declaration. It was no sporadic and adventitious movement. It came in the fullness of time. It is destined to cover the earth.

We as Protestants, can likewise have a pride in any part in this entire movement. Our nation is the fruit of the church. It was a Protestant church belfry that was a signal tower for Paul Revere. It was a church bell that in Philadelphia "proclaimed liberty throughout the land" and that has become the Liberty Bell. The pulpits of those days were the chief rostrums from which the people were instructed and led to unity of sentiment for liberty. Patrick Henry made the speech that every schoolboy knows from a Protestant church pew. Rev. Jonathan Mayhew, "the morning gun of the Revolution" whose messages to Massachusetts colony lawmakers are the clearest expositions remaining of the muutal dependence of independence and Christianity was a non-conformist clergyman.

Secondly: A call to loyalty to a living democracy. A patriotism without a history is probably without hope of a future. Our democracy has "pride of ancestry and hope of posterity." But while monuments are important, signboards are equally so. Americanism is ever in the making. All living organisms are growing and changing. Religions perish when they expect no Messiahs or dream of no new kingdoms to establish. China is decadent not because she went backward but because she stood still and solidified Rip Van Winkle did not go back he only went to sleep. Lowell made one his best contributions to our institutions when he phrased this fact so beautifully in the words, "time makes ancient good uncouth, we must upward be and onward who would keep abreast of truth.

This is a third suggestion. It has reference to the church, to organized religion in a democracy. For the church freed from all dependence for its economic subsistance or its leadership from the minions of state becomes really free and in a democracy can become what the prophets were in the heyday of Israel—a conscience, an agitator for human rights as well as a preserver of spiritual pathways and a conserver of spiritual experiences.

Here our day has reason for hope. In the recent British strike the churchmen's appeal has the prophetic tone. The steel strike report in America is the product and the justification of this kind of untrammelled Christianity. A poet of Britain bewailed the impotence of the church in his day in these burning words—"Outwardly splendid as of old, inwardly sparkles, void and cold; her force and fire all spent and gone, like a dead moon, she still shines on."

NORWICH DOGS WIN AT NEW LONDON SHOW

In the New London dog show, Brunolf of Pine Tree, the beautiful German shepherd from the Silver Fox Farms at Presque Isle, Maine, and now owned by the Chase Cliff Kennels of this city won first prize in the novice, first prize in the American breed, and won the special for being the best dog in New London county. Brunolf won every class he was entered in and was the only German shepherd out of five from Norwich, including Mrs. Browns two dogs, Tock of Palisade, and Lady Sigmundskron, to bring back any blues.

Glenna of Chase Cliff, a daughter of Champion Asko vom Pasewalk, won second prize in the novice bitches and was followed up by another Norwich dog Mrs. Brown's Lady Sigmundskron which placed third. Brown's well known Tock 2nd of Palisade placed third in the novice dogs. C. Hull Blitz of Chase Cliff, the only shepherd puppy from Norwich, won fourth prize in the puppy class.

In the cocker spaniel breed, Charles E. Pierce, Norwich's well known dog fancier, exhibited four fine dogs. First prize in puppy bitches (any color) was won by Pierce's Patrica. In the puppy dogs (any color) Pierce's Chummy won first prize and later went to reserve winners. In the novice dogs (parti-color) Pierce's Toby won second prize, while in the novice bitches (other than black) Arbita, one of Mr. Pierce's beauties, won third prize.

BUFFET ON FIRE IN FAIRMOUNT ST. HOUSE

A buffet on fire in the apartment occupied at 61 Fairmount street by A. J. Perlow and family made a call for the department at 11:21, Saturday night and the blaze was extinguished after the firemen had effected an entrance into the place by breaking a glass in the front door as there was no one at home in the apartment.

The buffet was badly damaged and the woodwork in the room was scorched and blistered by the heat so that the paint peeled off.

Discovery of the fire was made when members of the Herts family at 5 Colt street, who were seated on the verandah of their house, heard a crash in the Fairmount street house that attracted their attention and they called to Mrs. Henry R. Taft at 18 Colt street. She telephoned to her husband, the deputy fire chief, who responded with Squad A and Engine Co. No. 5.

After the blaze was extinguished, investigation by the firemen led to the conclusion that the buffet had probably been set on fire by a candle that Mr. Perlow left burning when he was at the house about 8:30 before going to Ocean Beach. Two old thimbleholes in the room provided a way by which the fire and smoke went up the chimney so that it was not particularly noticeable in the other part of the house.

MORE FROM THIS COUNTY MAY GO TO C. M. T. CAMP

With the quota for Connecticut for the July Citizen's Military Training camp at Fort Terry filled, there still remains openings for 238 at the August camp with 20 odd vacancies from New London county.

According to Colonel Gerhardt, chief of staff of the 76th division, information has been received from corps area headquarters that the quota for the citizens' military training camps in the First Corps area has been increased to 500. He understands that almost all of this increase will be by an addition to the camp at Camp Devens, Mass., this allowing applicants in Connecticut to choose between Camp Devens and Fort Terry.

The camps start on Aug. 2 so that applicants should be submitted promptly. The minimum age is 17, the basic course being from 17 to 24 years, but any young man who desires to go and whose 17th birthday comes before Dec. 31 may apply for the camp with a likelihood of being accepted.

BULLETIN'S PENNIMAN STORY READ BY JUDGE McCLOUD

It chanced that the issue of The Norwich Courier (the semi-weekly edition of The Bulletin) date of April 16, 1926, when it reached a subscriber, Judge Richard McCloud, of Durango, Col., awakened many memories of Norwich, his native town. That particular issue contained a story of the achievements of another Norwich Free Academy alumnus, Dr. James Hosmer Penniman, of Philadelphia, donor of libraries of education to three colleges, Yale, Brown and University of Pennsylvania. That story moved Judge McCloud to write to Dr. Penniman, an interesting correspondence resulting.

For seventeen years Judge McCloud has been connected with the Durango public library as a member of the board of directors, also as secretary, without compensation and as a labor of love.

This is one of the libraries built by Andrew Carnegie, who paid for the library building in all $15,000—in 1906 $12,500 and in 1907, when the cornerstone was laid, $2,500. The building lots for the site were donated by Gen. W. J. Palmer, of Colorado Springs, Col. The city government pays for the salaries, light, heating, magazines, newspapers, and books by an annual appropriation. This year it is $3,500. From this amount the directors pay the librarian, two assistants and the janitor.

Richard McCloud was born in Norwich, May 17th, 1846, son of the late Mr. and Mrs. John McCloud, of Summit street.

He is remembered as the "newsboy of the Civil war" who sold a copy of The Norwich Bulletin to Abraham Lincoln, in March, 1860, the morning after Lincoln had delivered an address in the town hall. The paper had a report of the meeting by Henry P. Goddard, then city editor of The Bulletin.

Mr. McCloud was graduated from High street school, entering Norwich Free Academy in 1860, Prof. Elbridge Smith being then principal. He was graduated with the class of '65. In the spring of '69 he went to New York to be foreign export clerk of the custom house on Wall street. That fall he entered Columbia College Law school, winning his degree of LL. B. in 1872.

November 10, 1870, Mr. McCloud married Miss Ellen McQuirk, eldest daughter of the late Michael McQuick, of the building firm of McQuirk & Bacon. The marriage was solemnized in the old St. Mary's church by Rev. Daniel Mullin. They have one daughter, Miss Ellen L. McCloud, born in Hartford. Miss McCloud is secretary of the La Plata county, Colorado, chapter of the American Red Cross and has a desk in her father's law office in Durango.

A sister, Margaret, married the late Dr. Patrick Cassidy in 1868; she died April 7, 1914, and Dr. Cassidy died Feb. 23, 1924. Mr. McCloud's nephews are Attorney John H. Cassidy, of Waterbury, Commander Richard E. Cassidy, U. S. N., now at Panama, Dr. Louis T. Cassidy and Attorney Charles W. Cassidy of Norwich. His nieces are Mrs. J. Edward Driscoll, of Norwich and Mrs. Mary C. Cahill, now residing in San Francisco.

Mr. McCloud was a lawyer in Hartford from 1872 to 1883, serving as councilman and alderman there during that time. In 1883 he went to Silverton, Colorado, and practiced law. July 3, 1886, he went to Durango, Col., as registrar of the United States land office, holding that appointment until July 1890, and for a second term from December, 1894, to April 1899.

He was judge of the county court of La Plata county from January, 1912, to January 1921. Of late years he has specialized in wills and estates.

He is a member of the following societies of Columbia University: Older Graduates, Dwight Alumni (the graduates under Dean Dwight, of the law school) Law School Alumni, also Colorado Alumni of Columbia University.

Judge McCloud's daughter, Miss Nellie Louise McCloud, has acted for the county superintendent of schools in examination of graduates, at Fort Lewis high school, of the state agricultural school for teachers' certificates. She is a graduate of the Durango High school. She was clerk of the United States land office at Durango during a part of her father's term as registrar of that office, 1894-99, later with her father's successor, also was clerk of La Plata county court when her father was judge, from January, 1912, to January, 1921.

Judge McCloud has had some interesting experiences, one of the most unusual being his acquaintance with Horace Greeley.

LIFE'S SUNNY AFTERNOON

With her children grown up, the middle-aged woman finds time to do the things she never had time to do before—read new books, see the new plays, enjoy her grandchildren, take an active part in church and civic affairs. Far from being pushed aside by the younger set, she finds a full, rich life of her own. That is, if her health is good.

Thousands of women of middle age say they owe their vigor and health to Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. Those who have learned through their own experience the merit of this old reliable root and herb medicine are enthusiastic in recommending it to their friends and neighbors.

N. E. WOOLEN MILLS TOOK HALF OF MAY OUTPUT

New England woolen manufacturers used 50 per cent. of entire amount of wool entering into manufacture during May, but this was over 3,000,000 pounds less than was used in manufacture during April, figures the department of commerce and Washington reveal.

During May, New England manufacturers used 15,200,176 pounds of wool, or one half of the total 30,415,356 pounds entering into manufacture during the month over the entire country. In April New England consumed 18,216,646 pounds, or 53.7 per cent. of the total 33,915,695 pounds consumed.

The figures for the country as a whole are based on reports from 522 manufacturers operating 38.6 millis. This is exclusive of twenty-two manufacturers operating seventy-four mills who failed to report for the month.

A total of 39 per cent of the wool entering into manufacture in May was domestic, and 61 per cent. foreign.

Died Before Legacy Came

Mother M. Alphonsa Lathrop, 75 order of St. Dominick, youngest child of Nathaniel Hawthorne, and former New London resident, died suddenly Friday of heart disease, missing by a few hours, word of a legacy of $25,000 to her Rosary Hill home for patients with incurable cancer. When the will of Miss Mary L. Merrill of New Rochelle, who died on June 20 was opened Friday, it was found to contain such a bequest to the institution. A member of the family immediately called Rosary Hill home and asked for Mother Alphonsa.

"She died this morning," he was informed.

BOBBY JONES IS GIVEN ROYAL WELCOME BY HIS FELLOW TOWNSMEN

ATLANTA, Ga., July 11—(AP)—Bobby Jones came home today. Blushing and happy despite the marks the exertion and strain of the past month had left upon his sturdy frame, the monarch of golfdom fresh from his victory in the American and British open championship tournaments stepped off the train among his fellow townsmen at noon.

They hoisted him upon loyal shoulders and bore him up the steps through the terminal station and between lines of national guardsmen to a waiting automobile at the head of a parade while bands played, whistles blew and thousands cheered.

From the Terminal station plaza the parade moved through streets lined with other thousands of his friends to the Atlanta Athletic club. Bobby's home club, where, instead of the key to the city, he was officially assured of the love of Atlanta and of Atlanta's admiration of his achievements.

Mayor Walter A. Sims spoke. Major John Cohen, publisher of the Atlanta Journal, lauded his achievements as a golfer, praising him especially for the manner in which he earned his laurels, and officials of the Atlanta Athletic club told Bobby and the crowd what they thought of him personally and of his ability as a golfer.

Through it all Bobby slouched down in his chair and blushed. Plainly not at ease and evidently longing to be at home enjoying a well earned rest with his wife and baby. He would have avoided addressing his fellow clubmen but they would have it.

When introduced by the master of ceremonies he fumbled for a moment with a flag draping off the balcony from which he spoke before telling them how wonderful it was to be home again and of his appreciation of the reception accorded him. He bowed and it was over without his having mentioned any of the trophies he won.

Probably the happiest person of the entire crowd was little Clara Malone Jones, year and a half old daughter of Bobby. Elbowing his way through the crowd that thronged about him as he stepped from the train, Jones espied his child in the arms of the nurse on the fringe of the crowd. After an embrace, he did a miniature Charleston for her daddy.

JONES WINS NATIONAL OPEN GOLF CROWN

COLUMBUS, O., July 11—(AP)—Bobby Jones of Atlanta is possessor of every supreme golf title in the world, an honor never before mantled on any golfer, by winning the national open championship at Scioto club with a score of 293. He annexed his latest title before a record crowd of 5500, most of whom followed the sturdy southerner through his final 36 holes yesterday. Good as Jone's score was for the gruelling Scioto links, he was only one stroke ahead of Joe Turnesa of New York, who finished before Jones with 294. To overcome this score, Jones shot one under par on the last nine, finished admidst a din of applause with a birdie four on the 480-yard home hole.

After Jones had topped Turnesa while all the other likely contenders were still afield, the final stages of the tourney resolved itself into a thrilling contest to determine whether any one of those stars could overhaul the man who, as it proved, had the title already tucked away with the other trophies he has garnered since he first sprang into the limelight of golfdom by qualifying in the national amateur at Philadelphia in 1916 when only 14 years old.

Among those who tried to beat Bobby on the last round today was an amateur Chick Evans, who in that year 1916, won the unique distinction of capturing the national open and amateur titles in the same year, and set a record score of 286 for the open. But Chick failed by several strokes, for he took a 79 for the last round and totaled 302.

Another who was a possible winner during this race was Bill Mehlhorn of Chicago, who led the field the first day with a record 68 to Jones 70 and again led the second day with 143, while Bobby had 150 by virtue of a 70 on the second round. But Mehlhorn fell off today, taking 76 in the morning and 79 in the afternoon for a total of 297 which tied him for third place. Mehlhorn lost on the last nine as he was even with Jones up to the home stretch.

RIVERVIEW LOSES TO FALCONS UT SHUTS OUT MERIDEN CLUB

The Riverview team broke even in the week-end games losing a hectic battle to the Falcons of New Britain on Saturday 9 to 7, and shutting out the Endee team of Meriden 8 to 0, on Sunday at Meriden.

Saturday's game was a give and take affair marred by loose fielding on the part of the Riverview team they being credited with 5 misplays at critical points in the game. The local team outhit the visitors 13 to 5 but were unable to bring in the needed runs with men on bases. Fast fielding by the Falcon infield also cut down a number of chances to score, especially in the ninth inning when a double play spoiled Riverview's chances of tying the score. Dugas started for Riverview but was wild and was relieved in the seventh inning by West. Kania started for the Falcons and he went out of the game in the 8th inning and Big Ed Walsh finished the encounter. The one bright feature in the Riverview team was Jigger Farrell who played brilliantly at the first bag and also accounted for a large per cent. of the Riverview runs with his bat.

The Sunday game proved to be a better ball game and the Riverview team emerged a victor on the long end of an 8 to 0 score. Toney West was in fine form and allowed but three scattered hits, only twenty-eight men facing him in the nine innings. The team played well in back of him with Lefty Farrell and Lefty Dugas leading the hitting attack. The scores:

TAFTVILLE BREAKS EVEN IN TWO OF THE TOUGHEST GAMES OF SEASON

Hooking up in two pitching battles over the week-end the Taftville A. A. broke even losing a tight game to Kensington, Saturday afternoon, 2 to 1, and winning from the Socony team of New London 3 to 2 on Sunday at New London. Both games were pitching battles, Flynn and Barry battling it out in the Saturday game with Barry having the better of the argument. Lloyd Jarvis had the better of the battle in New London with Chappell, hurler for the Socony team.

Saturday's game was a heart-breaker to lose and Taftville apparently had the game sewed up until the ninth when Flynn weakened and an infield error gave the visitors two runs, nosing out Taftville two to one. Flynn allowed but four hits while Barry was only a little more generous granting but five. Taftville's only run came in the 5th inninth when two hits by Cardle and Flynn gave but one and passed three. This is the second time that Kensington has nosed out Taftville by a 2 to 1 score, this season.

The ninth inning seems to be a their only score. Flynn outpitched Barry getting seven strikeouts and passing but one while Barry fanned 5nd inning for the Taftville team for it was in this frame that the Socony team scored its two runs in the game at New London. Lloyd Jarvis pitching for Taftville held the Oilmen in complete subjection until the ninth inning whe nhits behind an error gave them their two tallies. Taftville scored their runs in the fourth and fifth innings but from then on Chappell was invincible. Although Taftville gathered ten hits off Chappell the New London boy kept them well scattered with exception of the fifth inning. Jarvis allowed but five hits and fanned seven.

Taftville has one of the most promising of the younger teams in the county and gives promise of being a real contender for State honors at the end of the season.

MILWAUKEE MAN TRAPPED BY MEANS OF LOCAL MAIL

(Special to the Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, July 11—David Andur, alias E. D. Leonard, was arrested at the United States Coast Guard Academy Saturday morning by Sergeant Nelson Smith and Patrolman Dennis Murphy on a warrant issued by the authorities of Milwaukee, Wis., charging him with larceny. He has waived extradition and an officer from Milwaukee is on his way to New London, having left the former city Saturday afternoon, to escort Andur back to that city for trial. The New London police received a telegram from Chief of Police J. G. Loubenheimer, Friday night, requesting the arrest of Andur, who might call at the general delivery window at the post office for mail in the name of Leonard. An officer was stationed at the post office until the close of business Friday night, but Andur failed to present himself, although there were two letters addressed to him in the name of Leonard. Saturday morning, Sergeant Smith and Patrolman Murphy were detailed to watch for Andur. About 10 o'clock an orderly from the Academy appeared at the window and presented a message from Andur, requesting that the orderly be given the mail in the name of Leonard. This was done. The officers then followed the orderly to the Academy and Andur was arrested. He admitted that he had used an assumed name to receive mail, but declared that he had enlisted under his own name, Andur. Andur had been employed recently in a Milwaukee meat market but enlisted in the coast guard less than a week ago.

THE S. N. E. TELEPHONE CO. TO HAVE BIG NEW EXCHANGE

(Special to the Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, July 11—The Southern New England Telephone company, one of the most prosperous of the public utilities in the United States, is about to begin the alteration of its property on Washington street adjoining the possessions of the lodge of Elks. The company bought the Henry Chapel house and the land surrounding it, and of late has used the premises for its business. But the company intends to assemble its business in this city under one roof and to do that will tear down the existing structure and erect a new building that will be modern and accommodate the mechanical and administrative affairs of the company. It is understood that the work of bringing about the change will commence about the 1st of September, and be hurried to completion at the earliest date, before cold weather sets in. The offices of the company now established in the Crocker house building will be removed to Meridian street and to Green street, serving their mission in these locations until the new building is completed. The company has much equipment to accommodate beside the general offices and the central office, so that the space needed will be fully occupied at Washington street. The work will afford employment for a considerable number of mechanics and others and will stimulate business in New London.

The firemen of the state will gather in New London on the 19th of August and will stay here two days for their annual convention and field day. Thursday, the opening day of the assembly, will be given over to a parade and to sports, etc., while the business of the convention will follow. The parade will be on a scale of elaborateness that has not been known at previous conventions. There are expected to be some 20 fire organizations in the procession and each unit will come with a band. It is understood that all the companies in New London will be represented in their entirety, with the exception of the Konomocs. This company will be represented by its working force and the apparatus the paid men are employed to operate.

Dorothy Lewis, 34, colored, was arrested Saturday night, charged with intoxication and breach of the peace. This morning she was released when Edward Jones qualified as surety on her bond of $50 for presentation in the police court Monday morning. The Lewis woman was arrested by Patrolman Frank Philopena when she engaged in a quarrel with colored residents of Potter street.

Montauk avenue is being improved with sidewalks where they have been much needed. The avenue residents would rejoice if a walk was laid in front of the carbarn, the only spot on the northern portion of that fine thoroughfare where pedestrians are compelled to wade through mud during wet weather and during the winter season.

Mrs. Perry Miller and infant daughter, of 84 Shaw street; Mrs. Herbert Perham, 36 Nathan Hale street; Mrs. Frederick Beckman, 33 Maple avenue; Miss Josephine Maier, Gales Ferry; Miss Constance Fowler, Groton; Adolph Wade, Mystic, and Miss Viola Gardner, of Montville, patients at Lawrence- Memorial hospital, were discharged Saturday.

The funeral of George W. Rowley was held Saturday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock at 48 Shapley street and was attended by a large gathering of mourners including a delegation of members of W. W. Perkins Post. The services were conducted by Rev. George H. Strouse, pastor of Jordon Baptist church. Relatives acted as bearers. Burial was in Jordan cemetery.

The funeral of Ignazio Ramistella was held at 9 o'clock Saturday morning at St. Mary's Star of the Sea church. A mass of requiem was celebrated by Rev. Raymond O'Callahan. Relatives acted as bearers. Burial was in St. Mary's cemetery.

Auto travel was lighter in this city Sunday than it has been in a very considerable time. The weather was exceptionally good for driving, still there was an absence of machines on the roads.

One of the tugs of the Thames Towboat company collided with the bridge of the New York, New Haven & Hartford railroad Saturday afternoon at Shaw's cove. The crash resulted in a section of the railing of the bridge being carried away.

Charles Meyers, 33 Winthrop street, was arrested by Patrolman Michael Dorsey and Lawrence Fardy charged with assault upon his younger brother. He will be presented in the police court Monday morning. Meyers was arrested upon complaint of his older brother, Arnold, who went to his home about 7 o'clock and found the younger brother much abused from the beating he had received. Complaint was then made to the police and the arrest followed. Meyers was arrested three months ago when he engaged in a fight in a John street store and at that time he was fined, but the execution of the penalty was suspended and the accused was placed on probation.

William Heffernan, 31, a towboat employe and George Sullivan, 26, of 49 Warren street, were arrested Saturday night charged with breach of the peace. Sullivan furnished a bond of $50 for his presentation in the police court Monday morning, but Heffernan was not so fortunate and was locked up. Heffernan and Sullivan were on Bank street about midnight and engaged in a fight near Tilley street. Patrolman William Riordan was near by and after breaking up the battle placed the fighters under arrest.

James Treadway, watchman in the employe of the Columbia Leather Goods company, Jefferson avenue, made complaint to the police Saturday night that his revolver and flashlight had been stolen. Patrolman Clarence Wells and Louis Wheeler were sent to the factory, but trace of the revolver or flashlight was found. Treadway left the revolver and flashlight where he is accustomed to do so and when he sought them about 10 o'clock he discovered them missing. It is believed that some one who had knowledge of Treadway's movements committed the theft.

Several adjourned cases are booked for the police court Monday. Two of them involve violation of the automobile laws. Arthur Page is to appear for reckless operation of an auto in running down the car of Fire Chief Rose at the corner of Green and Pearl streets. It is alleged that Page did not give the right of way to the fire chief's car when an alarm of fire called.

William S. James, an electrician's mate on the U. S. S. Bushnell is booked for a hearing in which he is charged with reckless operation of an automobile.

A bad auto smash occurred corner of Bank and Howard streets, Saturday evening when a fruit truck and a new passenger car were in collision. The truck lost a wheel and the car was badly wrecked. No report of the smash has been recorded at the police station up to 9 o'clock this evening. It is understood that a complaint will be made to the prosecuting attorney and that someone will pay for the damage sustained by the vehicles. There is some wonder that the collision was not reported at the police station, for a traffic officer is on duty at the point where the accident happened.

Thomas J. Daly is ordered to appear in court Monday to answer for violation of the traffic ordinances of the city on the end of July.

William E. Thomas of E. Beckwith street must answer for felonious assault when the police court convenes tomorrow. He is accused of having stabbed John A. Hetzchener with a knife and with felonious intent. The men were formerly sailors on U. S. steamer Bushnell and there they had some difficulty that created enmity. Thomas alleges that his enemy and another man had intended to attack him. Wednesday last Thomas and Hetzchner met, and they got into an argument, with the result that Thomas cut Hetzchner and he is alleged to have said that he would have shot his enemy had he had a revolver in his possession at the time. Thomas is not known to have disclosed what the trouble between him and Hetzchner is. He has been in jail nearly a week now awaiting the condition of Hetzchner to improve so that he may be in court.

Eugene Hyde, of Shetucket street, Norwich, spent today in New London. Mr. Hyde was a resident of New London 15 years ago, and at that time was employed by Charles J. Ducy and resided on Golden street.

Paul E. Geiger, 71 Jay street, made complaint to the police this evening charging Charles Sutera, 335 Huntington street, with reckless driving. Sutera was ordered to present himself in the police court tomorrow morning. Geiger was driving his automobile on Howard street, enroute to Ocean Beach, in the car were his mother-in-law, Mrs. Adelaide Philopena, 203 Shaw street, and mother of Patrolman Frank Philopena. At the intersection of Pequot avenue, a commercial truck owned by the New Haven Dairy and driven by Sutera crashed against Geiger's auto, the latter auto being struck between the front and rear wheels, badly damaging that side of the touring car. Mrs. Philopena was struck by flying glass from the shattered windshield and was slightly cut about the face, while she also sustained a wrenched shoulder. Geiger later appeared at the police station and made complaint against Sutera and the latter was arrested by Motorcycle Officer Augustus Ray. Sutera denied any act of reckless driving and attributed the accident to the reckless driving by Geiger.

Charles Lemon, of 99 Elderkin avenue, Groton, complained to the New London police this afternoon that his coat was stolen from his power boat while the craft was moored at a wharf on the New London shore.

Gladys Eagan, of New York, was arrested this morning by Sergeant Patrick Murphy, on a warrant charging her with bigamy. She was made a prisoner for the night and this morning Mrs. Heitman was taken to East Lyme and arraigned before Justice of the Peace Marion R. Davis. A continuance was ordered until the 7th of September. It is contended that Mrs. Eagan married a Niantic man and later removed to New York where she is claimed to have wedded again, without having obtained a divorce. It was learned by the East Lyme authorities Saturday evening that the woman was enroute to New London and a request was made for her arrest. When the woman alighted from the 1.37 o'clock train she was taken into custody.

An automobile owned by Lorenzo Montali, of Shaw street, was seized by Prohibition Enforcement Agents Joseph Fitzpatrick and Harry W. Avery Friday night. The car was supposed to contain a quantity of liquor intended to be transported from one point to another. Instead of the officers finding the liquor they believed would be stored in the car they found a gallon of wine. The driver was presented before United States Commissioner Russell H. Corcoran who held him for hearing before the commissioner Monday morning. The driver of the automobile contended that he was the custodian of the wine and that he was intending to convey it to a residence where a party was in progress.

ANNOUNCEMENTS

Broadway Theater

Percy's in Town.

And if you take our advice you will put away the crosswords, lock up the old loud speaker, get Ma and the kids and hie yourselves to the Broadway theater for one of the most delightful evenings you've ever spent in a theater.

For Percy is, in the language of the classics, a Wow.

Percy, as you probably already know, is Charles Ray's second Pathe picture produced by Thomas H. Ince, which, in itself, is enough to assure agreeable entertainment, but in this instance the piece de resistance is garnished with Charlie Murray's contagious humor, Betty Blythe's striking beauty and enough laughs, thrills and surprises to satisfy the most exacting patron of the celluloid drama.

What is said to be one of the most intensely dramatic situations for a number of years appears in His Buddy's Wife, the Encore feature picture, with Glenn Hunter and Edna Murphy, now in its second day's run at the Broadway theater, as the second feature.

The modern Enoch Arden, in the person of an overseas buddy, returns to a little New England town after he had set out on a perilous mission in No Man's Land and received a promise from a buddy to guard his wife.

The girl, having given up hope that her husband would return alive, is about to marry the second buddy to save him from prison. As they meet just before the ceremony, the Enoch Arden returns.

A new Kinograms tops off the exceptional double feature program that will continue for three days more.

AT LEAST 10 DEAD SCORE MISSING

made impossible an accurate estimate.

While a close-up survey of the situation could not be made because of the exploding shells, it was announced that the navy depot, biggest in the country and valued at $87,000,000, had been destroyed. Today's explosions, it was believed, were caused by the blowing up of ammunition stores at the Picatinny army arsenal about half a mile from the navy depot. The army arsenal is valued at $40,000,000.

Some of the shells exploding today were believed, however, to have been from the army arsenal, probably set off by detnations from the navy depot.

Col S. O. Fuqua, in charge of the plans and training section of the Second Corps area, in a statement said: "Barring some accident, such as an actual hit by a naval projectile into our army magazine, all danger, so far as the army reservation is concerned, is over."

Depth bombs, loaded with TNT, were among those hurled through the air in a continuous barrage. Other types of ammunition in the naval magazines were 12, 14 and 16 inch shells, powder charges and pyrotechnics.

FEAR CAPTAIN DOWLING WILL LOSE EYESIGHT

NEW YORK, July 11.—(AP)—Captain O. C. Dowling, commander of the naval munition depot at Lake Denmark, N. J., was operated on at the Brooklyn Naval hospital tonight in an effort to save his eyesight. The captain was blinded while he was combatting flames at the depot following the first of the series of explosions. Lieutenant Commander Paul Albright of the medical corps who performed the operation said afterward that he was doubtful if Captain Dowling's sight could be restored.

EXPLOSION WILL BE THOROUGHLY INVESTIGATED

NEWPORT, R. I., July 11.—(AP)—"The explosion and its cause will be fully and thoroughly investigated," Secretary of the Navy Wilbur announced today in commenting on the Dover, N. J., naval ammunition depot disaster. The navy secretary is resting aboard the U. S. S. New York here, but is keeping in touch with the situation by wireless.

Expressing his "deep regret" over the catastrophe, Secretary Wilbur indicated that he would not go to Dover for the present "inasmuch as all possible assistance has been received from the third and fourth naval districts."

VOLUNTOWN

The double holiday in celebration of the nation's birthday was quietly observed by local residents. Many out of town guests were entertained at village homes; numbers of local people went to enjoy themselves. There was a very generous display of Old Glory throughout the town.

On Sunday afternoon, Slater's A. A. ball team of Jewett City, on the local grounds defeated the home team 9 to 8 in a close and interesting game which was in doubt until the last man was out in the 9th. The home boys made a great rally in that inning, scoring four runs with the tying run on paths when the last man was called out. Many clever plays were made by both teams, both pitchers, Kaduda for the visitors and Dupont for the locals doing good work.

Shortly before noon on Friday last occurred the death of Mrs. Christina Knight Briggs, 91, widow of Ezra Briggs, death being due to the infirmities of age. She has been a resident of Voluntown for the past 61 years, held in the highest esteem by the entire community. Mrs. Briggs was a member of the Baptist church of this town and always interested in its welfare. She is survived by three children, George T. Briggs and Mrs. Emily Chatfield of this town and Mrs. William Barron, Windsor, Conn. There are five grandchildren and eight great-grandchildren. A brother is William Knight of Summit, Penn. The funeral services were held Tuesday at her home in the village and was largely attended by relatives and friends. Burial was at Knotty Oak cemetery, Washington, R. I. There were beautiful flower forms.

Mrs. Ovela Rossi and daughter Jenne and son Deus are passing a week's vacation with relatives at Phenix, R. I.

Several from the village attend the rifle shoot at Tafeville Monday, John Kaufman taking first prize and George Sheldon 10th. They were the only entries from this town and were up against experts from all over the state, also from New York, Vermont and other states.

Beach pond was a very popular resort during the holidays. Besides the cottagers there were many local people there and many cars passed through the village on their way to the pond.

On Main street, near the residence of Mrs. O. S. Rix Thursday evening about 8.30 p. m. an Overland touring car driven by Arthur Lindell of Glasgo and a Ford sedan driven by O. Beasley of Jewett City came together in a head on collision. Both cars were badly damaged. No one was injured. Deputy Sheriff Dolan of Jewett City was called and made an investigation.

FINANCIAL AND COMMERCIAL

SATURDAY'S STOCK MARKET

NEW YORK, July 10.—(AP) — Stock prices resumed their upward movement in today's brief session despite an early attempt of bear traders to unsettle the list by hammering some of the popular industrials and specialties. Trading was relatively light in volume, due to the absence of many professional traders over the week-end.

Resumption of investment buying in the high-grade railroad shares was one of the features of the session. Southern Pacific crossed 108 to a new high level for the year, and several others moved up a point or more. Equipments also were in good demand on the theory that big crop movements this fall would call for new equipment by some of the larger systems. Baldwin leading that group with a gain of 2 points.

Motors continued to respond to reports of large current earnings, General Motors, which has been under pressure recently, leading that group with a gain of 3 points. Pools were again active in the specialties, Wilson company preferred climbing over 3 points to a new high for the year at 55, while Postum Cereal, Advance Rumley preferred, Woolworth and California Packing sold 2 to 4 points higher.

POETRY FOR THE WIDE AWAKES

Mud Pies

Down in a little back garden,
Under a sunny sky,
We made mud pies together—
My little sweetheart and I.
Stained was the little espink apron,
Muddy the jacket blue,
As we stirred and mixed and tasted,
Out in the sun and dew.
Why do I dream of that garden,
I who am old and wise?
Why am I longing, longing,
For one of those old mud pies?
Oh, for the little pink apron,
Oh, for the jacket blue,
For the blessed faith of childhood
When make-believes are true.
—Florence A. Jones in Sunshine Bulletin.

Kids

I like to watch the kids at play. I like to hear them shout;
There's always something on the air
when lusty kids are out:
I like to see them walk the fence, go sliding down the rail,
Shin up a tree, play football with an old hat or tin pail;
I like to see them somersault into a bank of snow.

Some mothers with their little boys are strict as strict can be—
Their curtains, furniture and rugs are just for folks to see—
"Paul, do not sit upon that chair;
John, do not mark the wall";
"You must not take your roller skates and practice in the hall."
"You must cut out that dreadful noise, cut out your silly pranks:"
They hedge them with restrictions like the cashiers in our banks.

Boys can't keep still, their excess pep will find a vent somehow.
They'll buck Old Trouble soon enough,
so let them frolic now.
They're bound to burst their little pants, their pins and buttons lose,
They're bound to tear their socks and shirts, and batter up their shoes.
And keep their mamas busy—you ask me how I know.
Egad, I was a kid myself, but that
was long ago,

This world is full of nervous folk, 'tis full of gloomy cranks.
Who look with deep disfavor on the urchin and his pranks.
Forgetting that George Washington, who made us big and free,
Brought out his little hatchet and cut down his daddy's trees.
They'd have our boys wear skirts and play doll and teddy bear.
They'd have them starched and ironed, with pink ribbons in their hair.

Then mothers dear, cut out your fuss and put the strap away,
And give your little darling a chance to romp and play.
Pass out the ax to Andy, and give the saw to Jim,
Give Johnny nails and hammer and leave the rest to him.
And see what wonders they can do if given but a show—
Egad! I was a kid myself, but that was long ago.
—Tony Caproni.

UNCLE JED'S TALK TO THE WIDE AWAKES

It is pleasing to read the stories written by the Wide Awakes as it shows that they are observing things taking place around them. This power of observing that which is happening around us serves in more ways than one in making life enjoyable.

First, it gives one of knowledge of things going on, not that type of learning that comes from reading or hearing about something, but that better knowledge that comes from personal experience. It broadens a boy or a girl to know these things.

In the second place this practice of observing the things about us will have a tendency to train the powers of seeing and knowing things, not only as concerns nature, but, later, in life, or gaining a clearer view of things that would escape notice were it not that the power of observation had been brought into play as a natural habit.

Many people go through life with a narrow viewpoint. They simply see the few things that are called to their attention, and, lack of training makes it impossible for them to really see these things clearly.

The boy or girl who begins to train early finds that the power of observation grows easier as life goes on. They notice everything about them and become richer in knowledge. Observation tends to memory training, a thing which is all important.

We often hear people say, "I did not notice" or "I don't remember." These people in their youth, and, as they grew older, failed to observe things and fix them in their memory. Because of this they lack something which would have made them natural observers, and, consequently, possessors of trained mental faculties.

LETTERS WRITTEN BY THE WIDE AWAKES

The Atlantic Cable

Dear Uncle Jed: The Atlantic cable is over 2,000 miles long. It runs through the ocean. One end of it is anchored at this continent, and the other end is in Ireland. It was not easy to push on this wire. The men who tried it failed many, many times. The people laughed at them but they were patient for they believed that it could be done.

Two vessels sailed from Cork, each having one-half of the cable on board. In the middle of the ocean they spliced the two halves. Then one vessel sailed back to Ireland and the other sailed west to New Foundland. It was done. A message was sent through it by Queen Victoria to the president. The president cabled her back an answer.

After a few weeks the cable did not work any more. It took the men eight years to fix it over again. At last it was well done. That day to this it brings us news. Now there are five Atlantic cables. The longest cable is between London and Calcutta, India. This cable is over 7,000 miles long.

The Beauties of Summer

Dear Uncle Jed: One late afternoon father and I were going to the garden. As we walked along the path I saw a house wren fly from one of our summer squash shells which hangs in a maple tree and looking up I was overjoyed to see sticks extending out of the open door. Soon the nest was complete. The six small eggs are very thickly and finely speckled all over with pinkish brown. The wings are very short and rounded and the tail is short and carried erect. One day as I went to watch her while she sat on her nest, her mate perched himself upon the stem part of the squash. On the grape arbor sits mother phoebe looking for insects for her five hungry little ones. Their nest is built on a well sheltered beam of our barn. It is a pretty structure of mud and green moss lined with hair. When I go up to see them they open their mouths for food. In a few days they will be able to fly and help them selves.

Last week I saw an orange and black oriole chasing a brightly colored blue jay round and round and through the syringa bush then up into the ash tree and away among the tree tops. How pretty they were in the bright sunlight. Just now the old fashion syringa is in full bloom, its delightful fragrance filling the air. It is here the humming bird and the swallow tail butterfly make daily visits for food. Many starlings are gathering food from our front yard and eat of the apple placed on a post for them. They seem to be fond of fruit. How they chirp and chatter while eating. Up the path hops mother robin leading her three little ones. She finds a worm and gives it to the one nearest to her. He shares a part of it with the second one, while the third young robin listens and finds a worm for himself. In the evening I hear the tree toads and the chirping sound of the house cricket. I often hear the clear fife like whistle of the meadowlark. Again I listen and hear the whistle of a bob-white. I hope all the Wide Awakes are well to enjoy this beautiful morning. I remain your friend.

Our Homes

Uncle Jed: The buildings in which we live and work are made of wood, metals, brick, stone and cement.

There are many different kinds of wood. Some kinds come from trees that grow in our country, other kinds come from different parts of the world.

The trees of the forest are cut down, the branches trimmed off, the trunks cut into logs. The logs are then taken to mills where they are sawed into lumber. They are made into buildings.

The metals are found in ores that are dug from the earth. First all impurities are removed. This is done by melting the ores in big furnaces. The pure metal is made in useful articles, which are used in making houses.

Most bricks are made of clay. They are molded in small boxes. They are burnt until they are hard.

To have good stones to build buildings with, the surface is cleaned, then the solid rock is cut in blocks. These blocks are used in making parts of houses, too.

Cement is a powder made from a burnt mixture of lime and clay. It is used in making homes.

In making buildings men use the trees from the forest, and other metals, clay and rocks from the earth.

The Girl Scouts

Dear Uncle Jed: I am going to tell you and the Wide Awake children about the Girl Scouts. I am a member of troop six of Manchester Green, Manchester, Connecticut. I am in patrol two. Our troop has just been organized. We meet in our school every Friday afternoon. There are about 30 members of the troop. At our first meeting, we voted and I was elected secretary.

We have been on two hikes. The first one we just carried our lunch. We didn't go very far, because some of the smaller members couldn't keep up with the larger ones, and they got tired quickly. We wanted to go farther but our captain wouldn't let us, so we had to stay. Then we were divided into "juniors" and "seniors". The juniors and seniors went by themselves after that, on their hikes.

The first hike the seniors had we went to Bolton Lake. We built a fire and roasted hot dogs and marshmallows. We had a good time. We went in paddling, but not swimming.

We are going on a hike Wednesday out to Talcottville. We are going to build a fire, roast hot dogs, and marshmallows, going in swimming, go rowing, and have a good time. Some of us are going to bring apples to roast. We are going to start at 8:30 and go for all day, coming home about seven.

I have passed my tenderfoot test, but I haven't received my Scout suit yet because we haven't earned enough money. There are seven other girls who have passed their tenderfoot test, too. A troop must have at least eight girls who have taken and passed the test before the troop may be registered in New York. Our troop has been registered.

The Girl Scout must know the motto, slogan, promise and laws before she can pass the tenderfoot test. She isn't a real Girl Scout unless she has passed the test. She also must tie different knots, know the first and last verse of the Star Spangled Banner, and other useful things. A true Girl Scout is a good sport. I try to be.

60TH WEDDING ANNIVERSARY BY VOLUNTOWN COUPLE

An unusual event occurred in Voluntown on July 1st, when Mr. and Mrs. Albert G. Brown came to the 60th milestone of their happy and contented married life. This congenial couple is well known to every person in Voluntown and vicinity, where they reside in a cosy cottage on the main street of the village, a welcome spot to all their neighbors and friends.

A real celebration was held when their six children and their families, 29 in all, came to make the event a pleasant remembrance, spending the entire day and having a big dinner, as they did when the 50th golden wedding occurred. At that time Mr. and Mrs. Brown were living on their farm in northern Voluntown, where they had lived for many years, on one of the real New England homesteads.

Mrs. Brown was Harriet Angeline Harrington and was married to Mr. Brown, July 1, 1866, at West Greenwich, R. I. They had eight children:

Fred G. Brown, resident of Voluntown and boss farmer for the Briggs Mfg. Co.; Idella Sweet of Danielson; Walter C., deceased; Susan Partelo, who resides with her parents; Thomas Brown of Jewett City; Lucinda, wife of Edward Gallup of Greeneville; Maybelle, wife of Dan Gallup of Danielson; Clara, deceased.

There are ten grandchildren: Ethel Brown Frink, daughter of Fred Brown and wife of George Frink of Jewett City; Madelyn Gallup Burke, daughter of Lucinda and wife of Henry Burke of Greeneville; Lloyd and Harry Sweet, sons of Idella Sweet of Danielson; Albert and Russell, sons of Maybelle Gallup of Danielson; Walter, Elsie, Marion and Helen, children of Thomas Brown of Jewett City.

There are also four great-grandchildren: Raymond Brown Frink, Harold Frink, Hilda and Mildred Burke.

The couple received as a token of affection from their children, a ten dollar gold piece for Mr. Brown, and a beautiful black silk dress for Mrs. Brown. Many congratulations, cards and flowers came from admiring friends.

Their years together have been spent mostly in the quiet town of Voluntown, in the village and on the farm. In December, 1918, they purchased their present home on Main street and have resided there since then. Mr. Brown still energetic at 83, keeps up his interest in his farm home where fond recollections still linger, often driving up there to keep aware of its conditions, as well as taking care of his village home, garden, etc. He is still very fond of the farm as well as the old farm nearby where they first resided. He enlisted in the Civil war in Co. G, 21st Connecticut and is one of the two remaining veterans to whom the townspeople pay tribute.

Mrs. Brown, now 79, enjoys a chat with her friends and is ready at any time for a long automobile ride. Thus neither, at their advanced age, are confined to the house. They both have a charming personality and their many friends enjoy calling on them to hear of incidents of the town's history and persons who formerly helped to build up the various homes and cotton mills of the place. All will be glad to see them for many more years together.

It is quite appropriate that they should belong in the colonial town of Voluntown. Its historic and beautiful spots have furnished a background for many such American families as the Browns. Both Mr. and Mrs. Brown are of sturdy New England stock, the fibre of Americanism, and they have the pleasure of looking back over the years of industrious and careful living as they raised their family to obtain and hold the respect of everyone as worthy, upright citizens. They are proud of their family and their family is justly proud of them as having given to each a rare and worthy inheritance, which so few in this day can rightfully claim—an American birthright.

GAVE PICNIC LUNCHEON FOR PARTY OF FOURTEEN

Master Henry was given a rising vote of thanks for the pleasurable day.

Fire In Shed

A blaze in a small shed at No. 1 Hamilton avenue, owned by Joseph Pysyk, caught fire Saturday afternoon about 1 o'clock and a call was sent in for the fire department. When the firemen arrived the fire had already been extinguished and with but little loss. It is believed that boys playing with matches were the cause of the fire.

LICENSE MUTE DRIVERS AFTER SEVERE TESTS

On the theory that the less talking a driver of an automobile does, the better, and that deaf persons very often are more sensitive to traffic conditions than those who can hear Superintendent Robert T. Hurley of the state police department said Saturday that it was the policy of his department to certify even deaf mutes for motor vehicle operators' licenses, whenever they were able to convince the examiner that they could safely drive a car.

The statement was made in comment upon the case of Joseph Paradise of East Hartford, a deaf mute who was fined $10 and costs for speeding, by Justice Howard P. Dunham in the Wethersfield town court. Paradise had a genuine operator's license. Justice Dunham said Saturday morning however, that on his licenses for 1923 and 1924, which were shown in court, no defects in hearing or speech were noted, while on the license now in force the fact that he was deaf was written in.

Paradise was arrested for driving his car through the town of Wethersfield at a speed of fifty-eight miles an hour.

According to Superintendent Hurley, the state police have dismissed dumbness as an advantage rather than an impediment in operating an automobile. He said that if some of the present day automobile sweethearts had deaf mutes for beaux, fewer accidents would occur.

But he stated that an applicant's deafness had always raised an interesting question. Examinations have established, he said, that in a large number of cases deafness has so increased the acuteness of nerve sensations that the deaf driver is more alert than one who can hear. He emphasized, however, that no deaf person had ever been given a license without a special examination of the effect of his inability to hear upon his driving. Yet even under such tests, he admitted, that it was quite likely that a number of deaf mutes were licensed operators.

SHOWED MOVING PICTURES ON LIFE OF CHRIST

At the 4 o'clock service at the local Y. M. C. A. Sunday the final part of the story of Jesus was shown in moving pictures, and it was naturally the sad part of the great life, showing as it did the terrible treatment of his enemies in scourging him and putting on his head the crown of thorns; the trial and sentence and the crucifixion on Calvary between two thieves. The whole scene was one of very great impressiveness and the audience was evidently moved by the reality of the picture story portraying as it did the experiences of Jesus as recorded in the scriptures.

Between the reels the general secretary gave a brief talk, and among other things he said: Someone has stated that Jesus was denied by one of his disciples, denied by another, and they all forsook him and fled; he trod the "wine press alone". How true this was of the Master. When we remember the birthday of Abraham Lincoln, no one has anything but respect and a kind of reverence for this great American, and it is right that this should be so, but why is it that some people and far too many seem to ignore what Jesus did for the world. We should always remember that when Jesus walked up the slope of Calvary and allowed cruel men to nail him to the cross, and he hung there and bled there and died there for each one of us: he then and there effected our redemption; he then and there became our substitute. This redemption is useless to us unless we avail ourselves of it by accepting Jesus as our personal Savior. Some men by their lives and actions seem as it were to crucify Jesus afresh. Let us see to it that inasmuch as he has done so much for us that we live clean, pure noble lives and serve him with faithfulness.

The opening exercises consisted of the singing of hymns, scripture reading and prayer. H. C. Zabriskie rendered very acceptably vocal solos, "The Old Rugged Cross" and "In the Garden" and was accompanied by his sister, Miss Marcia Zabriskie, who also played for the pictures. Emery H. Davis operated the picture machine.

EUCHARISTIC CHAIRMAN VISITS ST. PATRICK'S PARISH

The many who received holy communion at St. Patrick's church Sunday, following the week end confessions, had the great privilege of being given the Eucharist by a Chicago clergyman who has just demonstrated his executive ability in a signal way. The 9 o'clock children's mass was read by Rev. M. A. Dorney, rector of St. Lucy's church, Chicago, who, during the recent Eucharistic Congress was chairman of the transportation committee, looking after over a million visitors.

Back in April, Father Dorney and his working committee of eight began final preparations for handling the vast throngs expected to attend the congress, although preliminary arrangements had been started fully fifteen months ago, or in April of 1925. Of the committee of eight, two were prominent laymen. One of these looked after street traffic, the other after the volume of automobile travel.

To conquer the stupendous problem, nine roads were built leading into the city of Mundelein, newly created as the site of the congress. For auto parking alone space was provided for 72,000 cars at once. How ably the committee managed the task was evidenced by the smoothness of arrangements and the almost total absence of confusion which was a marvel to visitors from all over the world.

Father Dorney's committee members realized from the beginning the magnitude of the problem. The largest number of visitors ever assembled in Chicago was 250,000 during the World's Fair, yet it was known that more than four times that number would be likely to crowd the city during the momentous week in June when the congress was held. It was to be the first gathering of its kind in the United States, although one was held at Montreal, Canada, in 1910. The first congress was at Lille, France, in 1886; that at Chicago was the 28th. The great demonstration of faith and devotion and sincerity in religion witnessed between June 20-24th, has been told of in all the papers and is now history. Eucharistic congresses are gatherings of ecclesiastics and laymen for the purpose of celebrating and glorifying the Holy Eucharist which every Roman Catholic firmly believes is the actual body of Christ, by His own words, John VI. 56-59—and of seeking the best means to spread its knowledge and love throughout the world.

Rev. Father Dorney is a native of Chicago, but studied at the Seminary in Baltimore and was ordained at Baltimore Cathedral. He has a number of classmates throughout the New England states. He is having three weeks' vacation, to rest up after his taxing labors in advance of and during the congress, and having been a traveling acquaintance while abroad of St. Patrick's rector, Rt. Rev. Msgr. M. H. May spent the week end as the latter's guest. He will visit relatives in Boston, on Staten Island and in Pittsburgh, before returning to his Chicago parish. He did not preach in Norwich Sunday or make any public reference to his interesting experiences during the congress, although he talked informally regarding the manner in which the traffic scheme was devised and carried out, as he was in conversation with a representative of The Bulletin.

In giving communion at his mass, he had the assistance of Monsignor May.

PUSHING RECRUITING DRIVE FOR NAVY ENLISTMENTS

The recruiting drive for first enlistments in the U. S. Navy is proceeding at a gratifying pace, according to the recruiting officer for Norwich, Chief Quartermaster McCarthy in charge.

The Connecticut district which comprises the whole state stood eighth on the list of forty recruiting stations throughout the United States for the last week. According to Lieutenant Comdr Thomas M. Shock, the officer in charge of the Connecticut district, the navy requires 24,000 first enlistments to keep the strength up to the total of 82,500 allowed by the recent appropriation bill passed by congress. When the two monster aircraft carriers, the Lexington and the Saratoga are commissioned this coming winter a total of 1500 more men will be needed to man them, consequently an intensive drive for first enlistments is proceeding throughout the country.

Skilled ratings such as machinists mates, boilermakers, coppersmiths and patternmakers are particularly needed. Recruiting stations are authorized to accept skilled workmen of the foregoing kinds for enlistment in the third class ratings of their particular branch subject to the standard navy qualifications.

ST. SWITHIN'S DAY, THE 15TH, AND ITS STRANGE LEGENDS

Wednesday of this week, the 15th, will be St. Swithin's day. St. Swithin or Swithun, bishop of Winchester. Date of birth unknown; died in July, 863. He was the most popular of the early saints of England.

St. Swithin was born of noble parentage and was probably a native of Wessex. Placed at an early age in the monastery of Winchester for his education, he passed his youth "in innocent simplicity, and in the study of grammar, philosophy, and the sacred scriptures." At the time of his ordination to the priesthood about the year 830, he was considered an accomplished model of all virtures and a scholar of brilliant parts.

His genial personality and eminent sanctity attracted the attention of Egbert, king of the West Saxons, with whom he soon became a prime favorite. He was appointed chaplain at the royal court and entrusted with the education of the king's son and successor, Ethelwulf.

He was called to the reward of his holy life on July 2, 862, after ten fruitful years in the episcopacy. On his deathbed he expressed the wish to be buried in the churchyard, near the north wall of his cathedral church, where the passers-by would tread upon his grave and the raindrops from the eves fall upon it. This request, prompted by humility, was carried out.

On July 15, 971, his body was taken up and solemnly translated to a shrine within the cathedral.

The saint became popularly known as "The Weeping St. Swithin" and is remembered chiefly in these latter days by the following strange superstition associated with his feast day:

"St. Swithin's day, if thou dost rain
For forty days it will remain;
St. Swithin day, if thou be fair
For forty days 'twill rain nae mair."

The origin of this belief is not satisfactorily explained. Possibly the occurrence frequently of rainy constellations about the time of his feast may account for it. According to a legend, the translation of his relics in 971 was delayed for forty days owing to heavy rains.

NORWICH ENGINEERS MADE CHOICE OF OFFICERS

John E. Casey was elected president of the Norwich Association of Engineers, No. 6, at a meeting held recently, the other officers elected being as follows: Vice president, Otto Heebner; corresponding secretary, George P. Thomas; treasurer, William D. Throop; door-keeper, F. F. Bailey; conductor, A. H. Williams; trustees, Fitch A. Dolbeare, John A. Hubbard and John D. Carpenter. The installing of the officers was in charge of States President Elmer L. Bassett of Hartford.

John A. Holland, retiring president, was elected a delegate to the national convention which will be held at Atlantic City the week of September 13th. In retiring from office Mr. Holland expressed appreciation for the spirit of cooperation shown by members during his term in office and promised them that now that he was once again a private in the ranks, his interest in the association would be continued.

The report of the treasurer showed the association to be in excellent financial condition and that plans are underway for elaborate educational programs during the coming months. Social times are also being planned, to be held jointly with the ladies' auxiliary of the association.

AUTOS IN COLLISION AT LAUREL HILL CORNER

The Hudson car operated by Franklin S. Wilcox, Jr., and owned by his father, Dr. Franklin S. Wilcox, superintendent of the Norwich State hospital, and a Ford coupe owned and operated by Mrs. Winifred A. Egli of Baltic, collided on Laurel Hill avenue shortly after noon Saturday. The Ford car was damaged considerably but the Hudson escaped with only slight damage. The occupants of the cars escaped without injury.

The Ford car was coming out of Summer street as the Hudson was heading up Laurel Hill avenue and when Mr. Wilcox saw that an accident was likely to happen he swung wide to avoid it but without success. The accident was reported to the police.

PARENTS WILL SETTLE FOR JUVENILE BURGLARIES

A group of juvenile burglars were before the juvenile court here Saturday to tell their part in several breaks which have been made on Cove street at the Yantic Grain company and also at the Parker-Preston company store. The parents of the boys were in court with them and offered to make good the damage done by their sons. The age of the boys averaged 10 years.

Two boys, one 14 and the other 10, who had confessed to Serg. Matthew Delaney that he had entered the Parker-Preston place were presented and a third boy, 17 years of age, had his case continued pending the outcome of the cases against his companions.

The cases against the small boys were settled by payment of costs incurred and damage done and Judge Libby placed them on probation with an understanding that a future offense would result in their being sent to a state institution.

Thunderstorm Broke Heat Spell

Humidity and a thermometer that ranged from 70 to 85 made Saturday afternoon a difficult period for man and beast to endure, but relief came with a short thunderstorm about 9:30 at night. Sunday was a much more bearable day as the heat was tempered by a cooling breeze.

ANOTHER MAGAZINE BLOWS UP AT NAVY ARSENAL

Sudden Shift in Wind Responsible for Latest Explosion—Smouldering Flames Flare Anew, Endangering Dozen Other Magazines Filled With Twelve and Fourteen Inch Shells—Search for Victims in Shell Racked Area is Temporarily Abandoned on Order of Secretary of the Navy Wilbur—Total Number of Known Dead is Now Nineteen—Four Bodies Identified—Thieves are Plundering Shattered Homes in Devastated Area.

DOVER, N. J., July 12.—(AP)—New Jersey's shell racked area trembled before the threat of another disastrous bombardment tonight.

Flames, smouldering for three days, flared anew with a shifting wind and fired one of the dozen magazines remaining in Lake Denmark's burning arsenal.

The other magazines were endangered by the explosion and the task of rescuing the dead of Saturday's disaster was abandoned temporarily.

Secretary of the Navy Wilbur, who had on the scene, ordered the searching parties from the devastated area when the veering wind turned the flames toward the magazines as yet unexploded and threatened blasts as severe as those of Saturday.

He also directed that patrol lines be tightened around the ten mile zone evacuated yesterday when army, navy and marine picket lines were established. This brought new despair and bewilderment to hundreds of refugees, who, because of the quiet day, had hopes of returning to their shattered homes in No Man's Land.

Parts of 17 bodies were found in today's first exploration of the shelled naval reservation, bringing the total number of known dead to 19. The bodies and remains brought out today were sent to the naval hospital in Brooklyn, where an effort will be made to identify them tomorrow.

Naval officers said that the bodies were so badly mangled that identification will be impossible until duplicate records containing finger prints and dental charts, arrive at the hospital from Washington. These charts are expected to reach Brooklyn early tomorrow morning.

Identification of one body as that of Private Morris Hardaker, of the marines, and another as that of Harry Christian Brown, pharmacists' mate of No. 7 Market street, Poughkeepsie, N. Y., brought the number of identified dead to four. Mrs. Frances Hardaker, of Brooklyn, a visitor at the Navy Depot, and Lieut. George W. Lewis, Jr., of Richmond, Va., were the parents. Mrs. Feeney's body was claimed by relatives today.

Funeral services, the first for a victim of the disaster were held here for Hardaker this afternoon. A simple military ceremony with the flag draped over the plain oak casket, and pall-bearers from the army post, the naval depot and the ordnance department, preceded the placing of th body aboard a train for Richmond.

A crowd of rescue workers, newspapermen and others stood with bared heads at the little railroad station as taps were sounded for the 25 year old officer. The body was accompanied to Richmond by Captain Codd, U. S. A., and Irving C. Craig, a cousin of the lieutenant. His father, mother and two sisters await it in Richmond.

Plans for rehabilitation work among the Chilean families, under the supervision of the American Red Cross, were tentatively accepted by a Dover citizens committee. It was announced by John E. Buchanan, assistant national director of disaster relief. The Red Cross proposes a survey of the wrecked area, with estimates made of the cost of rehabilitation. The citizens' committee decided to raise by canvassing a relief fund, to be turned over to the Red Cross to aid in the work. Six Red Cross men are already at work and 15 more are expected tomorrow from Washington.

MEN DIED WHILE ANSWERING FIRE CALL

DOVER, N. J., July 12.—(AP)—The men who died in the explosion of ammunition at Lake Denmark, lost their lives because they ran to fight fire instead of obeying to safety Secretary of the Navy Wilbur said today after a visit to the arsenal.

The position of every man's body indicated that he was running back to danger in response to the fire call," he said. Had they gone the other way they might have saved their lives."

"The situation is still dangerous," Secretary Wilbur said. "We are taking every precaution and are doing our best to keep every one out of the danger zone.

The danger lies in a possible change of wind. As long as the wind does not veer to the opposite direction we do not expect any further explosions beyond the shells in the area already damaged. But if the wind changes it may set fire to the 12 or 14 other magazines that have not exploded" the magazines are filled with 12 and 14 inch shells.

Secretary Wilbur ventured into the burned and exploded areas. It was after returning from the naval arsenal itself that he told newspapermen his view of the situation.

"The report that officers of the naval arsenal had complained to me that the arsenal was in a dangerous condition are untrue," Secretary Wilbur said.

Explosions of shells were still occurring in the blasted magazines when Secretary Wilbur made his examination of the area.

It was told that when the lightning struck and the first supply of TNT exploded with a roar to shake the countryside, marines and sailors stationed at the arsenal ran toward the danger, not away from it. Training, discipline, and the high heritage of courage told, eye witnesses reported, and the first thought of those not immediately incapacitated was for their comrades and the civilians living nearby.

When the first blast was followed by another and another, and the earth shook with the roar of powder and the land of falling steel, naval buildings and homes folded up like card board houses and human opposition to the bombardment became impossible.

Driven back from the flaming vortex that spouted death in all directions the armed forces hung close to the danger line, and waited while re-enforcements joined them for the moment when it should be possible to go down into that scorching crater and search for the bodies of those whose service had been forever ended.

That moment came today. During the morning the steady bombardment slacked as the last shells in the danger zone exploded. And then the marines "moved in," as their war time phrase described their going into action. The marines moved in, five companies of them from Quantico, crawling on their stomachs as they crawled through the wheat at Chateau Thierry when they stemmed the German horde that threatened Paris.

Still shells whistled through the air at times, but on they moved, and with them were sailors from the arsenal who had comrades missing since the bombardment began, and soldiers from the Picatinny arsenal, which adjoins the navy depot but which escaped a like fate by some quirk of chance.

Just what they found, what they saw and what they felt, as they proceeded over that torn terrain which only two days before had lain a grassy countryside under a summer sun was not made known in detail. But after the first inspection a telegram was sent to Washingt on saying that 13 bodies and parts of four others had been recovered. How many more there were still in the blackened ruins no man could tell until every inch of the tangled wreckage had been sifted.

Secretary of the Navy Wilbur visited the scene of the tragedy and with an official party entered the scorching "no man's land" for a personal survey.

The whole region had the aspect of a battlefield today with uniformed men deploying across the smoking hills, with Red Cross stations in operations, and Salvation Army relief stations ministering to the needy.

The district was under strict guard to prevent any added confusion by an inrush of curiosity seekers. All roads were posted with sentries and the only ones allowed to pass were the owners of homes in the explosion area who fled on Saturday.

Many of these came back today with pitiful hopes that they would find something worth saving, but in most instances all they found were tumbled walls and blackened boards. Their little lawns were torn with shell holes, their houses were gone, their possessions scattered and burned.

THIEVES ARE PLUNDERING SHELL SHATTERED HOMES

NEW YORK, July 12.—(AP)—Thieves have been plundering the shattered homes in the region of the Lake Denmark explosion, undeterred by danger from flying fragments, according to a dispatch from Dover, N. J., to the Evening World.

Officers were quoted as reporting that thieves had broken into their damaged quarters, broken open trunks and stole personal belongings and money. The thieves were said even to have ripped the gold and silver insignia of officers from uniforms found among the officers' effects.

SECRETARY WILBUR WILL NAME INVESTIGATING BOARDS

WASHINGTON, July 12.—(AP)—Two investigating boards will be named by Secretary Wilbur to inquire into various phases of the Lake Denmark naval arsenal explosions. One will seek to ascertain the cause and the damage to government property, while the other will assess private property losses.

SCOTT ENTERS PLEA OF GUILTY TO MURDER

CHICAGO, July 12.—(AP)—Three times today Robert E. Scott insisted upon placing his life in jeopardy and within an hour after acceptance of his decision to throw himself upon the mercy of the court, he heard testimony that his brother, Russell L. T. Scott, actually committed the murder to which he pleaded guilty.

Arraigned for the slaying of Joseph Maurer, 17 year old drug clerk, killed April 2, 1924, when the Scotts robbed a downtown pharmacy, and for which Russell has been sentenced to death, Robert nodded his head when his attorney, William Scott Stewart, said "we plead guilty, your honor."

Desirous of leaving no loophole for further court delay, the prosecutors insisted Judge William N. Gemmill explain to Scott the possible consequences of his plea, that the minimum sentence was 14 years imprisonment and, the maximum, death.

"My attorney has explained that," put in Scott.

Judge Gemmill nevertheless expounded the law, and asked:

"Do you persist in your plea?"

"I do, your honor," replied Scott.

"That places a heavy responsibility upon the court,' said Judge Gemmill. "I shall desire to hear the evidence just as fully as though the plea had been otherwise and a jury called."

Floyd K. Pinckney testified he entered the drug store with his wife to purchase candy and found Robert Scott guarding younger Maurer, who attacked Scott and they rolled upon the floor fighting for possession of a pistol, while Pinckney ran into the street.

Pinckney said he heard three shots fired, saw Robert Scott leap to his feet and dash into the street, and saw another man, carrying a pistol, emerge from the rear and follow Robert.

Maurer arose and seized Robert's pistol, said Pinckney, but fell dying with it in his hand. That pistol, testified Pinckney was opened in his presence and had not been fired.

Two preceding witnesses, Charles H. Edison, proprietor of the drug store, and John Douglas, a hotel bell-boy testified that while Robert Scott forced Maurer to open the cash drawer, Russell Scott guarded them in the store basement, hastening upstairs when Robert and Maurer clashed, and Maurer shouted for help.

Indications tonight were that the hearing to determine Robert's penalty would be completed within two hours upon its resumption tomorrow.

CHICAGO CAB DRIVER SHOT BY HOODLUMS

CHICAGO, July 12.—(AP)—Two hoodlums, believed to be drug fiends, shot and killed Ludwig Rose, a cab drvier early today in Cicero, turbulent suburb, took his cab, and a few minutes later shot and killed Fred Helm, Sunday school superintendent, and his fiancee, Miss Marie Blanz, after an apparent effort to rob them. The latter two were en route home from church when they were killed.

Police tonight had part of the story of the tragic escapade from Thomas McWaine, 24, and they sought Joseph Granito as his companion. McWaine was arrested, but his companion, known to him as "Eddie," escaped.

At the police station McWaine declared, officers said, that his companion had suggested that they "raise some easy money." They employed the taxicab with a plan to rob the driver. As they drove along they saw a sedan parked at the roadside, so they slugged and tied the cab driver and robbed the couple in the sedan of $5 and some Sunday school envelopes.

When they returned to the cab, they untied Rose and told him to flee. As he fled, McWaine said he heard "Eddie" fire some shots. Police found Rose dying near the roadside, and he told them that he heard half a dozen shots shortly after his shooting.

CHICAGO FACES POSSIBLE STRIKE ON "L" LINES

CHICAGO, July 12.—(AP)—Possibility of a strike of Chicago elevated employes loomed today when the demands of 4,500 employes for a five cent an hour wage increase were rejected by the Chicago Rapid Transit company and the men were asked to accept a reduction of five cents an hour in a counter proposal.

An emphatic declaration that the members of his organization would under no circumstances consider a wage reduction was made by John J. Bruce, president of Division 308 of the Amalgamated Association of Street and Electric Railway Employes of America.

Along with the elevated employes there are about 15,000 surface line employes involved.

YOUTH LOSES LIFE IN CONNECTICUT RIVER

HARTFORD, July 12.—(AP)—Wading in shallow water off the west bank of the Connecticut river North of the Willimantic bridge, John Rozalewaski, 17 years old of No. 62 Elm street, stepped into a hole and was drowned late today during an intermission in a swimming lesson which he was receiving from his younger brother, Frank, 11. The body was not recovered tonight but Frank Luckingham, veteran riverman, said that he and the younger brother would visit the scene at 7 o'clock tomorrow.

FLAMES CAUSE $3,000 DAMAGE AT NEW HAVEN

NEW HAVEN, July 12.—(AP)—Fire starting from undetermined origin in the French cabinet shop owned by B. Lomonosoff at 146 State street tonight, caused smoke and water damage to several concerns. The loss was estimated at $3,000.

The fire started at the rear of the second floor of a three story building and when the firemen arrived, the smoke was pouring from at least 50 windows. The fire had the appearance of a bad blaze and a second alarm was sounded. The fire, however, was confined to the section of the building where it started.

General of Former Sec. Weeks Thursday

Death of Former Cabinet Member Occurred Early Yesterday Morning—Body Will be Taken to West Newton, Mass., Today.

LANCASTER, N. H., July 12.—(AP)—John W. Weeks lay tonight for the last time on his beloved White mountain top overlooking the place of his birth with a lifetime of service to his city, state and country behind him. It was this unremitted service which underlay the physical causes of his death early this morning.

Worn out by the duties as secretary of war to which he had given himself so whole heartedly, Mr. Weeks had sought health and rest in South America and California before he turned once more to his native New Hampshire. Here, on Mount Prospect, his own possession, with his wife and son and daughter to companion him, he fought his last battle with illness.

It was a losing battle. The former senator and war secretary sank into a coma on Sunday morning from which he never roused though his family waited patiently and hopefully at his bedside for a final word. "Angina pectoris," his physician said. "Overmitting public service," scores of prominent citizens declared.

Tomorrow morning at 4 o'clock began the journey from his birthplace to West Newton, Mass., which was his home in the years during his business success. There national and state officials, business and financial associates and allegion of friends will pay final tribute on Thursday afternoon at 2 o'clock.

Detailed arrangements were not complete this evening, but relatives said it was probable that the services would be from the home of Sinclair Weeks, his son, unless a larger attendance made the use of a church edifice desirable.

The body will be placed in a temporary vault in West Newton, to be transferred later to the Arlington National cemetery in Washington. Burial will be arranged there in accordance with the wish often expressed by Mr. Weeks. It was not expected that the body would be taken to Washington until a monument was erected.

As far as was known no arrangements had been made for a military funeral.

Flags were flown at half staff in the town of his birth today and officials of the American Legion post were discussing plans for a more elaborate tribute to be paid later. Although anticipated, the passing of Lancaster's notable son was keenly felt throughout the community where he spent his younger years.

The Rotary club, comprising many of the leading business men of the town, conducted a memorial service at its regular noon session today.

At West Newton, flags on all municipal buildings were flown at half staff and Mr. Week's death was made the subject of the following special message issued by Mayor Childs:

"The death of John W. Weeks is keenly felt in the city of Newton where for many years he made his home. He started his political life as an alderman, was later elected mayor and served in that capacity during 1902 and 1903. With all the outside interests which claimed his attention after entering national political life, he never forgot his home city, his church or his old friends. He continued to the end an interested supporter of community activities, a sort of silent partner in every good cause that affected the welfare of the city and her people."

Hundreds of tributes from friends, associates and acquaintances in every walk of life were showered upon the relatives today.

John W. Weeks was born on a little New Hampshire farm, near Lancaster, April 11, 1860. While serving as a schoolmaster, at the age of 18, he received an appointment to the Naval Academy at Annapolis, where he was graduated four years later a midshipman. But two more years sufficed to kill what ambition then remained in the mind of Midshipman Weeks for a permanent post in the navy. He and a number of his classmates resigned. The reason was twofold. He failed personally to enthuse over the service as a life's work, and congress failed to appropriate funds for new ships at a time when there was a lack of vessels and a consequent surplus of officers.

Incident followed rapidly in the life of Mr. Weeks after his resignation from the navy. Though he continued interest in that arm of the nation's defense, serving as a volunteer during the Spanish-American war, and later accepting a reserve commission as rear admiral, he turned away searching for new fields and a livelihood.

In 1885, Mr. Weeks married Miss Martha Sinclair, and journeyed south as a surveyor and land commissioner for the Florida Southern railroad.

WEEKS OFFERED TO HELP SEN. BRANDEGEE

HARTFORD, July 12.—(AP)—An account of an effort by former Secretary of War John W. Weeks to help the late Senator Frank B. Brandegee, of Connecticut through the financial difficulties which, with his impaired health, caused the senator to take his own life in October, 1924, was given today by W. Don Lundy, who was Senator Brandegee's secretary and is now secretary to Senator William M. Butler, of Massachusetts, in a special dispatch to the Hartford Courant from Vineyard Haven, Mass.

Brandegee was too proud to accept offers of financial aid made by Secretary Weeks, his former senate colleague, but the latter got around the difficulty for a while by giving money to Brandegee's secretary, without Brandegee's knowledge. With this money, Lundy paid obligations against Senator Brandegee as they came along until the senator discovered it, called a halt and insisted on giving a note to Weeks to cover the amount Lundy had received in his behalf.

DEBT SETTLEMENT OUT OF COMMISSION'S HANDS

WASHINGTON, July 12.—(AP)—The French debt settlement in the opinion of Secretary Mellon, is out of the hands of the American debt commission and if France wants more lenient terms it must lay its cause before congress.

Since the agreement already has been ratified by the house he considers it improbable, however, that the senate would consent to any material modifying amendments.

It is the view of administration officials that if France fails to ratify the settlement she would be in a less favorable position since the United States, through its loan, holds a demand note on the French government payable in cash while the debt agreement would allow payment over a period of 62 years.

NEW HAVEN POLICE OFFICER GIVEN REPRIMAND

NEW HAVEN, July 12.—(AP)—Found guilty of neglect in failing to furnish the city attorney's office with an account of an automobile accident in which a machine operated by Joseph Curran crashed into one owned by D. Spencer Berger on April 24, Policeman Richard Smith, connected with the Westville precinct and a nephew of Chief Phillip T. Smith, was reprimanded by President John B. Kennedy at the request of the board of public commissioners today. Policeman James Coogan and Patrick Hickey, who were involved in the same accident, were exonerated by the board.

CATCALLS GREET SPANISH PREMIER AT PARIS

PARIS, July 12—(AP)—Bows and acclamations within the railway terminal, and hoots, catcalls and hostile cries outside the building greeted the coming to Paris tonight of General Primo de Rivera, the Spanish premier and erst-while dictator. He is visiting the French capital to participate in the celebrations attendant on the French national holiday, Bastile day, July 14.

Large forces of police had assembled in the station in the expectation of some such outburst, and it was promptly suppressed; a dozen of the most tempestuous manifestants were taken off to cool their heels in the police station, and General Primo de Rivera was able to leave in peace for the Spanish embassy.

MERIDEN MAN IS FOUND DEAD IN BED

MERIDEN, July 12. — (AP) — With three gas jets wide open in the kitchen of his home, Jesse Hunter of this city was found dead in bed in an adjoining bedroom tonight. Death was pronounced due to suicide by Medical Examiner E. T. Bradstreet. Hunter's wife died several weeks ago, since which time he has been out of work. He was long a resident of this city.

Ten Injured In Subway Accident

Express Train of Broadway-7th Avenue Line Crashed Into Bumper at Terminal—Motorman Held on Criminal Negligence Charge.

NEW YORK, July 12.—(AP)—The crisis in the subway strike was postponed for 24 hours today.

The Interborough Rapid Transit company announced that strikers would have until noon tomorrow to return to work or be permanently removed from the payroll. The "zero hour" had been set for noon today but company officials announced they had received reports that men who wanted to return to work were being intimidated by strike pickets. They said that police would be appealed to to prevent intimidation.

The principal development today in the strike, which has now been in progress for a week, were counter claims of impending victorybystri claims of impending victory by strike leaders and company officials, and reports of the first serious sabotage since the strike began.

Company officials said that 168 strikers had returned to work and that more were coming all the time. Strike leaders placed defections from the strikers' ranks at a handful and announced that recruits had been gained from the signal tower men.

Police were told that two motormen had been fired on while driving trains early this morning and investigations were begun. Strike headquarters denied any knowledge of the attacks and pointed to often repeated injunctions from strike leaders that the strike would be conducted in an orderly and peaceful manner.

Ten persons were injured tonight when a ten-car express train of the Broadway-7th avenue line ran into the bumper at the terminal at 242nd street and Broadway.

The 150 passengers, who were standing at the doors of the train, were thrown to the floor. Injured were in the second and third cars.

District Attorney McGeehan of the Bronx ordered an immediate investigation of the accident. He directed that the motorman, William O'Dell, said to be a new employe, be held on a charge of criminal negligence.

WEEKS OFFERED TO HELP SEN. BRANDEGEE

HARTFORD, July 12.—(AP)—An account of an effort by former Secretary of War John W. Weeks to help the late Senator Frank B. Brandegee, of Connecticut through the financial difficulties which, with his impaired health, caused the senator to take his own life in October, 1924, was given today by W. Don Lundy, who was Senator Brandegee's secretary and is now secretary to Senator William M. Butler, of Massachusetts, in a special dispatch to the Hartford Courant from Vineyard Haven, Mass.

Brandegee was too proud to accept offers of financial aid made by Secretary Weeks, his former senate colleague, but the latter got around the difficulty for a while by giving money to Brandegee's secretary, without Brandegee's knowledge. With this money, Lundy paid obligations against Senator Brandegee as they came along until the senator discovered it, called a halt and insisted on giving a note to Weeks to cover the amount Lundy had received in his behalf.

DEBT SETTLEMENT OUT OF COMMISSION'S HANDS

WASHINGTON, July 12.—(AP)—The French debt settlement in the opinion of Secretary Mellon, is out of the hands of the American debt commission and if France wants more lenient terms it must lay its cause before congress.

Since the agreement already has been ratified by the house he considers it improbable, however, that the senate would consent to any material modifying amendments.

It is the view of administration officials that if France fails to ratify the settlement she would be in a less favorable position since the United States, through its loan, holds a demand note on the French government payable in cash while the debt agreement would allow payment over a period of 62 years.

LONDON AND PARIS AGREE ON WAR DEBT

Agreement for Funding of French War Debt to Great Britain Signed After Hour's Conference Between Winston Churchill,, Chancellor of British Exchequer and Joseph Caillaux, French Minister of Finance—Latter Expresses Hope Agreement Will Prevent Further Fall of the Franc—Full Payment Terms Are $12,500,000 for 62 Years—Safeguarding Clause Protects France's Interests Should Germany Default in Reparations Payments.

LONDON, July 12—(AP)—An agreement was signed today for the funding of the French war debt to Great Britain after a conference of a single hour between Winston Churchill, chancellor of the British exchequer, and Joseph Caillaux, French minister of finance, and a subsequent discussion with treasury officials to draft the terms of the agreement. These will not be divulged until tomorrow.

M. Caillaux came to London by airplane from Paris accompanied by Jacques Dubois, under-secretary of the treasury and lost no time in proceeding to the house of commons, where he was closeted with the British chancellor.

Apparently the agreement was reached thus quickly because the ground had been thoroughly prepared beforehand by discussions between London and Paris. It was probably only a coincidence that almost simultaneously with the issue of the official announcement of the signing of the agreement that the French franc touched its lowest record of about 195 to the pound.

Questioned after the signature, M. Caillaux said he hoped this would prevent any further fall in the franc, but, shrugging his shoulders, he remarked: "I am not master of events."

M. Caillaux expressed himself as greatly pleased with his reception in London and especially with Mr Churchill's amiability.

Although the full terms of the agreement are withheld until tomorrow, it is understood France will pay in the curent financial year, 4,000,000 pounds, with gradually increasing payments until the sixth year, when the full 12,500,000 pounds, as previously arranged, will be reached.

The full payment terms are $12,500,000 for 62 years, and France will not be required to pay the deficiency of these five years of partial moratorium until after a long period, probably 25 or 30 years. The 50,000,000 pounds of French gold now held in the Bank of England as a pledge will henceforth be regarded as part of the reserve of the Bank of France.

There is also a safeguarding clause to protect France's interests should Germany default in her reparations payments. In this the British settlement differs from the Mellon-Berenger agreement, which omitted such a clause.

France is also granted a transfer clause, whereby, in the event of her large payment to England endangering the stability of the franc, the annual payment will be postponed.

Another point which the French experts consider more advantageous than the Franco-American settlement is that under the new agreement there is no possibility in any circumstances of the Anglo-French funding settlement becoming commercialized. The agreement provides that none of the French bonds may be placed in the open market or negotiated, as authorized by the American settlement.

Should France's incapacity to pay make any future revision necessary, it is understood the principle will be maintained that the amounts paid to Great Britain must be proportionate to those paid to the United States.

MIDDLETOWN, July 13—(AP)—An all day investigation failed to establish the identity of the body of a man found floating in the Connecticut river here yesterday. FEELING LOTS BETTER NOW

Writes Ethel May Snider Who Used Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Hartford City, Ind.—Doing housework and taking care of a sick woman proved to be too much for Ethel May Snider, R. R. 1 of Hartford City, until she started taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Overwork had so undermined her health that she had to give up all outside work, and when she saw this medicine advertised in the "Star" and other papers, she went to a druggist and got a bottle of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. She took it regularly, was greatly benefited and now feels very much better.

Ethel May Snider's experience is similar to that of thousands of other women in all walks of life, who have sent testimonials to the Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Company of Lynn, Mass.

From Maine to California, from Wisconsin to Texas, and from Nebraska to Florida letters are received every day from grateful women who say the Vegetable Compound has helped to restore their health.

As the march from Lohengrin was played by Miss Ellen Prior, the officiating clergyman, Rev. E. E. Scates, with the groom and best man, Albert Franklin, the bride's brother, entered the vestry door. VENDERS AND SOLICITORS TO BE CLEARED OUT BY POLICE

(Special to the Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, July 12—This city is not to permit solicitors of alms to station themselves on the curb, and while selling shoestrings, pencils, etc., ask people who pass to donate to them. The presence of strikers from Passaic, N. J., in the city selling flowers to raise money to help strikers at the mills in New Jersey, brought the matter to a crisis. J. P. T. Armstrong sent a letter to the city council and that body paid heed to what the letter said. The city manager's attention was called to it and to the fact that the Community Chest, when donated to, was, the people were told, to get rid of all solicitors. The Chest did nothing of the sort. Now the city manager has communicated with the captain of police and that official has declared that no more begging is to be allowed. He also suggested to the councilor that the members should be slow to give permission to fakirs and beggers in the streets as they did to the Passaic strikers to sell flowers.

City Manager Holt was asked by the council to report on the various parcels of real estate on Pequot avenue that had been wrongfully assessed and he is to do that as soon as possible. He will have the report ready for the next meeting of the council.

There were a dozen applications for permission to build and alter property. A cottage and a bungalow were among the new structures proposed, but the great majority of the applications were for garages and for alterations for the enclosing of verandas and porches. All permits asked for were granted.

There seemed a lack of interest in the meeting this evening, for the session had an attendance of only seven persons in the gallery.

WESTERLY

COUNCIL HEARS PROTEST ON HACKNEY ORDINANCES

(Special to the Bulletin)

WESTERLY, R. I., July 12. — The July session of the Westerly town council, lasting from nearly 10 a. m. until after the noon hour Monday, was a busy one. There were present Council President John D. Nichols, Councilmen Trainor, Nardone, Smith and Holdsworth, the absentees being Councilmen Coleman and Moore. Also present were Council Clerk Whipple and Town Solicitor Ferguson.

Newman F. Tuckerman, of 102 High street, garage keeper and operator of auto trucks, appeared before the council to voice his complaint about what he termed the unfairness of the Westerly hackney ordinance. He said that he had been brought into court and fined for operating without a hackney license and added that other people in the same business as himself were operating without such license. In the operation of his school bus his registration fee was $40 and hackney license $30 and that he had a truck which he registered for $19. Among his competitors were busses which were loaded until no more could get in, while he was limited to the number for which he paid. As an example of unfair competition, he said a man was caught operating a touring car who had a bus franchise from the state of Rhode Island for a car which was not registered as a hackney. He said that busses which did not have a Westerly hackney license came over loads. His hackney license expired June 15th for which he was required to pay at a year's rate and he was also charged a full year's rate for his succeeding one. His registration under the R. I. state board was paid for proportionately to the part of the year used.

The council asked Town Solicitor Ferguson to enlighten them on the matters complained about. Mr. Ferguson said that Mr. Tuckerman had been unfair to his first complaint as he had been given a chance to hold the bus franchise from the state of R. I. and had declined, owing to the expense involved and when he was prosecuted in court he had been warned to procure a hackney license. He said the reference to the bus owner probably referred to Mr. Mooney who had a driver, as he claimed without his knowledge, drive a touring car to Ashaway and used as a hackney, for which he had said he would have the man discharged. Mr. Tuckerman said that Mr. Mooney must have known about the case for he had witnesses who said Mr. Mooney accompanied him. Mr. Ferguson said that Westerly authorities had no jurisdiction over vehicles from Connecticut, but that Westerly police were watching the hackney situation very carefully. The hackney ordinance exempted auto operators having certificates of convenience and necessity from the Rhode Island state board of public utilities and if the holders of such certificates persisted in breaking laws, then they had power to revoke their licenses. The expense to the owners of busses for each bus under the state law was from $500 to $1,000 a bus a year and if any action was contemplated by the council, he hoped Chief of Police Brown would be heard by the council in to matter. Mr. Tuckerman brought the $25 charge for carrying passengers too high and compared charges with those in New York Solicitor Ferguson said the Westerly ordinance was similar to the one in Woonsocket, Providence and Pawtucket and that the desire was to regulate the hackney operation so that there would be no flood of service in pleasant weather and none when the weather was stormy. Both Solicitor Ferguson and Mr. Tuckerman agreed that the matter became a pretty close question, when a bus franchise owner operated his busses or trucks otherwise than on his own routes. The council took no action.

Frank W. Coy, Westerly real estate operator, asked the council if they thought the town of Westerly wanted to be responsible for its tax collector making collections for which they had no right. He said, "I am proud of my town, but ashamed of this deal," referring to collection of back taxes advertised and heavy costs required to be paid to release property. On this matter Mr. Coy has appeared before the council on several previous occasions, the last time Councilman Holdsworth having been named a council committee to investigate. Councilman Holdsworth told Mr. Coy that he was unwilling to have the town go to the expense of heavy council fees in looking up the matter. To this Mr. Coy replied that he had given him the names of two attorneys to go and see who would not obligate the town, and "You haven't, although you promised to, and I don't think you mean to" he added. Mr. Holdswoth assured Mr. Coy that he was wrong and that he would see them at an early date. Expressing satisfaction with the promise, Mr. Coy question, "If the town council wanted to see the people of Westerly robbed?"

In voting the payment of the bills for June the council directed that the bill of Dr. John W. Helfrich for services to injured school janitor amounting to $15 be sent back to the school committee. Voted paid were police payroll, $1,003; town hall janitor, $140; town officers, $846.46 and police bills, $212.56. Water works bills, $4,168.31; sewer bills, $5310.08 and poor department bills, $336.17.

Miscellaneous bills, $214.63; town hall, $118.74; Mother's Aid, $2.06; printing and advertising, $145.77; interest, $150; town officers, $113.80; street lights, $1,481.98; and town advertising account, $1,000. On the payment of the last bill a previous vote was found where Daniel F. Larkin was to audit bills of this fund and it was also announced that the budget figure would be exceeded. Other bills of this nature are to be sent to the Westerly chamber of commerce.

As at frequent previous council sessions since last February, Mrs. Theresa Trebisacci of 67 Pleasant street and Mrs. Marietta Rose of 8 Rose avenue were present before the council to complain in unison of unsanitary and intolerable conditions near their homes resulting from refuse matter, including matter from slaughter houses which had been thrown into a brook (now dried up) from which the stench arose. Four slaughter houses, as named by Councilman Trainer, 47 Pierce street, 50 Pleasant street, 83 Pierce street and 62 Pleasant street, are in the vicinity and he told the complainants that the council had ordered the cleaning of the brook, but to care for the trouble in a proper manner it would take four or five thousand dollars which meant a special financial town meeting. "Why was it not put in the call when the widening of High street was acted upon, queried Mrs. Rose. "It is funny people of Watch Hill, Elm street and Grove avenue get things when they want them, but not the Italian people of Westerly." Both women went into detail as to the unsanitary conditions and agreed to go to abutting property owners along the brook to see if the people most benefitted would bear a proportionate part of the expense of installing a section of drains explained by Engineer Thomas McKenzie at the June council meeting. Solicitor Ferguson said that if signed agreements could be obtained, the work could be undertaken.

Victualizing house licenses were voted James Reale, J. Leo Howard, Henry J. Rivard, Wayland A. Saunders. A boarding house license was voted John Hasbevis and a pool room license to Thomas Salemmino. Milk dealers' licences were voted John L. Davis, Michael D. G. Papalia, C. Palmer Chapman, James Reale and Charles M. Lamb.

Superintendent of health, Dr. Samuel C. Webster made a report of 15 cases of contageous diseases during the month of June as follows: Cerebrospinal meningitis, one case; measles, 13 cases and ophtalmia neonatorum, one case. Unsanitary conditions were reported about slaughter houses in town and also that infected cows had been slaughtered in town and meat sold across counters. In view of these conditions the appointment of a meat inspector by the council was recommended in the report. Solicitor Ferguson consulted the statutes and found that town councils had authority to appoint inspectors of beef and pork, whose remuneration would be by salary or fees. The councilmen were convinced of the necessity of a licensed slaughter house in Westerly, preferably on some farm on the outskirts of the town. A Westerly butcher reported that laws would not permit him to slaughter cattle on his Connecticut farm and bring the meat into Rhode Island. The appointment of an inspector was passed over to the next council session and in the meantime the police department will be directed to procure evidence of unsanitary practices which would constitute a nuisance, under which condition the council had the authority of abatement. Old fees under the statute for inspectors as allowed was 10 cents for each barrel of beef and 25 for certificates issued.

The council voted to approve the action of the Westerly town treasurer in his lauling of two of the town's notes dated June 30th and due Dec. 30th at 4 1-2 per cent, to care for town indebtedness.

Report of Chief of Police Thomas E. Brown for June showed 15 arrests as follows: Operation of automobile recklessly, 2; operation of automobile not equipped with proper brakes, 2; intoxication, 4; operation of automobile under the influence of liquor, 1; illegal possession of intoxicating liquors, 5; and the driving of an automobile without an operator's license, 1. One person was taken into custody and eight liquor raids were made.

A petition was received for the installation of electric lights near the Blackler soda water works and the matter was referred to the lighting committee of the council.

Forest fire wardens bills amounting to $235.50 were voted paid. One-half of this amount upon the presentation of vouchers and the council vote is repaid to the town of Westerly by the state of Rhode Island.

Contrasting with the complaint of Mrs. Trebisacci and Mrs. Rose, who claimed that Italian people of Westerly were given last consideration, was a letter addressed to President Campbell formerly of the council, and read by the clerk, from Lydia Richmon, 102 Main street. She directed the council to see that her land was not trespassed upon when improvements were made to that section of Main street in the rebuilding of the highway and that she be given a lawful and proper notice of any contemplated change of grades or lines in closing she said that "all was done to help the Italians and Jews."

Councilman Holdsworth called the attention of the council to the burning of rubbish and disposing of rubbish on High street. The council voted that the president of the council appoint a committee to look into the town farm site as to its suitability for a public dump. Councilman Holdsworth was named by the council president a committee with power to name associates as the committee.

Councilman Issaac G. Smith, in reply to request by Town Treasurer Pendleton at the last council session, at which he was not present, reported that arrangements had been made with John Wall for supervision of the town accounting system by him of one day a quarter, and payment for which would come within the appropriation as estimated by him.

A list of thirty itinerant vendors was presented to the councilmen by the town clerk, of which it was thought best for Chief of Police Brown to make a survey. At the same time it was also recommended that the chief make a survey of other licenses as granted by the council which issue from the Westerly Town Clerk's office.

Before final adjournment an amendment was voted to the General Ordinances of the Town of Westerly, entitled, "Traffic."

This is a new parking law which covers the beach sections of Westerly at Watch Hill and Pleasant View for automobiles and is operative from 9 a. m. to 5 p. m., from the last Saturday in June to the second Saturday in September of each year as follows:

Frank Pescatello of New London was found guilty, Monday morning before Judge William A. Wilcox in a session of Stonington Town court of passing on the wrong side of a silent policeman in Mystic, having received a court summons from State Trooper Arthur Whitemarsh of the Groton barracks. He not only paid a fine of $10 and costs, amounting to $30.04 but also $55.44 damages to the automobile of Herbert W. Stevens, of Deep River, with which he collided at the junction of the state road with Dennison avenue.

For a second time Joseph Cerrullo of New Canaan failed to put in an appearance, to answer to a charge of reckless driving on Saturday, June 3rd, when he passed the Site at an accident at a high rate of speed. The first summons directed his appearance in court on July 6th, and was continued to July 13th when he did not appear. The court gave instructions to State Trooper Whitemarsh to personally visit New Canaan and have the respondent in Stonington Town court Monday morning next.

The steam shovel of Samuel Nardone was removed Monday morning from the 3rd corner of High and Canal street where it is being excavated for a new business block. The shovel was taken to the property of Peter A. DeRocco, rear of the Alba Inn, owned by him, facing Canal street. Work was begun on the north side of the rear driveway where excavation is being made for a cellar for the old Lemual Vose house, on High street, recently occupied by Dr. John Rossi and Louis Silverstein. The house has been purchased from Samuel Nardone by Mr. DeTorres, who will have the house cut in two and the two sections moved back to the site being prepared for it.

Improvements are being made in the roadbed of the New Haven railroad near the Westerly waiting station, by a large number of section men under Foreman Myron Plympton. Old and worn wooden ties are to be replaced by new ones and the rail readjusted.

The family of J. Frederick Byers of Pittsburgh, arrived in Westerly Monday morning on the New England express and proceeded to Watch Hill to take up their summer residence at Cedarhurst, Aquidneck avenue.

Thin Rickety Children Find Sturdy Health in New Food Help

New Form of Natural Food Builds Up Frail, Puny Bodies

Children who are pale, thin and listless are seriously ill. They need immediate help to bring them back to the radiant health and strength that is the right of childhood.

Oftimes the little weakened bodies are unable to extract from their daily food the necessary supply of the vital food factors such as vitamins, lime, phosphorous, and iron.

Lack of these elements in childhood means rickety bones and poor teeth throughout life.

Science has recently found the way to concentrate all these vital elements into pleasant, easy-to-take tablets called McCoy's Cod Liver Oil Compound Tablets. Everybody knows how wonderful Cod Liver Extract is to build children up to normal weight and give them strong bones and sound teeth.

But many sickly children cannot take it because of its nasty, fishy taste and odor. Now in McCoy's Tablets all these objections are removed. They contain the vital elements of Cod Livers without the disagreeable oil and they are made doubly effective by the addition of other well-known body building ingredients.

If your children are not growing and gaining weight as they should, don't delay a day to give them these wonderful McCoy's Tablets. So remarkable have been their results in literally thousands of cases, they are now sold by Lee & Osgood Co., or your favorite druggist anywhere with a specific guarantee to add at least 5 pounds of healthy flesh after 30 days' use or your money will be instantly refunded.

Protect your child's health, fortify his strength for future years. Give him the priceless gift of sound teeth throughout life by beginning treatment with McCoy's Tablets today. 60 for 60 cents.

Come Out of the Kitchen!

Grandmother might have been shocked by such a suggestion, for she was "kitchen-minded" from necessity.

For some years, Swift & Company, however, has been working to relieve the modern housewife of continuous kitchen work. Now, in addition to the many less expensive cuts adaptable to steam pressure and fireless cooker preparation, the housewife has the service of cooked meats.

"Ready-to-serve" meats are now available everywhere, for Swift & Company's nation-wide channels of distribution offer prompt and direct service to retailers.

These meats, in great variety and delightfully appetizing, have revolutionized the work of the housewife, especially during the hot summer months.

Such products as:

Swift's Premium Cooked Ham
Swift's Premium Minced Specialty
Swift's Premium Bologna
Swift's Baked Luncheon Loaf
Swift's Pimento Sandwich Meats
Swift's Sterling Delicacy

are available throughout the year. This is another feature of "Swift Service" — and a timely use of them will vary the monotony of ordinary meals.

LOCATION OF MUNITION STATIONS

Even before the full extent of the explosions in New Jersey are known there is a quandary as to what steps will be taken in regard to the establishment of these storage areas for explosives of various kinds.

It is quite natural that there should be a disposition on the part of the state of New Jersey to oppose relocation of these plants. They are in isolated places and they are surrounded with such safety that danger is minimized except in such "an act of God" as started the trouble last week, but there is bound to be a feeling that a menace exists during times of peace which ought not to be and that despite the fact that no one concerned in the casualty last week for the most part those who were employed by some department of the government and would be expected to be wherever a munitions plant was located.

On the other hand it is pointed out that the government has taken care to locate the naval and army arsenals and munition stations in New Jersey so far as known they have been surrounded with adequate means of protection and located in out of the way places but where they can depend upon in case of necessity for speedy and without subjection to more communities than necessary to the dangers that may accompany the transportation.

Is there any greater danger in having these stations located in New Jersey than would be the case elsewhere? Is a question that is bound to be considered by the government. The resident in New Jersey apparently seems to think there is, and there are those who, like the governor of that state feel that the federal authorities are more competent to decide.

The matter cannot be controlled in any other state any better than it is in New Jersey and it doesn't appear that it has been the cause of the explosions in that state previously. Nevertheless it is the greatest necessity for the greatest number of people desired and when it comes to safety nothing should be allowed to stand in the way. When it comes to dealing with lightning that is a different matter.

UNIFORMITY IS DESIRABLE

With the constantly increasing interests connected with automobiles it has been long apparent that there must be an extension of the uniformity of the regulations. There are many requirements and restrictions which are quite as necessary in California as they are in Connecticut and in the interest of a better understanding among motorists and a greater compliance with the regulations and provisions there is need of uniform laws.

Thus when the National Safety Council through surveys becomes convinced of the wisdom and benefits attached to such a move it must be given credit for doing the right thing when it decides to concentrate its efforts upon securing uniform state laws from the legislatures of the forty-eight states at their next sessions. It will be no easy task to induce the states to agree to what the national council or any other organization may recommend. Probably it is too much to expect that all will "fall in line" at the first request and it is to be believed that it will ultimately show when the good results of uniformity are tried by many of the states and the benefits noted.

It is hard to be supposed that such regulations would govern the traffic regulations of cities for local conditions would not be met by local regulations, but there is no reason why there shouldn't be the same regulations regarding signals, regarding brakes, right of the road, cutting in, signalling compliance of drivers, passing on grades and at curves, safety at grade crossings driving in vicinity of school houses and speeding.

If the driver in one state knew that he must comply with these requirements in all other states he would do it with more certainty and know what to expect. When he has to try to comply with a different code of regulations in each state, in addition to the local community regulations, he is apt constantly in hot water and allowances have to be made for him because he is recognized as from another state where they do things differently. There's no real reason for the difference except the failure to come to some agreement that will establish a common ground and therefore greater respect and greater safety.

FOREST PROTECTION

Considering the vast resources in timber which Canada is supposed to have, it might not be expected that it would be required to be spending money for the preservation of its forests, and yet the dominion appears to have recognized the importance of doing something in this direction before it is too late. Instead of waiting until the end of its timber supply is in sight before taking steps to insure a future supply it is moving now with regard for the necessity of getting the benefit of that stitch which saves nine.

By the report of the minister of the interior a million dollars a year is being spent by the dominion in behalf of its forests. It is indeed an excellent policy and undoubtedly will pay large dividends in the years to come. Forests need to be conserved, they need to be guarded against fire and they should get the benefit of reforestation work.

It is possible for the woodman to go into the forests and cut until there is nothing left. That would mean the sudden awakening some day to the fact that there is a time when such inroads would be obliged to stop for lack of material, but before that time arrived different tactics would have to be employed. Canada isn't awaiting such a state of affairs. It anticipates the inevitable, and it is providing funds yearly to prevent. By the conservation of the supply and the prevention of much waste, by the setting out of new tree on cut-over areas and by the protection against destructive forest fires the dominion will insure an endless supply of timber even with the increasing demands.

Canada is doing only what European countries have long been obliged to do, what is being done in this country and what must be done anywhere there is a greater yearly consumption than there is replacement. It is folly to wait until the horse is stolen before locking the door and Canada shows it appreciates the truth of that old adage.

THE MILITARY CAMPS

There are camps and camps. There are those where the chief object is pleasure and there are those where it is training. This is the season of the year when both are going business at capacity, and whether it is the pleasure or the military camp New London county provides the camping grounds for large numbers.

For the certain of Connecticut's military organization there are camps out side of the state which offer them the opportunity for outings on the use of big guns but for the infantry companies the tour of duty at Niantic follows the practice of many years.

Spending the required time in camp is part of the service expected of the members of the state's various organizations. It is primarily for the training that can be obtained in no other way but there is the social side of camp life which is never overlooked by the company members. Camp provides an event in the lives of many young men which is never duplicated elsewhere. It is of much benefit in a physical way, quite the same as the drills throughout the year, but there is the discipline and application to duty which never fail to play a conspicuous part in the years to come for these citizens.

For the protection of the people of the state and the enforcement of law and order the military organizations are required. If they are to be maintained it is desirable that they should be efficient and it is in the attainment of greater efficiency that the tour of service at the camps is required each year. The time which is devoted to such training could easily be put to a much less beneficial use, the individual, to the community and to the state. Connecticut hopes that their services will be required in no other way than in the daily service and at camp but it wants them ready for whatever the unexpected may bring forth.

JOHN W. WEEKS

Stricken while at the head of the war department of the government death has a number of months later claimed former Senator John W. Weeks of Massachusetts who's public service was long and valuable.

From the time that he was called upon to serve as an alderman in Newton, Mass., until he had completed several years service as a member of the cabinet, including service in both houses of congress, John W. Weeks was called from one position of responsibility to another through recognition of his ability, his devotion to whatever cause he undertook and the sterling characteristics of the man. He was always found true to whatever cause he supported, an indefatigable worker, a man of strong convictions and sound judgment.

It was with a full sense of the loss it had sustained when his sudden illness deprived the administration of the benefits of his assistance, and it was not until it was apparent that his health would not permit of a resumption of his duties that his resignation was accepted as a member of the cabinet. At different times his name had been put forth for nomination of president of the United States, one of the evidences of the regard in which he was held.

Massachusetts, New England and the country have reasons to feel proud of the services he has rendered as a public servant and to regret that his career has been brought to a close when so many years of usefulness seemed only a short time ago to have been before him. In the death of John W. Weeks a distinct loss has been sustained by those who knew him as a friend and those who knew him by his activities.

HABIT

Carnaby concluded that it was his own fault. He sat looking at the spread-out bills on his desk and twirled his fountain pen mechanically. He had been careless and too easy.

When he and Gertrude were first married they had lived in a cute three-room apartment. That was when it had started and when he should have settled things once for all. When Gertrude had met him, pink cheeked, sparkling eyed and had pouted because the bride in the flat above had silk damask sofa cushions and she wanted some too, instead of those cheap old things, it had been all wrong for him to skimp on his lunches for weeks in order to gratify her longing.

Then had come newer rugs, newer china, newer gowns, newer everything! As they had gone up the world so had Gertrude's desires increased.

Carnaby had been married 12 years and it was long enough for him to realize that Gertrude was keenly clever in getting her own way.

He had gone against his better judgment in nearly every instance in order to get Gertrude whatever it was she thought she simply had to have. And he had saved nothing. It had to stop.

He flipped over the month's bills grimly. New fur coat, because she had worn the other for three years and Jessie had the dandiest new one—the girls sniffed as if one's clothes were outdated. New set of dessert plates—no they simply could not use the Dresden plates they had bought last year—didn't he realize that every one used glass these days and with the Emperors coming to dinner!

New walnut coffee table to replace the little pie-crust mahogany one she had acquired so delightedly five years back when Emeline had roused her envy by owning one. Silk hosiery, silk and wool jersey, five new pairs of slippers, a new metal cloth evening gown.

Carnaby's lips tightened. How Gertrude must good-humoredly scorn him, for women in their hearts had no use for weak men and he certainly had not been strong. She might have wept, but would she not have secretly admired him more if he had coldly and brutally sat down upon her extravagance years ago and refused to be wheedled?

If he had calmly stated that a certain percentage of his income from then on was to be saved against the future and that she must live on a personal allowance and figure out for herself what she could have and what she couldn't? Well, what was the difficulty in starting that line right now? There would be trouble, storms, unhappiness, but afterward they would settle down into peace and common sense.

He would do it—get rid of this debt incubus and look up that attractive bond proposition which the young salesman had put up to him a day or so ago—start their financial affairs on a sensible basis.

The mere decision brought him relief. The worry that constantly lay back of his mind was fading. He should have taken this stand years ago instead of delaying, drifting, futile protesting. He had been criminally negligent, to put it honestly. As he looked the last bill the desk phone rang and it was Gertrude's voice that came over the wire.

"Howard," she began in the breathless way he knew so well, "you know that oval Chinese rug I've been dying for so long and wouldn't get because it is so expensive? That one that would fit in just right before the console table? Well, they're marked it down today to $225—think of it! We'll never get such a bargain again! I—I've ordered it sent up—it's all right, isn't it?"

She ended with a little catch in her voice. He hesitated, getting his thoughts in order. He wanted to do it in the kindest way. A vision of the rug now in front of the console smote him—homely thing. Chinese rugs were lovely and at the markdown price this certainly was a bargain. It really would make the hall over having it.

"Howard?" came over the wire anxiously.

"All right," he said shortly. "Just this once—but honestly, Gertrude, it's got to stop!"

"Yes, Howard," she agreed happily. "You can't imagine how economical I'm going to be, truly!"—Chicago News.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Tock II of Palisade

Mr. Editor: Referring to the piece in your paper of July 12th, regarding the New London dog show where it makes mentions of Mrs. Brown's well known Tock II of Palisade taking third prize. I would like to say that to me, the judging of the shepherds, was a farce. It was quite clearly a case of where the "real" article was put aside for something "made over". From the "once over" my dog got when he entered the ring, I am fully convinced that he was judged before he ever entered it, but the judgment he did receive does not belittle him for one moment, for I have been told by a man who knows a German shepherd where he sees one that my dog was bred when they bred "real" dogs, and he is right, for my Tock II comes directly from the stock that went "over the top" with our boys and fought side by side with them, lovingly and faithfully, giving their all till the final sound of taps. Those were the "real" dogs, and they need no ribbon of any color to make them such, and I am proud to say, I own such a dog.

Brunolf of Pine Tree receiving the special for being the best dog in New London County does not make him the best dog by any means. His owner must remember that there are a great many beautiful and wonderful shepherds in New London County yet to be judged before anyone can claim ownership to the "best" dog in the county.

I entered my dogs in the spirit of fun, for the joke of the thing, and still consider it a good joke.

ISABEL BROWN.

Stories That Recall Others

Cincinnati in Three Letters

R. B. age four was spending the afternoon with his Auntie Blanche. They were making name of places with small pastboard letters. After making several R. B. said: "Auntie Blanche, let's make Cincinnati."

Auntie Blanche said: "We haven't enough letters, R. B."

"Oh, yes, we have," replied R. B., "it's only W. L. W."

He Talked Too Much

The motorist was pushing on the gas when he heard a "honk, honk" of a Ford behind him and widened the distance between them by a few more pushes on the accelerator.

In a few minutes the man in the Ford was behind him again honking. Tiring of this sport the fellow ahead pulled to one side and let the Ford pass. Reaching the next roadside stand he decided to stop and get a sandwich and noticed the man that passed him in the Ford ahead.

"Say", said the motorist, "what kind of an engine have you in that Ford?"

"Oh, she'll go 44 miles an hour," said the stranger.

"Forty four," said the motorist. "Why I was going 45 miles wh n you passed me."

"I know it," grinned the stranger as he pulled back his coat and showed his badge. And it cost the motorist $22.50 to square himself with the law.

Solution of Yesterday's Puzzle

BURGESS BEDTIME STORIES

The Giant Who Wasn't a Giant

Appearances so oft deceive,
'Tis hard to know what to believe.
—Danny Meadow Mouse.

When Peep, the smallest of the Sandpipers, together with his friends and relatives flew away from the mudpatch, on the edge of which Danny Meadow Mouse was sitting, Danny was greatly disappointed. He missed the feathered folk of the Green Meadows. Down here on the salt marsh near the seashore he saw none of the feathered folk of his acquaintance. So he was eager to make new acquaintances. Peep and his companions had appeared such sociable little folk as they ran this way and that over the mudpatch that Danny had felt that they would be neighbors worth while. But away they had gone before he really had had a chance to make their acquaintance.

"I wish I had somebody to talk to," said Danny. "There's a lot I want to know, and however am I going to find out things if I can't ask questions? I shall come over here every day and perhaps I may get really acquainted with Peep and his friends. Now I wonder who that is whistling? It isn't Farmer Brown's Boy, because Farmer Brown's Boy isn't over here at the seashore. It is just as loud a whistle as Farmer Brown's Boy, though, I declare, I believe it is up in the air!"

Danny looked up. Then he squatted down so that the grass would hide him. A bird was coming his way. It was a big bird. At least, it looked big to Danny, and Danny is always suspicious of big birds. This one was whistling. There was no doubt about it, that whistle was coming from this bird.

"Whyee!" exclaimed Danny to himself. "It must be a Giant Sandpiper! Yes, sir, that fellow must be a Giant Sandpiper! Anyway, he looks a lot like Peep and Teeter, the two Sandpipers I know, only he is ever so much bigger. His bill is longer and his legs are longer and his neck is longer. I wish he would come down where I might have a good look at him."

It was as if the stranger had heard him. He swung around just above Danny, his long legs stretched out behind and his long neck and long bill stretched straight out in front. As he passed over Danny his pointed wings were set and he sailed. Then he began to beat his wings again and presently once more he sailed. Two or three times he circled around that mudpatch before making up his mind to come down. Then, with his wings set he sailed down until he could drop his long legs and touch the mud. He ran a few steps, then stopped, stretched his wings straight up above his back, and finally folding them carefully. For a moment he stood there with head up, looking and listening, a picture of watchfulness. Then, satisfied that there was no danger, he began to run about in the shallow water in the middle of that patch of mud. Danny suspected that he was catching tiny fish in there, and this is exactly what he was doing.

"I'm Tattler the Yellow-legs," replied the stranger

At last the stranger came out of the water and began to pick up things on the mud. So at last it happened that he was very close to Danny. His legs were yellow. His neck and breast were white or grayish heavily spotted with dark, and his back was dark spotted with white. His long bill was black. As he stood in front of Danny he teetered on those long legs of his somewhat after the manner of Teeter the Spotted Sandpiper, whom Danny had known at the Smiling Pool.

Danny moved ever so little. Instantly the stranger's bright eyes were fixed on him and the stranger's wings were lifted just a little as if for flight. "Don't go!" squeaked Danny. "Please don't go."

"Who are you?" demanded the stranger.

"Im Danny Meadow Mouse. If you please who are you?"

"I'm Tattler the Yellow-legs," replied the stranger.

Makes Statement On Collision

Mrs. Winifred A. Egit of Baltic, with whose automobile a machine driven by F. Samuel Wilcox was in collision about noon Saturday on Laurel Hill avenue, stated Monday that she was driving her machine out of Summer street onto Laurel Hill avenue intending to turn to the left toward New London and that her car was barely rolling. The Wilcox machine, she said, approached at a good rate of speed on Laurel Hill avenue, headed toward the city. When young Wilcox saw that he could not stop he steered to the left side of the street to pass her, she said, and she steered to the right to avoid a head-on collision. When the Wilcox car hit hers, the former car was on the extreme left of the street, she said.

LISBON GIRL FOUND BRUTALLY BEATEN BEHIND STONE WALL

Brutally attacked and beaten while on her way home from work about 5 o'clock Monday night, Anna Donnelly, 14 year old daughter of James W. Donnelly, of Bundy Hill road, off the Newent highway in Lisbon, is a patient at the W. W. Backus hospital, where her condition is considered to be serious.

The attack was one of the most vicious assaults made in this vicinity in many years, the girl's face being practically beaten to a pulp, her left eye dangerously cut, nose broken, lips ripped and her skull possibly fractured. Her torn clothing indicated a desperate struggle before she was beaten into unconsciousness and attacked.

The girl had left her place of employment, the J. B. Martin plant at Taftville, about 4.20 o'clock in the afternoon and at about 4.45 o'clock reached the top of the hill at Blissville, where she talked for a short time with friends before continuing on the Blissville school and the Bundy Hill road. The girl evidently had proceeded up this road a short distance, then, as was her custom, started off across lots a distance of about a quarter of a mile, to her home.

The fiendish assault took place soon after she entered the woodland for marks on the ground near the wall along the road indicated that her head had been driven into the ground with great force by her assailant. The attack probably took place at about five o'clock and she was left for dead by her assailant.

When the young woman failed to arive home at 5 o'clock her people became alarmed but believed that she was coming home at a later hour than usual. When 7 o'clock came and she had not arrived, her brother, Leonard Donnelly, with a friend, started down the road in search of her. In passing the wooded section near the shack owned by a Mr. Stengel, groans were heard and the young men found the girl in a semi-conscious state behind a stone wall, her face and clothing stained in blood which flowed from deep cuts inflicted by some heavy instrument.

She was rushed to her home and Dr. E. J. Brophy was summoned. On his arrival Dr. Brophy sewed up the wounds on her head and face and immediately sent for the ambulance of the Backus hospital He then completed the task of caring for her wounds and called in Dr. Leon LaPierre to examine the left eye of the girl as a deep cut above it endangered the sight.

An X-ray is to be taken this (Tuesday) morning to determine whether or not the girl is suffering with a fracture of the skull.

As soon as the physicians were summoned the family notified Constable Aubrey Potter of Lisbon, who got in touch with the Norwich police and Sheriff John H. Dolan of Jewett City. Sergeant Matthew Delaney was sent to assist the Lisbon authorities in the investigation of the assault and at a later hour State Policeman Nelson was ordered into the investigation.

It was hoped that the girl would be able to give some clue to the identity of her assailant but she remained in a semi-conscious state throughout the night and could give the officers no clue by which they could trace down the inhuman brute that attacked her.

The girl had been in the habit of cutting across lots to her home and it is believed that someone familiar with this habit had lain in wait for her and attacked her from behind as she followed the path through the woods.

SUBMARINE FOR PERU LAUNCHED AT GROTON

New London, Conn., July 13—(AP)—The submarine R-1, built for the Peruvian government, was launched today at the plant of the New London Ship & Engine company in Groton. During the ceremony, Mrs. Maria Merger De Onteneda, wife of Lieutenant Commander Pablo Onteneda, commanding officer of the craft, broke a bottle of Peruvian wine on the bow of the vessel. She was acting for the sponsor, Miss Isabel Leguia, daughter of Dr. Augusto B. Leguia, president of the republic of Peru.

The R-1 is being furnished under a contract issued to the Electric Boat company covering two submarine torpedo boats, a naval base to be erected by the Electric Boat company on San Lorenzo Island, Peru, and a number of torpedoes. It is expected that the R-1 will be ready for trials early in August. The vessel is 200 feet long, has a displacement of 300 tons, a surface speed of 14 1-2 knots, a submerged speed of ten knots and a surface radius of 5,000 miles.

COUNTY DETECTIVE TO HAVE OPERATION ON ARM

County Detective William Lewis, who lives in New London, went to the New Haven hospital Monday, where he will undergo an operation upon his arm, when what is known as an open reduction, will be preformed.

County Detective Lewis was forced off the road by an unidentified car several months ago, while he was driving from Norwich to New London, during investigation of an arson case. The officer's car was badly damaged and he sustained four fractures in his arm. Three breaks were set properly but the fourth mended crooked and has retarded the action of the arm.

County Detective "Bill," as he is familiarly known to his many friends expects to be in the hospital two weeks and will then be obliged to keep the arm in a cast for some time after. He started on his annual vacation Monday and will spend it in having his arm restored to normal use.

Notice of an appeal to the supreme court from the decision of Judge Earnest C. Simpson of the superior court in which judgment of $7,500 was awarded to Thomas E. NORWICH TOWN BOY HOME AFTER SUBMARINE CRUISE

Chief Signalman Robert Wells Sterry, who for several years has served in the navy, has been passing nearly two weeks wit hhis relatives in Norwich Town, since returning from a nineteen months' cruise. He was assigned to submarine S-24, which is a fleet of submarines left New London November 22nd, 1924 for Hawaii on manoeuvres. The fleet at first operated for about six weeks out of Pensacola, in the northwestern part of Florida, from which the cruise was taken up to Colon, Panama, where a stay of ten days was made. The next stop was at Perlas Islands, sixty miles south of Panama, in the Pacific, thence to Balboa for a stay of one week.

When leaving Balboa, in February 1925, the fleet cruised in company with the scouting fleet to a point 800 miles southwest of San Diego.

After taking part in manoeuvres there the craft proceeded to San Diego accompanying the Battle Fleet which participated in the manoeuvres. There a stay of three weeks was made, arriving about March 15th, 1925. Leaving San Diego with the battle fleet, the next stop, April 5th, was at San Francisco, remaining there until the 15th of that month, on which date the entire fleets left for the Hawaiian manoeuvres. Before arriving at Pearl Harbor, T. H., April 27th, three days' practice took place, previous to landing on Pearl Island. The stay in Hawaii was from April 27th until June 1st. During this time, Chief Signalman Sterry renewed acquaintence with friends in the family of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Case, former Bliss place residents. Their eldest son, Leonard has been most successful in laboratory work for the government, while their other son, Lloyd is district veterinarian. Both are graduates of Cornell university, Ithaca, N. Y. Dr. Lloyd Case is reputed to have become wealthy since locating in Honolulu, 11 years ago. The daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Case, formerly Miss Irma Case, like her brothers, has been most succesful financially in the work in which she engaged, prior to her marriage a few years ago. Her home is situated on an island about 30 miles from her relatives' home.

Signalman Sterry when communicating by telephone with Dr. Case, received a cordial invitation to be his guest at dinner. This proved a most enjoyable meeting for these Norwich Town people after so many years.

While in Hawaiian waters, the entire United States fleet, comprising the Atlantic and Pacific, visited around on the different islands. All of the larger boats, the major part of the battle fleet steamed on a cruise to Australia, while the remaining submarines left after the Hawaiian manoeuvres, for Portland, Oregon, as the navy's representative at the Rose carnival there, in June 1925, arriving on the 12th, making a stay of one week.

From this point the next prospective was Mare Island Navy yard, at Vallejo, laying up for overhauling during July and August. Early in September 1925, the fleet left for the Diamond Jubilee, at San Francisco. The stay there was for one week, when the fleet returned to San Diego, having based there until February 1st, 1926, all this time, carrying out practice operations. February 1st, in company with the battle fleet, the start was made for Panama, arriving the 15th, of that month, and remaining until March 12th. During this period the fleets were engaged in joint fleet manoeuvres, which involved both army and navy. March 12th, the cruise was back to San Diego, arriving April 1st of the present year. There the fleet was based until Signalman Sterry's transfer to the east coast, June 12th. He arrived in Norwich the 17th of that month, making the trip overland.

Signalman Sterry has served in the navy 13 years, at first being attached to the Coast Guard. He is the second son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Sterry, of Norwich Town. He is now attached to submarine S-30, at the Submarine Base, assuming his new station Monday morning.

The S-50, is a sister craft to the S1, sunk off Block Island last September and just raised.

MUST PAY BILLS TO GET WILLIMANTIC WATER

(Special to the Bulletin)

WILLIMANTIC, July 13.—Considerable business, much of routine nature, was conducted in the 2 1-2 hour session of the common council tonight. Mayor John C. Tracy presided and all the aldermen were present.

There is danger that quite a number of citizens will go without a morning bath after Sept. 15 next, as a resolution adopted provides for the shutting off of water from users who have failed to pay back bills on water rents by that date. Several propositions for the purchasin of property by the city were taken up. To be included in the call of the next special city meeting held primarily to secure an appropriation for permanent street paving will be the following propositions: $2,400 to buy three lots, 240x130 feet, from the Quidnick-Windham Mfg. Co., to be used as an annex to the city yard on Washington street; $18,000 to buy the former Lincoln & Boss lumber yard, 230x80 feet, now owned by the Willimantic Lumber & Coal Co., on Meadow and North treets to be used as a municipal free parking space; also $3,000 additional for the regular police appropriation; and a sum to erect a garage at the city yard.

Mayor Tracy was authorized to name a committee of three to consider the purchase of the heavily wooded tract of land, 100 feet deep approximately running east from Bridge street along the south bank of the Willimantic river to the foot bridge now owned by Quidnick-Windham Co. This can be purchased for about $10,000 and the project is to develop it as a memorial park.

The mayor also inserts in the call for the special city meeting a clause asking for $15,000 to lay sewers on West Main street from Mansfield avenue to Holbrook avenue.

Through a resolution Wm. L. Smith, a member of Engine Co. No. 1, will be reimbursed for two periods of lost time due to injuries on duty. The resignation of Ernest Novigno, a call member of Hose Co. No. 2, was accepted and Gilbert J. Blackburn was appointed to his place.

An ordinance was adopted with the intent of remedying the public service car situation. For the sole occupancy of taxicabs, six spaces, three on each side, will be designated on Church street, between Main and Valley and four spaces on North street.

The board sounded a warning against the depletion of the water supply due to the dry spell and voted to instruct the superintendent of streets not to flush sewers except Meadow street, that no lawns be watered during the shortage and that the mayor and water committee purchase water if necessary.

The water at the pumping station is now two feet below the dam, several feet below normal for this time of the year.

LANDED LIQUOR AT BELLEVUE HOSPITAL DOCK

NEW YORK, July 13.—(AP)—Bootleggers have used Bellevue hospital dock at 26th street and East river as an landing stage for smuggled liquor, testimony in federal court revealed today.

The testimony was given by Charles A. Smith, self-styled agent for William V. Dwyer and his alleged "whiskey trust" at the trial of Dwyer and nine others charged with violation of prohibition laws.

Smith, who said he is now employed on a "treasury boat" at $50 a week, testified that between August, 1923, and February, 1925, he made numerous trips from Rum Row to Bellevue dock and unloaded Scotch, rye, champagne and sauterne from speedboats and loaded it on trucks while from two to four patrolmen in uniform looked on. For each of the trips, Smith said, he got $200.

Speedboats, which Smith said were maintained by Dwyer and his associates, were used to convey the contraband liquor from Rum Row to New York, Smith testified. Some times the smuggled intoxicants were landed at an Erie railroad pier in Weehawken, N. J., he testified, but most of it was landed at the hospital dock. Patrolmen, Smith testified, would give advice to motor truck drivers, but did not interfere with the unloading and loading of the liquor.

Descriptions of flights before coast guard cutters at Rum Row were given by Smith. He said that he was under instructions to use traffic lanes considered dangerous because Dwyer had told him that harbor police would not molest him in these lanes. Smith said he was a navy officer during the later part of the war, but was court-martialed for striking a fellow officer. He was given an ordinary discharge in 1918 after being disciplined in Portsmouth, N. H. barracks.

SUSIE TAKES UP THE ROYAL AND ANCIENT PASTIME OF GOLFING

Recovering from her eventful celebration of the grand and glorious Fourth, Susie indulged in the more sedate pastime of golfing and although she failed to break any records she thoroughly enjoyed herself.

Her letter follows:

Dear Sports Ed.:

Didja ever consider taking up that game of golf? Well if you ain't you has got something coming to you which you don't suspect. Of all the disappointing pastimes that golfs takes the marbles every time. There ain't much sense to it as far as I can see but I'm only a beginner and not a very good beginner at that whereby bangs the sum and substance of this letter.

Yep, the golf bug has moved in and taken a lease on that empty attic of mine. I've been given the needle for diptheria, tifoid and a lotta other things but never took no jabs against the golf bug bite. I guess they ain't found no cure for it except laying down in a horizontal position while somebody what you don't see pats you in the face with a shovel. Say, I bet some of them golf nuts has their clubs buried with them. But anyhow I has taken up golf or rather golf has taken me up and got a half-Nelson, a hammer-hold and a sissors-lock and has throwed me for a hole-in-one.

Well, my first experience was nothing to cause no great cheering and have the crowd on the club-house porch say "There's a kid what's going to be a Gleuns Collett." All they said was, "Oh, Lord lookit that dame digging holes in the fairway? Whatta swell time she's have had digging trenches for the A. E. F. in France." Well of course I could have done better with a shovel but a masher ain't so worse when you got plenty of time. A girl what swings a mean broom around the house can dig up a lotta turf on the golf linx in a afternoon with a masher.

After seeing that Hagen-Farrell matches early in the year I thinks golf ain't such a much of a game and any dub what ain't a candidate for the old folks home can play it. Yep, they can only some plays its worse than others but talks a getter game and other vise worser. In learning any game you gotta know the rules, skeeping golf, and in golf everybody makes his own rules if the other feller lets him get away with it. Well I bought me a book and read it from cover to cover but when I got through I knew less about golf than I did before. There's a few things that the book set me right about. I found that Bar ain't your paternal parent, and that a stymie ain't no place where pigs is kept, and that dormie ain't no nick-name for a college roominghouse. When you hit a ball outta bounds you gets penalized and it ain't no home run like in baseball. Birdies and eagles don't have no feathers in golf and a caddy ain't no popular make of auto. A caddy is a sarcastic youth what laughs inside but keeps a straight face when you flub your shots.

Well after absorbing a little knowledge from the rules I tries the game and, oh, boy, and its like waking up after dreaming you has more money than Rockafeller and finding that you has got to go back to the factory if you wantta eat. When you think you can show some of these golfers something even if you ain't played much you is all out of order. Talking and playing golf is two dogs of different colors. I know a feller what talks about his long drives when he couldn't hit a elephant with a bass fiddle. The most unexpected things happen in golf. The first time I took a healthy wallop at the ball I expects to sock it a mile but the darned thing must of been made of lead for it don't go more'n a coupla feet. I claims a foul but the boy friend who is trying to teach me the game says I gotta hit it where it lies. It laying right out in the open and ain't trying to hide on me so the friend says take a spoon for this shot. Well I looks all through that bag of sticks but there ain't no sign of no silverware so I takes the first club that I lays my hand on and belts that ball a mighty crack. There's a chunk of dirt what flies up and hits the boy friend in the neck and it being one of them hot days it don't improve his looks none nor yet his temper. Well as for the ball it goes straight up in the air and lands about ten feet in back of me. Somebody says that's a shot like Joe Kirkwood makes, whoever he is. Well I keeps after that ball but there is a lotta soil shook loose from old mother earth before I gets down to the what they call the first hole.

Finally I manages to get that pill in the cup and when the boy asks me how many strokes I took I says six like I heard one feller say who had been over in the rough hacking away at the brush like a wood chopper. Of course the boy don't say nothing, he ain't speaking outa turn since that fourth of July racket, but I sees him put down 2 figures when he writes the score in the book. Of course Ed. I ain't so rotten a golfer as that.

Well that's the way it goes for eighteen holes. I ain't no piker, I played them all. The feller that wrote that song "Tramp, Tramp, Tramp" must have been a golfer bug. When I wasn't fishing the ball outa brook I was looking for it in the woods. With so many fairways around ain't it funny how you can be in the rough so much. If I have anything to do with a golf course I is going to have everything all fairways. Say Ed. if you know where I can get a job digging ditches let me know and say I get a job for that jane what made that dirty crack about me. I saw her playing too and believe me she's some little trench digger herself. I'm going to challenge her the next time I see her and you can bet I ain't going to lose no money either.

Well so long Ed., I gotta stop now cause I gotta go to bed for I'm going to get up early and do some practicing with them clubs and golf balls.

Yours as ever,

SUSIE.

WARRIORS TO PLAY SHAMROCKS ON SUNDAY

Local sport fans will be afforded a treat on Sunday when the Warriors clash with the Shamrocks of New London at the Duwell field.

Therefore, on Sunday a fast and furious battle should result when these two clubs hook up in the first game of this all-important series. The second game will be played in New London on the following Sunday.

Morris Brown, former Chapman Tech star pitcher will without doubt do mound duty for the Whaling City boys and if anything is to be judged from the rate at which he has been traveling to date this season the club is in for a hard afternoon's work solving his deliveries. Couture will probably pitch for the Warriors

DAY GETS DECISION OVER EDDIE LORD

New Haven, July 12—(AP)—Georgia Day of New Haven was given the referee's decision over Eddie Lord of Meriden in the star 10-round bout of the Nutmeg A. C. card here tonight. It was a fast battle from start to finish and Day carried the majority of the rounds.

Lord made his best showing late in the bout, pushing the New Haven man hard in the seventh, eighth and ninth. The last round was a slugging match with Day getting the better of his Meriden opponent. Day took the earlier rounds.

The Meriden man outboxed Day in many of the rounds but in the points that meant victory or defeat, Day had the better of Lord. Day appeared to have more strength behind his blows than did Lord, and one right to the face in an early round nearly closed one of Lord's eyes. Both Day and Lord weighed 131 pounds.

In the semi-finals Tom Kirby of Boston was given the decision over Paul Cavalieri of Patterson, N. J., in an 8-round bout. They fought at catch weights.

Mickey Travers, of New Haven was given the decision over Tommy Gervel of New York in a six-round bout.

Alfred (Happy) Rollinson of Shelton was given the decision over Tommy Devine of New York in a 6-round bout.

Ernie Perry of Bridgeport was given the decision over George Doehler of West Haven in a four-round bout.

FINNEGAN AND BASS FIGHT TO A DRAW

Philadelphia, July 12—(AP)—Honey Boy Finnegan, Boston, and Benny Bass, contenders for the featherweight title surrendered last week by Louis (Kid) Kaplin, fought ten rounds to a draw. In the early rounds the fight was fast and furious, but after the fourth session few hard blows were landed by either man.

Finnegan weighed 129; Bass, 126 pounds.

Two other 10-round bouts preceded the battle between Bass and Finnegan, the first resulting in a draw between Yale Okun, New York, and Allentown Joe Gans, Philadelphia. Okun weighed 173; Gans, 165.

He tried hard for a knockout in the final round but could not stop the Trenton boy.

NEW YORK, July 12.—(AP)— George Uhle limited the Yankees to four hits today and the Yankees lost the fifth and deciding game of their series with the Indians by a score of 6 to 2. The triumph was Uhle's second of the present Cleveland invasion.

Three Yankee pitchers were bombarded during the melee, but the visitors scored enough to win in the opening frame when home runs by Burns and J. Sewell contributed to a three run rally. The score:

DELANEY-BERLENBACH GO EXPECTED TO DRAW 50,000 WITH $500,000 GATE

NEW YORK, July 12.—(AP)—Paul Berlenbach and Jack Delaney, principals in the season's outstanding ring attraction, will draw a capacity crowd of 50,000 and a gate of half a million dollars for their 15-round world's light-heavyweight championship match at Ebbets field, Thursday night, in the opinion of Humbert J. Fugazy, promoter of the titular contest.

The advance sale reached $310,000 today, the promoter said, with virtually all of the lower-priced seats sold. Offices of Fugazy in the Woolworth building were thronged all day with ticket seekers, while every mail brought orders.

If the gate fulfills Fugazy's expectations, the contest will be entered in the record books as the fourth largest fight, from a financial standpoint, in the long history of fisticuffs. Incidentally, it will be the first fight ever to reach such financial proportions under the direction of any promoter other than Tex Rickard.

The ringside experts are making Delaney a slight favorite over the champion. All agree it will be a battle between Berlenbach's plugging port, wallop and the challenger's sharpshooting right, with little to choose between the calibre of the respective blows.

Honors between the two rivals stand even as they near the end of training for their third meeting. In the first fight, Delaney stopped Berlenbach, while last December the champion gained a decision over his challenger in a 15-round contest.

Delaney is looking anxiously at the fourth round, which he considers his lucky inning. It will be remembered the first match ended in the fourth and in the second match Delaney had Berlenbach on the floor in the fourth.

Reports from the two training camps today contained the news that the two gladiators have completed their hard work. In an unofficial weigh-in, the champion scaled 172 8-4 while Delaney was down to 172.

The challenger, who is training at Derby Conn., on the shores of the picturesque Housatonic river, will take only a light workout tomorrow, with a long walk Wednesday to close his training. He is due to arrive in New York Wednesday night, for the official weighing at the offices of the state athletic commission, Thursday afternoon at 2 o'clock.

Berlenbach will remain at his summit, N. J., quarters until Thursday noon, when he will come to the metropolis for the weighing ceremonies.

Promoter Fugazy announced today that 3,000 unreserved seats will be placed on sale at Ebbets field, Thursday afternoon at 4 o'clock when the big baseball park will be opened to the public.

ROSENBERG TO DEFEND TITLE AGAINST TAYLOR

CHICAGO, July 12.—(AP)—Promotor Jim Mullen said tonight he virtually had closed negotiations for a bantamweight championship match between Charley (Phil) Rosenberg, title holder, and Bud Taylor, Terre Haute challenger, to be decided here, probably on August 21.

Rosenberg will arrive here Saturday to sign articles and post forfeits Mullen came to an agreement with Harry Siegal, Rosenberg's manager, and Eddie Long, representing Taylor, both of whom are in New York, over the long distance telephone.

The match, if closed, will be ten rounds to a referee's decision.

Mullen, it is understood, has offered Rosenberg $4,000 as a guarantee, with a liberal percentage.

Taylor is recognized as the outstanding challenger for Rosenberg's crown.

Eddie Stanton, associated with Eddie Long, later announced that he had received a telegram from Long in New York stating that he had "closed" for the Taylor-Rosenberg championship fight.

LOOKING FOR PEACE BETWEEN PROS AND COLLEGES

NEW YORK, July 12.—(AP)—Overtures for peace between collegiate and professional football were made today at a conference in which Brigadier General Palmer E. Pierce, president of the National Collegiate Athletic association, received a committee from the National Football association.

As an initial step toward healing the wounds opened last fall by the signing of undergraduate stars, including Red Grange and Ernie Nevers, for professional play. The committee presented President Pierce a copy of the N. F. A. resolution forbidding use of college players by members of the professional circuit until they have been graduated. The collegiate official received the olive branch with an invitation to the professional league to send a representative to the N. C. A. A. annual meeting next December.

Gen. Pierce said the professional teams apparently had recognized the importance of protecting undergraduates in college "which is in line with what we want."

FATHER OF FIVE AT NEW LONDON HELD FOR TRIAL IN SUPERIOR COURT

(Special to the Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, July 13—The police stirred up a lot of business for the city court during Saturday and Sunday. It was of a varied nature in offenses, but the use of liquor was the cause of the trouble of the accused generally. There were the drunks of the ordinary sort and drunks that had frills, or aggravating circumstances about them. Judge Prince was on the bench and was even lenient to some, in that he did not send them to jail for their offenses. When one listens to the stories some of the accused tell, the listener realizes how much patience is required in the man who dispenses justice.

William E. Thomas, who has been in court twice now for an assault with a deadly weapon upon John Hetschner, was today held for trial in the superior court, September term. Thomas could not furnish a bond for $2,000 so he went to jail to remain till he goes before the court in the fall. The statement of the prosecutor to the court disclosed that there was jealousy between the pair that a woman not mentioned by name is the cause of it. Thomas pleaded guilty. The prosecutor said he had investigated the matter and had learned that the men met in the park recently, when Thomas made a remark that reflected on the good name of the wife of another man. Hetschner later went to the Thomas house to remonstrate with him for what had been said but saw Mrs. Thomas instead of her husband. He told her it was a good thing that Thomas was not there. Later, the men met near the school house on Williams street and there they became involved in a wordy row which resulted in Thomas slashing Hetschner in the neck with a knife. Thomas declares that he and Hetschner have been attentive to the woman and that she chose Thomas in preference to his opponent in the affair of affection. The woman in the case was in court ready to make a statement, if that was desired, but as Thomas had pleaded guilty the statement was not forthcoming. It was apparent that Hetschner was assuming undue responsibility in taking the part of another man's wife in an argument with Thomas. He had recourse to law if he had a real grievance but he did not resort to that. Instead he proposed to impose what he deemed to be the sort of treatment the mariner of a good woman should receive. Thomas is the father of five children and his wife is in a delicate condition now. The bad feeling that exists between these men may lead to more serious troubles than have developed up to the present time, the prosecutor told the court, so Judge Prince concluded that the place for Thomas was in jail, as he had pleaded guilty of the offense alleged.

There was more than the usual number of drunks and in nearly every case the accused pleaded guilty and was fined.

George Sullivan and William Heffernan were charged with a breach of the peace. They were on lower Bank street, noisy and demonstrative when they were ordered to move along, by Policeman William Riordan. They preferred to resist that sort of treatment by the officer so they were arrested. Heffernan appeared in the court for the first time, but Sullivan was represented as lazy and disinclined to work. He was given a chance to make a change in his conduct. Heffernan was not disciplined farther than his incarceration over night was discipline.

Dorothy Lewis said she "just drank a little." The arresting officer thought she drank a great deal. She was drunk anyhow and the court fined her for her folly.

Harry Kormando was fined for drunkenness at the railway station. He told the court he didn't remember what transpired, but he "guessed" he was drunk. The court "guessed" so, too.

Domenick Sutera was charged with reckless operation of an automobile. He wanted an adjournment of the case and was granted it. He will be heard a week from today.

A few drunks convicted themselves when they pleaded guilty and then related improbable stories that clearly disclosed they were rightly accused of intoxication.

The case against Arthur Page, accused of not giving the right of way to the automobile of Chief Engineer Rose when the latter was attending to a call for his services at a fire, was continued to the 28th inst.

Robert Lee Glass and Percy Scott, soldiers, took the Hunt sisters, Pearl and Myrtle, out for a good time in a taxicab. The men didn't have the money to pay for their ride and beside that, the party became so noisy and drunk that the police were called to Broad street to arrest them, about 5:30 this morning. The men were fined $5 each and Pearl Hunt was similarly treated. Myrtle received a suspended sentence as she couldn't be convicted of being noisy, as was charged.

Joseph Davis, 64, of 50 Denison ave-nue, died Saturday night at New Haven hospital, where he had been a patient but a short time. He is survived by his wife, two sisters, Mrs. Anthony George and Miss Josephine Davis and a brother, John Davis, all of New London. Mr. Davis was born in the Azore Islands and for many years was employed at the plant of the Whiton Machine company.

John Dervin, 88, of Palmertown, died at Lawrence-Memorial hospital Sunday; he had been a patient there but a short time. He is survived by two sons, James and Fred Dervin and a daughter, Mrs. Joseph Killeen, all of Montville. Mr. Dervin was born in Ireland, but had resided in Palmertown the greater part of his life.

They furnished a surety on their bond of $50 each for their appearance in the police court tomorrow morning. Fulford and Jaczinski engaged in a quarrel on Main street and soon came to blows. They were mixing matters vigorously when Officer Graham arrived and ended further hostilities. Fulford is well known, having played on several of the city's leading football teams.

Mrs. Charles H. Morris, 84 Vauxhall street, communicated with the police at 11 o'clock last night, stating that her home had been entered by a thief during her absence. Sergeant Patrick Murphy and Motorcycle Officer Augustus Ray were sent to the house, but they were unable to find any signs of the house having been entered, neither was any prowler found in that vicinity. Neither had Mrs. Morris missed any of her property. Mrs. Morris caused the police to be summoned to her home Friday night, when she declared that a man was attempting to gain entrance to the place by means of the rear door. At that time the police failed to find the alleged burglar.

Friends of that brilliant and chari-table woman, Mother M. Alphonsa Lathrop, O. S. D. read with sorrow the notice of her death, on the telegraph page of the Bulletin Saturday. The gifted daughter of America's great novelist, Nathaniel Hawthorne, before the death of her equally gifted husband, George Parsons Lathrop their home was for a time in New London. They became converts to the Roman Catholic faith and both were active in charity work. Following the death of Mr. Lathrop, his widow joined the Dominican order, devoting her life to charity. After entering the order, Mother Alphonsa, continued the cancer work she had started during her husband's life. She established a cancer cottage at 423 Cherry street, New York, and with four other nuns cared for 17 patients, whose cases had aroused the sympathy of Mother Alphonsa as the result of a stay in the poor districts along the waterfront when she was Mrs Lathrop. Twelve years later Mother Alphonsa, with the assistance of Sister Mary Rose and their friends erected a five-story building at 71 Jackson street, New York, known as St. Rose's Free Home for Incurable Cancer. The institution was dedicated by the late Cardinal Farley and had beds for 100 patients. As a number of needy patients increased, Mother Alphonsa and her sisters in the order organized the Servants of Relief for Incurable Cancer and opened the Rosemary Hill Home in Hawthorne, Westchester county.

The homes maintained through the efforts of Mother Alphonsa depended entirely on individual gifts for their support. Her little group of workers begged the necessary funds from people all over the country and depended partly on the results of advertisements placed in various newspapers.

On April 18 last Mother Alphonsa received the Gold Medal of the New York Rotary club for outstanding humanity during the previous year. The medal was presented by Pirie MacDonald in the presence of nuns of the Dominican Sisters of the Congregation of St. Rose of Lima and 50 Rotarians. It was on this occasion that Mother Alphonsa posed for her first photograph.

In 1897 she wrote Memories of Hawthorne, a book dealing with the life of her father. In her younger days she had shown talent as a poet.

Charles R. Brooks, of 33 Washington street, was arrested this evening at the home of his wife by Patrolman Clarence Martin charged with breach of the peace. He will be in the police court tomorrow morning. Brooks, it is claimed by his wife, is not of sound mentality, but when he was arrested several months ago, at which time he was examined by a physician, Brooks was pronounced sane. He was ordered at that time to remain away from his wife, but shortly after 6 o'clock tonight he went to the residence of his wife and a quarrel followed. Mrs. Brooks finally summoned the police and made the charge against him.

Edward Cody, 159 State street made complaint to the police this evening that his son's scooter was stolen from the rear of the municipal building earlier in the day.

Narcotic Agent Thomas Kenefick and a squad of police this afternoon raided a Chinese laundry on Main street, where it was believed a quantity of opium would be found as the proprietor of the place was reputed to have sold a considerable quantity of the drug of late. The officers failed to find any of the drug.

A fight between strikers and strike breakers of the Edward Bloom Silk company, Garfield avenue took place this morning when some of the strikers were at the mill as the strike breakers appeared for work. The fight was between men and women and became so general that the police were summoned. When officers arrived several of the fighters were arrested, but they were not presented in the police court. Acting Prosecuting Attorney Perry J. Hollandersky reprimanded the fighters and warned them that any further acts of violence would result in other arrests and the offenders being severely disciplined in the police court.

Walter C. Schraeter, of Stonington, was fined $50 and costs by Judge Cornelius C. Costello in the Groton town court this morning on a charge of reckless driving. Schraeter was arrested Sunday by State Police Officer George Sisson as a result of Schraeter's driving his car abruptly to the left hand side of the highway near Mystic, resulting in an automobile driven by D. Bates colliding with Schraeter's auto, the former automobile being damaged.

Gerald E. Tenney, Longmeadow, Mass., was fined $10 and costs on a charge of speeding. He was arrested two weeks ago by Sergeant Clifford Gorgas, state police barracks.

George Britner was charged with breach of the peace, but because of insufficient evidence the case was dismissed.

Nelson Robinson, of West Mystic, was charged with non-support and his case was continued until the 31st inst. Robinson has a wife and nine children residing at 20 Tenth street, this city, and it was on complaint of Mrs. Robinson that her husband was arrested.

RIVERSIDE PARK DEFECTS SCORED BY COUNCILOR MAY

(Special to the Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, July 13—Councilor May made a protest, at the meeting of the city council this evening, against the neglect of Riverside park, which he described as one of the "great treasures" of the city. He said the park was neglected, in that no life savers were assigned to the bathing beach, the bathhouses were filthy, two doors of the comfort station were locked and all were forbidden the use of them, the drinking fountain is without water, forcing the children to patronize some merchant nearby who may have soda water to sell. He paid a personal visit to the park today, he said, and found the conditions "deplorable." He asked why such conditions existed and asked that the city manager should investigate and report his findings to the council. City Manager Holt, in referring to the accidental death of a child there a few days ago when the little boy was run over by a Central Vermont car, said that an overhead bridge would be provided in time, but that it could not come at present. He also said that new bathhouses were in course of construction and that they, too, would be put into use as soon as they were ready. He was not aware that the comfort station was locked or any part of it, but he would make inquiry.

Mrs. Emily Speirs, a member of the planning board, also protested in a letter sent to the council against the existing conditions.

ANNOUNCEMENTS

Broadway Theater

One of the last pictures finished under the supervision of Thomas H. Ince was Charles Ray's second feature for the Pathe release, entitled Percy, based on William H. Hamby's novel, heretofore called The Derelict Fiddler. After some thought Mr. Ince decided to change the title to Percy, as he considered that a more logical name for the central figure in the story.

The plot of Percy is just as unusual in theme as others of Ray's successes, but the story is in a lighter vein and contains a deal more humor than is generally found in a dramatic feature. R. William Neill directed and the cast includes Barbara Bedford, Betty Blythe and Charlie Murray. Percy is the first feature attraction at the Broadway today and Wednesday.

Against the background of the world war and a small New England village there is unfolded a touching and tender romance of heroic youth in the Encore production, His Buddy's Wife, at the Broadway theatre the second feature on this program.

Director Tom Terriss has turned out a production that is filled with charm and beautiful sentiment. He has left no angle untouched that would add to the building up of sympathy or the bringing out of the pathos of the two leading roles, played by Glenn Hunter the popular young favorite of stage and screen, and Edna Murphy, the beautiful blonde star.

A new Kinograms will also be shown.

THE STOCK MARKET

NEW YORK, July 12.—(AP)—Sustained buying interest in leading railroad shares, vigorous rallies in several high priced industrial specialties and the estimate of a record high price by General motors featured today's stock market which moved irregularly higher in the face of a heavy volume of profit-taking. Trading continued active with total sales running close to 1,500,000 shares.

Interest centered chiefly on the performance of General motors, which mounted more than points to 153 7-8, the best price at which the present shares have ever sold. Reports of continued good business through the inventory season and expectations of favorable dividend developments accounted for the steady accumulation of that stock. The closing price of 153 1-4, represented a gain of 2 7-8 points on the day.

Buying activities in the railroad group switched from the Van Sweringen issues which have recently held first place in the public favor, to other representative issues which were believed to be in line for higher dividends as the result of improved earnings. Baltimore and Ohio moved up 1 1-2 points to 97 3-4, and Lehigh Valley about 3 points to 91 5-8, the highest prices in more than 10 years. Southern Pacific reached a new top price for the year at 102 3-4 and gains of 1 to 2 points were recorded in Missouri Pacific common and preferred, Illinois Central, Wheeling and Lake Erie issues, Lackawanna, Delaware and Hudson, northern Pacific and Chicago and northwestern.

Chesapeake and Ohio, Erie and Pere Marquette issues were heavy on fresh opposition to the revised merger plans from Chesapeake and Ohio stockholders. The general average of the rail shares, however, reached the highest mark in over 10 years.

One of the most important trade developments of the day was a further advance in copper prices, coupled with indications of an impending scarcity of deliverable metal. As a result the copper shares moved up broadly under the leadership of American smelting, which advanced 3 points to 135. Anaconda and Kennecott also were strong.

Large sales of agriculture machinery in the first half of the year led to renewed buying of the leading issues in this group. Case threshing machine rose more than 7 points to a new high above 133 and substantial gains were registered by International harvester and advance rumors common and preferred. Independent strength was shown by all American cables which jumped 5 1-2 points, and by coca cola, which crossed 163 to a new high for the year.

A rise of more than 7 points in Dupont was aided by the strength of General Motors and expectations of large munitions orders as a result of the Denmark explosion.

Oil shares developed pronounced weakness in the late trading when they were picked out by bear traders as easy targets because of recent price cuts. Recessions of a point or more took place in general asphalt, Maryland, Pan-American "B", Standard Oil of California and Union of California. Steel shares also were heavy, both U. S. steel and Gulf states losing a point.

Outside the stock market, financial interest was focused on the weakness of the foreign exchanges. The continued uncertainty over French and Belgian finances caused both of these currencies to slump to record low levels. French francs fell below 3 cents and Belgian plunged nearly 20 points to 2.04 1-2. Demand sterling held at 4.85 13-16.

Considerable calling of loans brought about a heavy turnover in the money market but the rate on call funds remained at 4 1-2 per cent all day. Time money rates were marked up slightly, ranging from 4 5-8 to 4 1-2 per cent. Commercial paper rates were unchanged.

Commodity prices were mainly lower, with cotton declining 22 to 32 points while wheat futures sagged about a cent a bushel, both in response to more favorable crop reports.

WATER SAVES TREES IN THE DRY SEASON

A plea to save the lives of trees by sufficient watering during the warm weather season was made at Washington Tuesday by Congressman Martin L. Davey of Ohio who in private life is head of a famous company of tree surgeons.

"It is just as important and as humane a deed to save sufficient water to our good friends, the trees, in summer as it is to feed the birds in winter time," said Congressman Davey. "Trees are living things and are even more helpless than birds. Lacking the power of locomotion, they cannot go where water is. They must depend entirely upon human beings for their supply.

"The average householder keeps his lawn well sprinkled because the results of his failure to do so are soon evident. He pays less attention to his trees because the results of neglect are slow in appearing. A parched lawn may be renewed within a growing season, but a stately tree not within a generation.

"Sprinkling the lawn for a brief period in the evening does not help the trees. Mr. Davey explained. In fact it may harm them by attracting the roots close to the surface of the ground. An effective way to water trees is to perforate the soil beneath the spread of the tree with a spading fork to a depth of 6 inches. Water should be run into these holes for several hours at least once every two weeks, depending upon the character of the soil.

"The importance of water to a tree is expressed by the fact that an average-sized tree with a spread of 50 feet of leaves, under normal conditions throws off 1 gallons of water a day in the form of vapor. This vapor is attracted to the clouds and returns to the earth as rain.

"With the possible exception of the Great Lakes, trees are the most important factor affecting the rainfall in inland territory, according to Mr. Davey. Before the summer season is over, Mr. Davey said, many cities will be suffering because of drought. In practically every case, he said, it will be found that this is due to the cutting of forests at the headlands of the streams that flow through these communities.

Searching For Escaped Inmate

(Special to the Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, July 12—Three guards of the State hospital, Norwich, were in New London late evening looking for Robert Woolery, colored, who escaped from the hospital this afternoon and is known to have come to this city. Woolery is described as being 22, about six feet two inches in height and weighs about 174 pounds. He was dressed in khaki shirt and trousers and tan shoes, but did not wear either hat or coat. Woolery, who is considered dangerous, it was ascertained, obtained a ride to New London in a Dodge roadster, but all trace of him after reaching this city was lost. Paul Hart, one of the guards, requested the police to assist in the search for Woolery, whose home is in Bridgeport.

NORWICH MOOSE START 1927 CONVENTION PLANS

Norwich Moose have made an early start in preparation for the coming to Norwich next summer of the 1927 state convention and field day of the order, which will be the first time that the Connecticut state field day association of the Royal Order of Moose holds its meeting in this city.

Dictator Bernard Wunderlich presided at the meeting of Norwich lodge, No. 950 last week, when the principal business was in organizing to handle the convention. The following executive committee was appointed: Bernard Wunderlich, chairman; W. R. Hastedt, P. D., secretary; John T. F. Burns, treasurer; F. B. Hazard, P. D. R. A. Krolin, P. D., A. H. Kaminsky, P. D., H. H. Jarvis, P. D., Charles O. Wright, Joseph E. Hastedt, Philip Baumgartner and Joseph Kirchner. The committee met after the lodge meeting to discuss preliminary plans. Many visitors from all parts of the state are expected as this is the annual get-together for the Moose.

At the regular meeting of the lodge, the committee on repairs reported that the improvements at the home will be completed this week and inspection by the members was solicited.

Members of the Hy D. Davis Legion are preparing to attend the meeting in Providence, Sunday, July 25. The trip is to be made by bus, for which the arrangements are in the hands of South Moose J. T. F. Burns.

RECOVERY IS EXPECTED FROM FRACTURED SKULL

The condition of Louis LeBlanc of Packerville, a patient at the W. W. Backus hospital in this city, was somewhat improved Monday, although his wounds are very painful.

LeBlanc was injured Saturday afternoon about 3 o'clock at Central Village when his motorcycle and an automobile crashed head-on. The ambulance from the Backus hospital was sent to Central Village and LeBlanc was brought to this city. He suffered numerous painful lacerations about the head and face, caused by being thrown against the windshield and a number of stitches were required to close the wounds. LeBlanc suffered a fractured skull also, but the skull was not depressed and it is believed that he will be fully recovered within a short time unless complications set in.

Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Addison of Norwich avenue, Taftville, are planning a trip to Canada, where they will be the guest of Mr. Addison's parents. They expect to leave some time this month.

ADVICE ON SUMMER CARE FOR HORSES

There are still many horses left in Connecticut judging from a bulletin recently issued at the headquarters of the Connecticut Humane Society in Hartford. It mentions that while patrolling the highways about the state the officers of the society examined more than 16,000 horses, inspected over 16,000 crates of live poultry and made 569 visits to slaughterhouses and places where live animals are sold during the past year. How to care for a horse in summer is described in a set of hot weather rules which the society is broadcasting with a request to owners and drivers for their co-operation in lessening the burden of the work horse in warm weather.

Load lightly, and drive slowly.

Stop in the shade, if possible.

Water your horse as often as possible. So long as a horse is working, water in small quantities will not hurt him. But let him drink only a few swallows if he is going to stand still. Do not fail to water him at night after he has eaten his hay.

When he comes in after work, sponge off the harness marks and sweat, his eyes, his nose and mouth, and the cock. Wash his feet but not his legs.

Saturday night, give him a bran mash, lukewarm; and add a tablespoon of saltpetre.

If the horse is overcome by heat, get him into the shade, remove harness and bridle, wash out his mouth, sponge him all over, shower his legs, and give him two ounces of aromatic spirits of ammonia, or two ounces of sweet spirits of nitre in a pint of water; or give him a pint of warm coffee. Cool his head at once, using cold water, or if necessary, chopped ice, wrapped in a cloth.

If the horse is off his feed, try him with two quarts of oats mixed with bran, and a little warm water, and add a little salt or sugar. Or give him oatmeal gruel or barley water to drink.

Watch your horse. If he stops sweating suddenly, or if he breathes short and quick, or if his ears drop, or if he stands with his legs braced sideways, he is in danger of a heat or sun-stroke and needs attention at once.

If it is so hot that the horse sweats in the stable at night, tie him outside, with bedding under him. Unless he cools off during the night, he cannot well stand the next day's heat.

And don't forget the suffering of dogs and cats for the want of a drink. A campaign of free water for horses was successfully started by the Humane society several years ago and there are still many friends of animals who keep a pail standing near the water tap where drivers are welcome to stop. The campaign is now being extended to include basins of water in dooryards and elsewhere for the thirsty dog and cat. Especially is it desirable to find drinking places in the business districts. All who are fond of animals are urged to remember them in the hot weather.

A contest for bass fishermen is being conducted by the Taftville Rod and Gun club and all the members are in keen pursuit of this game fish, as there is much interest in the contest. Chip Dugas and Alfred Benoit brought in the largest string of bass seen here in some time, nineteen being hooked in one morning's catch. The heaviest fish weighed five pounds, there were two three and a half pounders, two that tipped the scales at two and a half pounds and one that weighed two pounds. The string was on exhibition at the Dugas bowling alley Saturday where it was greatly admired by local sportmen. Mr. Dugas is now leading the contest. George Gosnig, another member brought in a four and three-quarter pound fish Saturday night.

There was a great deal of local interest in the second annual dow show of the New London County Kennel club held Saturday in New London many local dogs and dog fanciers attending. Bowville Lily White, a handsome English bulldog bitch owned by Mrs. John Holland of Terrace avenue annexed the blue in the novice, limit, open and local classes. This dog, although lately having whelped a large litter of puppies, was pronounced by the judge in very good condition. She was shown by Mrs. Holland who handled her entry in the ring very capably.

The Rurik Kennels showed a string of Samoyedes, all of which were in the winning. Their dog Snyeg took the blue in the novice and open classes, going through to winners, dogs and best of the breed. In the variety class in which the best dogs of many breeds competed, he was placed third. Bondarchuk ran up a close second, going to reserve winners, and Berezov, owned by Terence M. Buckley of South C street was placed third. Feodorovna, a year-old puppy bred in the kennels sprang a big surprise when she defeated Yuraks Nadja, a veteran in the ring, bred by Louis Smirnow. This young bitch took first in the open and novice classes and went to winners. Yuraks Nadja with many ribbons to her credit was first in the limit, but yielded first place in the open to Feodorovna. Byelka, also owned by the Rurik Kennels was third in the open and novice classes.

McCarthy-Nolan

Francis McCarthy, son of Mr. and Mrs. Daniel McCarthy of Franklin, and Miss Catherine Ellen Nolan, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John D. Nolan of the Canterbury turnpike, were married Monday morning at a nuptial high mass celebrated at Sacred Heart church by Rev. John J. Metley. The bride was charmingly gowned in white georgette crepe, trimmed with Irish point lace and pearls. Her bridal veil of tulle was caught up with orange blossoms, and she carried a bouquet of white roses with a shower of lilies-of-the-valley. The maid of honor, Miss Isabelle O'Connell wore yellow georgette with hat to match and carried an arm bouquet of pink roses. The best man was Albert Nolan, brother of the bride.

After the church ceremony there was a reception at the home of the bride's parents. Assisting the bridal couple were Mr. and Mrs. John D. Nolan, Mrs. Charles F. Nolan, Mrs. Harold O'Connell and Mrs. Thomas Donahue. There was a lavish display of wedding gifts. The reception was followed by a breakfast for about 75 guests.

BELGIUM MOVES TO STOP FURTHER FALL OF FRANC

Belgian Cabinet Introduced Bill in Chamber of Deputies Granting King Albert Unlimited Powers to Issue Decrees to Stave Off Further Collapse of Exchange—Indications Are That Bill Will be Voted—Measures of Economy Already Drafted and Bankers Have Been Called Into Conference—Sweeping Reductions in Public Expenses Are Being Discussed—Rail Rates May be Increased.

BRUSSELS, July 13.—(AP)—Belgium staggered by the recent precipitate fall of the Belgian franc, is verging on the appointment of King Albert as a virtual dictator within his kingdom in the government's efforts to save the exchange from further collapse.

The Belgian cabinet today introduced a bill in the chamber of deputies granting King Albert unlimited powers to issue decrees for drastic defense of the franc and there are intimations that the bill will be voted.

Belgium thus joins the three European powers who are considering proposals to concentrate unlimited powers in one person, Italy is discussing whether Premier Mussolini and his cabinet should be made responsible to the king and not to the legislature; France will vote on Thursday on a government proposal to grant the Briand cabinet full powers in order that Finance minister Caillaux may proceed with the restoration of the French franc and Belgium is going them one better by suggesting that the sovereign be installed with far more than usual power.

Yesterday's cataclysmic fall of the Belgian franc—that is the expression used here—when the franc sank to 214 to the pound sterling, has produced a financial crisis, equal or even worse than that in France in the opinion of some financiers.

The cabinet has issued an appeal to the country not to lose confidence and not to begin buying foreign currency. Measures of economy have already been drafted in detail and bankers have been called into conference. The latter have promised their support and there is every reason to believe, the cabinet ministers say, that the Belgian franc might yet yet be saved if the king is granted full powers.

The government today issued a statement saying that the collapse of the franc is not due to internal financial conditions. The statement says that the budget is balanced, international debts have been regulated and the floating debts provided for.

There is no reason to fear the situation, the statement says, unless the public should become panic stricken and begin speculating in foreign currency. Control of the exchange and the ruthless prosecution of speculators will be one of the first measures put through if full powers should be granted to the king by the chamber of deputies.

Another likely measure is the substitution of whole wheat bread for white bread, bringing a saving of half a million francs daily. Sweeping economies in public expenses are being discussed as well as an increase in railroad freight rates by 10 per cent. and in passenger rates by 20.

THOMS WILLING TO RUN FOR GOVERNOR

WATERBURY, July 13.—(AP)—Ex-mayor W. E. Thome declared his willingness to accept the democratic nomination for governor in a letter written to a local newspaper today, provided the democratic party declares for the repeal of the prohibition amendment and in favor of religious freedom.

Declaring that Thomas Jefferson founded the democratic party in the ideals of personal liberty and religious freedom, Mr. Thome writes:

"If I wish to try to persuade my friend to join the Methodist church to which I belong or to refrain smoking or from wearing a straw hat after September 15, such is my right and privilege, but to pass a law putting my friend in jail because he will not conform to my thought as to what he ought to do even though I think it is for his own good, so long as he does not interfere with me, is to deprive him of his right to pursue liberty and happiness in his own way, a right divinely given and which no human law can take away. Jefferson did not believe that he was morally bound to obey any so-called law which endeavored by legislation to control the acts or beliefs of any citizen, so long as the act or belief left untouched the corresponding rights of others.

"Believing sincerely as I do in these doctrines I am opposed to the prohibition amendment and favor its repeal and would see the Volstead act amended. I believe that every man should worship God as he pleases provided he lets everybody else do likewise and that to apply any religious test to a man's eligibility to office is wrong and un-American.

"These are my ideas of democracy. If the democratic party of Connecticut stood squarely upon this rock of personal liberty and religious freedom I would be proud and glad to be its standard bearer, even if I were absolutely certain of defeat. If, however, it wishes to pussyfoot on these questions, as the republican candidates undoubtedly will, it can get somebody else to run."

REVEALS DETAILS OF WAR DEBT SETTLEMENT

LONDON, July 13.—(AP)—Winston Churchill, chancellor of the exchequer, revealed to an attentive house of commons today the details of the debt settlement with France, and later the official text was given out.

Briefly, the settlement provides that France shall pay £4,000,000, £6,000,000, $8,000,000 and £10,000,000 the next four years, and thereafter £12,500,000 annually until 1957, when the amount becomes £14,000,000 annually for the final 31 years.

There are also provisions for possible delays in the payments and for pari passau payments proportionate to the payments to the United States, and for certain revision in the event of Great Britain's receiving more from reparations than she is paying the United States, while by an exchange of letters between Mr. Churchill and M. Caillaux in the event that France is disappointed in payments from Germany under the Dawes plan, the question of French payments to Great Britain shall come up for reconsideration. This concession; however, is carefully guarded in Mr. Churchill's letter.

The chief interest for the British people was in how the settlement compared with the Franco-American settlement and to what extent France would be granted a part moratorium in the first few years. Each successive settlements of these inter-allied debts has brought in the British press vexed reference to what many people consider Premier Baldwin's needless generosity in the original British settlement with the United States. Similar lamentations are not wanting on this occasion.

NEWTON, Mass., July 13.—(AP)—The body of John W. Weeks, former war secretary and senator, was brought to West Newton late today after a 12 hour journey by motor from Lancaster, N. H., where he died early yesterday. Quietly the casket was borne into the house of the son, Sinclair Weeks, once the home of his father and the scene of the latter's business success. Mrs. Weeks and her son and daughter made the 200 mile trip in front of the hearse, and tonight were discussing plans for the funeral Thursday.

Orders were received at army headquarters in Boston for the half staffing of flags on all military posts in this country on the day of the funeral. All New England offices of the firm of Hornblower and Weeks, of which Mr. Weeks was part founder and partner, will be closed throughout that day.

Mr. Weeks' body eventually will rest in the Arlington National cemetery at Washington where plans are under way for the erection of a monument.

CONFIDENCE MEN FLEECE NEW HAVEN WOMAN

NEW HAVEN, July 13.—(AP)— Mrs. Ellen Nemyer of 127 Bristol street, trusted a stranger she met on the street and lost $1,175 as a result, she reported to the police today.

A few days ago, Mrs. Nemyer told the police, she was standing at Church and Crown streets when a stranger stepped up to her, told her he was from Alabama and asked her to direct him about the city.

While they were talking a second man approached. He had a pocketbook in his hand which he said he had just picked up. Then he began to talk real estate and offered to let Mrs. Nemyer in on a realty deal.

She went to the bank, drew out $1,100 and added $75 to this sum from funds she was carrying in a pocketbook. She gave her money to the men who promised to call on her later. They never kept their promise.

Gunmen Shoot Down Four in New York

Detectives and Prisoners Are In Serious Condition at Bellevue Hospital.

NEW YORK, July 13.—(AP)—Two detectives and their two prisoners were shot down just south of Madison square today by gunmen in an automobile who had been trailing them on their way to police headquarters from Harlem.

Whether the gunmen had intended to shoot only the detectives and so free the prisoners, or whether they had aimed at the prisoners to prevent "squealing" and had merely shot the detectives for good measure, early police investigation failed to reveal. The shooting occurred at 21st street and Fourth avenue.

The detectives were Thomas Hamill and Henry Hoffman and their prisoners were Peter Blanco and Dominick Blanco. All were taken to Bellevue hospital in serious condition.

NO CLUE TO IDENTITY OF MURDERED GIRL

BOSTON, July 13.—(AP)—Only a few meagre bits of information were available to police tonight as they sought to establish the identity and murderer of an attractive young woman whose dismembered body was found between two grave yards today.

While the cause of her death had not been definitely determined by Medical Examiner O'Leary, evidence pointed to illegal surgery. A pair of Nile green hose and a white cotton nightdress, with a pink ribbon, the only clothing found, offered absolutely no clew to her identity and the only indication as to who the murderer might be came from young men who saw a well dressed middle aged man nervously driving an automobile in the vicinity last night.

The body was found on Walk Hill street in the Mattapan district, between the New Calvary and the Mount Hope cemeteries. Part of it was in two cardboard boxes, tied with window cord in sailor knots. Another part was in a cloth bag. Some parts had been dropped in a Boston newspaper of June 27. Whoever had dismembered the body had done it skillfully, Dr. O'Leary said, and apparently was an expert surgeon.

The middle aged man sought by the police appeared at the corner of Walkhill street and Bluehill avenue several times. Around 8:30 o'clock he returned to the corner and disappeared.

The body, the medical examiner said, was that of an attractive young woman, about 25 years of age, five feet, six inches tall, weighing 120 pounds, with shingle bobbed black hair, and dark brown eyes. The nails on the long slender fingers were carefully manicured, the eyebrows were pencilled, the hands were uncalloused and unmarked by rings and the teeth were in good condition with no evidence of dentistry.

The girl, apparently of American extraction, had been dead from 48 to 72 hours.

As soon as a laborer on his way to work stumbled upon the two cardboard boxes and the burlap bag which contained the remains, the entire homicide squad of the Boston police was assigned to the case, one of the most stirring and baffling which has confronted them in years.

Only three women of the victim's years are recorded as missing at police headquarters. One of these is thought to be demented and neither of the others seemed to parallel the description of the dead girl.

Another item which awaits explanation was a cut resembling that made in an appendicitis operation which however, had never been sewn although it was apparently recent.

Medical Examiner Leary said tonight that the young woman had probably died of blood poisoning and that dismemberment was probably made soon after death. He had photographs of the head taken and these were sent to all Boston newspapers with a request for their publication, in the hope that this might lead to identification.

Nearly a score of relatives of missing girls called at the morgue but the descriptions they furnished did not tally with those of the victim.

The medical examiner believed that the boxes containing the parts of the body had been tossed where they were found some time last Sunday night. A milkman, however, told police he had passed along the road an hour before the discovery and was positive the boxes were not there.

PINCHOT CALLS FOR "CLEAN ELECTIONS HEREAFTER"

HARRISBURG, Pa., July 13—(AP)—Governor Pinchot tonight called upon the people of Pennsylvania through their legislature to take "fearless and effective" action to prevent a repetition of the election debauchery" which he charged was practiced in the republican state prmiary last May "by two powerful combination machine politicians and their financial allies."

Using the disclosure before the U. S. senate committee which investigated expenditures in the Pennsylvania primary as a text, Mr. Pinchot made his plea in a letter to the executive committee of a commission he formed last winter to draft election reform measures later submitted to the legislature in special session.

He asked the committee to meet and consider the facts brought out in the senatorial investigation and then submit recommendations to his successor and the next legislature "to insure clean elections hereafter."

The governor, who was one of three candidates for the republican nomination for U. S. senator in the May primary pointed to the expenditures of his opponents, Senator Pepper and Representative William S. Vare the nominee, as detailed by the senatorial committee. They showed, he said, $1,804,979 spent in behalf of Senator Pepper: $800,114 for Vare and $188,489 including an unexpended balance of more than $4,000 in his own behalf.

LIST OF ARSENAL DEAD IS NOW 21

DOVER, N. J., July 13—(AP)—Rain fell tonight on the last smouldering embers of the wrecked naval ammunition depot at Lake Denmark.

Army and navy officials directing rehabilitation work in the ten mile circle of devastation, welcomed the shower as increased assurance of safety from the large stores of deadly explosives still in the magazines at Picatinny arsenal, adjoining the naval depot.

Late today the remnants of another body were recovered from the ruins of the depot, bringing the total of known dead to 21.

In the shattered villages of Mount Hope, Denmark, and Hibernia, on the fringe of the twin arsenals, lights twinkled through paneless windows and from improvised shelters marking the former sites of trim cottages, for the first time since Saturday evening, when the hail of death scattered the inhabitants throughout the surrounding district in a mad flight from the terror. Almost 1,000 refugees were permitted to return to their homes today, when military authorities deemed the greatest danger passed.

Magazines at Lake Denmark which escaped the blast and fire were inspected today by Gunner Gertz. He visited the "TNT" and smokeless powder warehouses and found that even where roofs had fallen on buildings containing the latter explosive, the contents of the buildings were intact with little fear of further blasts.

The situation was so completely in hand that use of the railroad spur into the arsenal grounds was expected to be resumed for salvage operations tomorrow.

The bodies of two additional victims were recovered during today's search. One was that of Mrs. John Wadhams, wife of the civilian chief clerk of the naval depot, and the other in a fragmentary condition did not permit of identification.

Private Harper, until recently of the marines at Quantico although not listed as among the missing, appeared at the depot wearing a sergeant's uniform and in a dazed condition.

Brigadier General Drum went to New York tonight on business that will keep him away from the area until tomorrow night. During his absence, Colonel Stanley S. Ford will be in charge.

ENGINEMAN FAILED TO OBEY CAUTION SIGNAL

WASHINGTON, July 13.—(AP)—Failure of Engineman Durley of passenger train No. 1 to obey the caution indication of a distant signal and the absence of the signal light as well as the stop indication of a home signal was held responsible by the interstate commerce commission today for the collision of a passenger and freight train on the New Haven railroad at Mansfield, Mass.

Had the light on the home signal been maintained by Lampman Harding or had the line been equipped with automatic control devices, it was added, the accident probably would not have occurred.

NEW YORK, July 13—(AP)—Delay in firing a salute to President Louis Borno, of Haiti, on his recent arrival in New York has resulted in an order for the courtmartial of Col. James Thornton Watson, stationed at Governor's Island.

The charges against Col. Watson were prefered by Col. Stanley H. Ford, during whose absence Col. Watson was commanding officer at Fort Jay, when President Borno arrived a few weeks ago. Major General Charles P. Summerall, commanding the Second Army Corps area, ordered the courtmartial.

SUBWAY COMPANY SUES STRIKERS FOR $239,000

Officials Also Seek Injunction to Restrain Employees From Continuing Strike on Underground Lines—Sixty-two Defendants Named in Application, Including Edward P. Lavin, President of the Consolidated Railroad Workers' Union of Greater New York—Damages Asked Represents Money Alleged to Have Been Lost in Revenue, in Addition to Cost of Walkout to the Company.

NEW YORK, July 13.—(AP)—The Interborough Rapid Transit company announced tonight it had filed a suit against striking subway employes for $239,000 alleged to have been lost in revenue, in addition to the cost of the walkout to the company.

James L. Quackenbush, general counsel for the company, said papers filed in New York supreme court today also sought an injunction to restrain the employes from continuing the strike, begun a week ago.

Sixty-two defendants were named in the application, including Edward P. Lavin, president of the Consolidated Workers Union of Greater New York, and "any and all persons acting in aid of or in concert or in combination with them."

The company also intends, Mr. Quackenbush added, to institute criminal proceedings against the strike leaders should they continue in their attempts to augment the ranks of the strikers, and against any newspapers which print "fear" inspiring articles or cartoons.

Erasure of the names of 685 strikers from the company's payroll was announced earlier in the day with the statement that the subway officials considered the subway strike "was all over" as far as the strikers were concerned.

The strikers had been given up to noon today to go back to work on penalty of losing their jobs permanently if they refused. Some took advantage of the offer But the majority stayed out in the hope they might still be able to enforce their demands for higher pay.

PRES. COOLIDGE LAYS POLITICS ASIDE FOR SUMMER

PAUL SMITHS, N. Y., July 13—(AP)—President Coolidge has definitely put aside things political during the period of his vacation.

This was made clear today when additional evidence was given at the summer white house that only urgent government business would be permitted to interfere with his rest here.

Mr. Coolidge has no plan at present for participating in any republican primary campaign, it was stated, and expects fewer visitors at White Lake even than were received at Swampscott, Mass., last sumer. Governor Smith of New York and Mrs. Smith today accepted an invitation to luncheon Friday but as chief executive of the state in which the president temporarily is residing, the visit is necessarily would have a strictly social tinge, even if Governor Al were not outstandingly a representative of the opposite party.

Whether any republican leaders will visit the "camp," it is understood will depend upon the convenience of such leaders. President Coolidge was said to be unaware at this time whether Senator Wadsworth, republican leader of New York, or Representative Snelin of this district, will call, although he told them before leaving Washington they would be welcome.

A complete rest is being enjoyed by the president who finds time for diversion after government business has been attended to because he is not occupied, as in Washington, with conferences. With face and hands burned by the sun and wind, he appeared in happy mood today and after attending to matters at the executive offices, returned to his camp in the forenoon and again tried his hand at fishing.

Casting from the foot bridge connecting two promontories in Lake Osgood, he displayed an improvement in form which spoke much for his practice of the past week, but unlike yesterday when he landed a pike and five trout in two fishing excursions, he caught nothing.

"DRY" AGENTS SEIZE TWO CARLOADS OF LIQUOR

PHILADELPHIA, July 13.—(AP)—Two carloads of liquor, apparently of fine imported varieties, were seized by prohibition agents today after one persistent agent had spotted the cars at Baltimore and rode on a Baltimore and Ohio freight to this city. The seizure was estimated to be worth $100,000.

The contents of the cars were labelled "preserves in glass" and consigned to "The American Preserves and Canning Company" here. There is no such firm and Yates D. Fetterman, assistant prohibition administrator of this city, declared he believed the liquors were intended for wealthy consumers. The fact that the bottles were in burlap bags and apparently showed recent action of salt water led him to believe the shipment had been buried somewhere in the south before it started north.

Two prohibition agents in Baltimore located the cars and while one went for help the other remained on guard. Before help arrived the cars were made up in a train which started to Philadelphia. The agent went along.

ANDOVER BLACKSMITH SHOP BURNED WITH LOSS OF $2,000

(Special to the Bulletin)

WILLIMANTIC, July 13—Nearby houses were threatened when a large blacksmith and wagon shop in the town of Andover, owned by George McDonald of Glastonbury, was totally destroyed by fire, which started about 11 o'clock Tuesday forenoon. Following the spreading of an alarm by Mrs. George Merritt who discovered the blaze, volunteer fire fighters combined their forces for saving buildings in the vicinity. Although it is believed that the fire started in the basement of the three-story building the cause remains undetermined. The building, of frame structure, was 30 by 60. Albert McDonald, son of the owner and occupant of the residence some 30 feet from the shop, had left his home about 15 minutes before the fire broke out. The shop had not been occupied for several years. The building is on the state highway just to the east of the village of Andover. Included in the loss which is estimated at over $2,000 were blacksmithing tools and several wrecked automobiles. The heat from the blaze ignited electric light poles but the flames were extinguished by an employee of the Rockville-Willimantic Lighting company from this city before causing any damage to the line.

After two special meetings, the noon session of Willimantic Rotary club was held at the Y. M. C. A. Tuesday. With President James P. Bath in charge a number of interesting matters were taken up. The guests were A. W. Burns, Notarian of Hartford, Henry W. Taylor of New York city, consulting engineer superintending the work of improving the local water system, Carl Erickson, Rotarian of Ridgefield Park, N. J., and Charles W. Alpaugh, former club member, now of Cincinnati, accompanied by P. D. Donohue. The resignation of George H. Shafer as a member was accepted with regret.

Several communications were read by Secretary Gerald E. Loisell, including extracts from the monthly letter of Allan D. Colvin, of Hartford, new governor of the 30th Rotary district, letters of appreciation from Thomas Meikle, recipient of the Rotary high school athletic cup this year, and Rev. W. C. Nolls who has been ill. A resolution was adopted commending the vigilant and successful administration of John Alison, of Holyoke, Mass., retiring governor of the district. A letter was read from William C. Root of Pittsfield, Mass., Rotary relative to the Fall Conclave to be held in the Hotel Aspinwall, Lenox, Mass., September 28, 29 and 30. Willimantic will have charge of the program for the breakfast of Sept. 29. A majority of the members signified that they intended to attend. After a suitable report by Valentine L. Murphy, chairman of the committee on additions and cigars, Harry S. Gaucher was sewed to a promise of a box of cigars for next week. Charles B. Pomeroy, chairman of the program committee, announced that the meeting of July 27, would be held at 6:30 p. m., D. S. T. at North Coventry Grange hall. The members having birthdays during July will arrange the entertainment. Justice George E. Hinman spoke on the Fall Conclave attendance. Mayor John C. Tracy asked the Rotarians to join with the Exchangites next Thursday afternoon in a survey of Young's Grove, near Lebanon avenue with a view to developing it into a park. Several songs were rendered with John T. Quinlan at the piano and Dr. R. Bullock Jones leading.

For the first time in the history of Willimantic, two municipal playgrounds were opened this week. The realization of playgrounds comes on a conservative, but amply sufficient scale for the time being. It is evident, too, that playgrounds for this city are something more than a mere hobby laid by reformed and business men. Even in their existence of two days they have become meeting-thering places for the children. While some keep the equipment in constant use, the smaller children are attracted to the large sand boxes. The equipment was generously loaned by the schools and is set up at the Windham street school, in the west end of the city and at the Natchaug school grounds in the center. Recreation work owned by the American Thread company provides a place for the children in the east end.

Miss Edith Parke and Miss Sarah Lynch are supervisors at the grounds.

Alderman William E. Jackson brought out at the July session of the common council Monday night, that no attempt had been made to secure state aid in making permanent improvements to West Main street here. Vigorously against the sanction of some of the councilmen, Alderman Jackson made a report of a conference held with the highway commissioner at Hartford on this proposition. The commissioner informed the committee that he could give no definite answer leaving the impression that there was but little chance for state aid. Alderman Jackson said that he believed, however, that help could be received for another section of the city. It was brought out that the city had an offer of state assistance for West Main street during the past administration but the city failed to take action at that time. The commissioner recommended a concrete roadway from curbing to curbing. A $15,000 appropriation to be asked for at the next special city meeting will, if granted, be used to install sewers over the street before the concrete is laid.

A solemn mass of requiem was celebrated at St. Joseph's church at nine o'clock Tuesday morning for Miss Delia Kelley, whose funeral was held from the Moran residence, 236 Valley street at 8:30 o'clock. Rev. Henry E. Quinn was celebrant of the mass, Rev. Paul J. Bartlewski, deacon and Rev. Charles M. Kelly, sub-deacon. Mrs. Edmund R. Portelance was at the organ and Miss L. Monica McKeon was soloist. Burial was in St. Joseph's cemetery, the committal prayers being read by Rev. Father Quinn. The bearers were Henry, Edward, Thomas and Dennis Moran. Killourey Brothers had charge of the arrangements.

Having caught the chicken thief that had been marauding through coops on Carey and Jackson streets and taking many lives, the neighbors gathered at the home of Delphis Boucher Sr., at 296 Jackson street Tuesday morning where the thief—a skunk—was in a trap lamenting its captivity. The all important question was how to do away with the little culprit. No one could be induced to step forward. Finally former Police Officer Leander Wright was secured and he sent the pole-cat to its happy hunting grounds with one bullet through the head.

Guy Stevens of Gurleyville entered a plea of guilty, through his attorney in the Columbia town court Monday night, when charged with reckless driving. Stevens said that, his car started to skid, causing him to steer to the left of the road while rounding a curve. A short distance further the machine skidded again and scraped the fence, damaging the car so it had to be hauled away. There were no other cars in sight, he said, the wet conditions of the road being to blame in his contention. Constable Harvey S. Collins, who investigated the accident, said that there was evidence of speeding. Justice of the Peace Hubert P. Collins imposed a fine of $10 and costs, remitting the fine. Stevens paid $14.10. Grand Juror Joseph N. Clarke prosecuted the case.

DANIELSON

CORONER BILL'S FINDING IN NYE AUTO FATALITIES

(Special to the Bulletin)

DANIELSON, July 13—Gross and criminal negligence on the part of Fred W. Rosebrooke, of Willimantic, caused the deaths of Mrs. Jessie Nye and her son, Raymond A. Nye, Coroner Arthur G. Bill finds following an inquest relative to the accident that startled Willimantic on the afternoon of July 3, and the coroner has communicated his finding to Harry W. Gaucher, prosecuting attorney of the city of Willimantic.

The text of the coroner's finding follows, pertaining to the death of Raymond A. Nye, the finding relative to Mrs. Nye's death to be issued separately and later.

The undersigned, coroner within and for the county of Windham, having received notice that Raymond A. Nye of said Windham had been killed in an automobile accident in the city of Willimantic on the 3rd day of July, 1926 about 4 o'clock p. m. I viewed the body of said deceased, ordered an autopsy to be made thereon by Louis Irving Mason, M. D., medical examiner for the town of Windham and on the 8th day of July held an inquest as to the cause and manner of the death of the said Raymond A. Nye at the police station in said city of Willimantic. From the testimony taken at said inquest and the report of said autopsy, I find that the said Raymond A. Nye died at said city of Willimantic on said 3rd day of July 1926 about 4 o'clock p. m. from rupture of heart and liver, lacerations of lung and fracture of skull. I further find that the deceased at the time of said accident was driving an Oldsmobile five passenger touring car in which his father, mother, and sister were also riding with him along Jackson street in said city of Willimantic about 4 o'clock in the afternoon on said 3rd day of July, 1926. That he was driving between 15 and 18 miles per hour and that his car was well over on the right hand side of said street proceeding in a northerly direction. That a two ton truck driven by Fred Ward Rosebrooke of said city of Willimantic approached the car of said Nye from the rear traveling at a rate of speed from 25 to 30 miles per hour; and in attempting to pass the car of said Nye the right front wheel of the truck collided with the rear left fender of Nye's car shoving it a little to the right and again struck the Nye car on the left side just in the rear of the front seat forcing the front part of said car up a bank and against a tree with great violence, the truck turning over upon its side. The street where said accident occurred was of good width, straight and without obstruction of the vision of persons driving on the same. There were no other automobiles or vehicles of any kind passing in either direction at or about the time of the accident. I am unable to find from the evidence that the driver of the truck gave any signal of his approach to said Nye car and that he was about to pass the same although he had a clear view of the same for at least 200 feet. I therefore find that the death of said Raymond A. Nye was caused by the criminal and gross carelessness of the said Fred W. Rosebrooke. I delivered the body of said deceased to his relatives forthwith. I file with this finding the report of said autopsy and a copy of the testimony taken at said inquest, also communicating the import of this finding to Harry W. Gaucher, prosecuting attorney of the city of Willimantic, dated at Danielson, Conn., this 12th day of July, 1926.

ARTHUR G. BILL,
Coroner for Windham County.

There is a prospect of an increase in the town tax rate next year because of the greater amount of money that will be required for the maintenance of the enlarged Killingly high school. Interest on the new issue of bonds will represent an additional item in the tax list and provision must be made for the retirement of the bonds in annual installments of increasing amounts. An increased faculty will be required and this fact means several additional salaries to be met. What increase in the tax rate may be necessary cannot be definitely determined at present for other factors of town income may enter into it, one way or another, to compensation Killingly will have the high school as is to be found in eastern Connecticut.

There were 35 prisoners at the Windham county jail, in Brooklyn, Tuesday, an increase from the number held there a few days ago. Of those who are held, seven are bound over awaiting trial at the next term of the Windham county superior court having criminal jurisdiction.

The prediction is being freely made that potato prices are going to continue high during the coming fall and winter. This prediction is based on the fact that crops now in the ground do not promise as abundant a yield as in ordinary years, due to cold weather into June and lack of rain for the past month. There are some promising fields, but this does not apply to the crop generally in eastern Windham county.

These are the days when Chief John McFarland is having his troubles in maintaining obedience to the traffic regulations in Danielson's business sections. The majority of those who run afoul of the regulations are out of the state drivers, usually tourists. Because of the main thoroughfare through Danielson being a double trunk line highway, the traffic is nearly always heavy and infringement of traffic regulations promptly results in a jam of cars.

PUTNAM

PATENT IN CANADA FOR LOCAL INVENTION

(Special to the Bulletin)

PUTNAM, July 13.—Ulric St. Marie and George Bernier, of Putnam, who have patents in the United States of a kneeling board for churches, have been granted patents rights of the same device in Canada. The kneeling board is an overbalanced one that automatically closes when not in use. One of the main features of it is, being out of the way when not in use, it is not stepped upon by those entering the pew, and is therefore kept clean and not apt to soil the clothing of persons kneeling. It also allows of unobstructed passage through the pews, making it much easier to keep the floor clean than when obstructed by the stationary board.

ECONOMY NOT TO BLAME

In behalf of the advocacy for a greater distribution of high explosives than now [illegible] existed, no stronger argument could have been advanced than that blast in New Jersey [illegible] was touched off by lightning.

While efforts have hitherto been made for having those stores farther removed from communities the arguments in favor of such action have not been strongly supported by the [illegible] which now [illegible] to the reasons that [illegible] New Jersey reports [illegible] been advanced that [illegible] was not adopted [illegible] was [illegible] of the economy [illegible] loss of more than [illegible] Such is of course [illegible] statement so far as known [illegible] at Lake Denmark [illegible] founded by all possible [illegible] same is true of the [illegible] Picatinny. Had the [illegible] at Lake Denmark [illegible] somewhat isolated [illegible] state of Utah, as has [illegible] previous occasions [illegible] been just as good [illegible] lightning bolt [illegible] attending loss [illegible] prevailed in [illegible] of New Jersey [illegible] time as near [illegible] an array of [illegible] be open to [illegible] as in another [illegible] that there should [illegible] of it.

[illegible] of having the [illegible] explosives near the [illegible] but if not maintained [illegible] amounts could not [illegible] a greater distance [illegible] of one munitions [illegible] fired by lightning [illegible] it is out of the question to maintain that the loss in New Jersey is due to economy for had the [illegible] been made to Utah or [illegible] lightning might have [illegible] supply as [illegible] before [illegible] question of re- [illegible] front the matter [illegible] some other point [illegible] consideration.

THE VETERANS' DEMONSTRATION

As for the part of the French [illegible] against the proposed [illegible] of the war debt with [illegible] is no question but [illegible] right to parade. [illegible] which they were [illegible] was justified or [illegible] good judgment to [illegible] demonstration is another matter. Whatever they may have [illegible] in arousing opposition to the negotiations awaiting ratification they have certainly not increased the ardor in this country that there ought to be greater [illegible] toward France or that the debt should be cancelled.

It is no secret that there is much opposition in this country to the making of the terms as lenient as they are. But something more than 50 cents on the dollar, as referred to by Senator [illegible] is not to be obtained and that for that reason sentiment in certain circles is strongly against ratification. That sentiment is not modified in any way by the demonstration in France but rather is there ground for intensifying it when it doesn't appear that there is appreciation on the part of the French for the liberality which is shown in making such a severe cut in the bill.

As the matter stands in this country the agreement reached by Ambassador Berenger with the debt funding commission has not been approved. The house has given its but the senate has not and it is likely that it will not until France has decided what it is going to do. If its action upon the matter is favorable the probability is that the senate will give its approval, but if France refuses to ratify that will be the end of it and the chances of getting as liberal terms again are remote especially when Chairman Borah of the foreign relations committee insists that France is today the most prosperous nation in Europe.

France isn't helped by such demonstrations as that by the veterans when it has money to make preparations for war, money to loan other countries for war preparations, money to spend for conducting war and yet balking at the settlement of debts which it contracted in the conduct of the World war.

THE PHILIPPINE INVESTIGATION

Not much is to be gained by the prejudging of the visit and report of Colonel Carmi Thompson to the Philippines. There is always the possibility of claiming that this, or that is the object of such an investigation, that it has already been decided what is going to be reported and what the result of the report is going to be, but that is nothing but unfounded gossip. For the most part such talk is political and for political effect. The idea is to prejudice the undertaking through the creation of a wrong impression in the minds of those who are willing to let such an idea get a foothold.

As the representative of the administration Colonel Thompson is making a study of the conditions in the islands. He will take advantage of such study as others have made, see for himself what the conditions are today, get in touch with Filipino leaders and base his recommendations upon the situation as he finds it or as he is able to interpret it as set forth by the various leaders. He has gone with the idea of bringing back constructive recommendations as a guide to the administration, that if may reinforce such information as it has and be able to act in the most consistent manner and for the greatest good of all concerned. The trip is being made with full regard for the fact that much misrepresentation has been going on concerning conditions in the islands, and a knowledge of the difficulties with which Governor General Wood has been obliged to contend.

The report, whatever it is should be of much assistance in providing information on which to base a decision concerning legislation which is being sought for the islands. At the next session of congress these matters will be pressed much more ardently than in the last when they failed of recommendation one way or another.

Whatever Colonel Thompson reports it can be expected that there will be some adverse criticism but it is only just that it should be withheld until the report has been prepared and presented. Talking about something which doesn't exist gets nowhere.

REINFORCE THE HUMAN HAND

Once again it has been shown that a railroad wreck was needless, could and should have been avoided, and along with the decision new emphasis is given to the need of reinforcing the human agents by automatic devices that will be on the job at all times.

The bureau of safety of the interstate commerce commission finds that, as the result of the recent wreck of an express train by plowing into a freight that was crossing from one track to another at Mansfield, Mass., under the rules the engineer of the express should been guided by the caution signal and to have regarded it as against him if he saw no signal there. That would have permitted him to have stopped his train at the home signal before hitting the freight. The fact that the lights were out on these signals shows that the lampman might also have prevented the wreck by proper maintenance, but the engineer should have been warned by the fact that there was no light. In addition it is set forth that the tower man might have been in better control of the situation had he definitely found out that the whole freight and not the engine and one car as he thought was going over the crossing.

Furthermore the finding is to the effect that had the line been equipped with an automatic control system the accident would not have occurred. That tells the story. In so many instances is it the case that wrecks are caused by the failure of the human agent to do his duty, to give heed to the small things and to take chances, that the automatic control is necessary to furnish protection when the various persons who are expected to and should prevent accidents fail to do so.

CANT HAVE CAKE AND EAT IT

A Michigan motorist is credited with the statement that" The new paved road through the Irish hills is beautiful from an engineering point of view, but is far less picturesque than the old gravel road."

That is a remark that could be made concerning many an improved highway. When the engineer lays out a road as part of a state system he seeks to reduce grades, to eliminate curves and to make it as straight a line of travel as possible under prevailing conditions and as funds will permit. This means invariably a highway that is easy riding, safer and better compared with what it replaces, but it always encourages faster driving and has in mind the idea of getting somewhere rather than the preservation of the attractiveness of the winding roads and the wooded areas that was so closely identified with the old time roads. What might have been regarded as pleasure roads in other days are business thoroughfares today. If trees are in the way they must go, if hills can be given a better grade they are cut and at their foot are large fills. This makes an oportunity for the landscape artist to bring his art into play but it means a long time before his work will begin to make the showing, if ever, that featured the road before improvement.

But the demand continues to be for better roads. It has come with the automobile and there's no indication of abatement and along with the improvement there must be sacrifices. That is invariably true along the whole march of progress. We can't have our cake and eat it.

EDITORIAL NOTES

The man on the corner says: When it rains we want the sunshine and when the sun shines we want the rain.

Mr. Lowden thinks the farmers should become more intelligent. Now what will the farmers think of that!

Now the complaint comes from the middlewest that the weatherman is showing too much consideration for the growing crops.

From the way the French franc keeps going down it has apparently not been taught how to swim with a load on its shoulders.

Frightful are the tolls of the sea as the S-51 shows but even the tolls on land as the New Jersey explosions show are not neglible.

Even though there is no ordinance about respecting the signal at Shannon's corner it is not wise to treat the traffic officer in the same manner.

FROM LUCILE'S DIARY

One day early last week I ran in to call upon Polly Howard. I had not had a real visit since she and Evan came home from Europe about a month ago. After politely looking at photographs and hearing about their travels, I inquired if she had brought home lots of pretty clothes.

"No, indeed," she answered, "though Evan did insist upon my having a few new costumes. He himself bought a striking frock for me in Florence. I must show you that dress."

"I'd love to see all your things."

"You may, but I think the Florentine gown is the only one which will thrill you," said Polly, and she was right. The mingling of gold tissue and richly embroidered georgette made that Florentine dress stand out from all the rest with wonderful distinction. I was simply crazy over it, and I asked Polly if I might try it on, and when I saw myself in it I was so delighted I could hardly bear to take it off and return to my commonplace apparel.

"Oh, Polly, dear," I said, "I wouldn't copy this for the world, but I should love to have my dressmaker see it, and see me in it, for I do think it would give her some ideas about the gown she is going to make for me next week. Of course we can't get any such materials or embroidery, but if she could follow the lines of this wonder creation you wouldn't care, would you? If you'll just let me take it home with me for her to see, I'll be careful of it, and send it back to you at once."

I could not help feeling that Polly's consent was rather grudging, but she did let me take the frock home, and I called up Miss Barker right away, asking her to come to look at it, and she promised to drop in some time after ised to drop in some evening after work as soon as possible. As it turned out I was glad she did not come immediately, for I received an invitation to go out to Highland Park to dine at Adella Boyde's, and she asked me to wear something smart and pretty.

"I'm asking two gentleman friends from New York and two distinguished travelers," she said gayly, "so we must put our best food forward."

It occurred to me at once that there could really be no harm in wearing Polly's dress way out there in Highland Park among people that she did not know. I knew it would please Adella to have me garbed so beautifully at her dinner, so I decided to do it.

As I was on my way to the drawing room to assist Adella in receiving the guests, I met, of all persons, Polly Howard on the stairs. She gave me a look of wild astonishment.

"Why," Lucile," she exclaimed, "How could you do such a thing?"

"I didn't think you would mind," I said, "nor did I know you were coming."

"Why," said Adella, who just that moment joined us, "now you see who my distinguished travelers are—Polly and Evan. Isn't this jolly to have them home again?"

"Why, I didn't know they were friends of yours," I said.

"Yes, indeed; we met in Switzerland last summer, and I arranged this little party for a surprise for you all."

"It's some surprise," remarked Polly inelegantly. She glared at me all the evening, and if it had not been for my remarkable poise her angry glances would have ruined Adella's party. I paid no attention to her only too evident ill humor, and did all I could with talk and laughter to make the affair a success. I could see that my brightness and gayety were not lost upon the two charming men from New York. I expect to see them both next time I go east.

This morning I had a curt note from Polly stating that she felt sure that I would wish to buy her Florentine gown, as of course, she could not now wear it. She said the price would be $100, for which it could never be duplicated in this country. I certainly think this a great imposition on her part and extremely inconsiderate. She knows very well that I cannot afford to spend a $100 on that frail and frivolous frock. I shall write to her that if she insists upon my buying it I shall have to make monthly payments, as I cannot think of asking father for a $100 now when he has just given me a generous check for the frock Miss Barker is making for me. — Chicago News.

Stories That Recall Others

Jones was dug out of the wreck of his automobile and carried into the nearest doctor's office. "I can't do anything for this man," said the doctor. "I'm a veterinary surgeon."

"You're the right man doc," said the amateur motorist, "I was a jackass to think I could run that machine."

Tough On Us

George age nine had been spending some of his vacation with his grandfather on the farm. Sitting on the front porch one evening grandfather commented that this cool weather is fine for man and beast but not very good for the corn crop.

No one thought about George making any note of the conversation but back home during the two recent hot days he had apparently recalled it. Sitting on his own porch the last remark he made was: "Gee, daddy, this might be all right for the corn but it's tough on us, isn't it."

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Let the Best Dog Win

Dear Editor: I am sure all followers of the dog shows are sorry to hear that the owner of Tock should consider the judgment of Mr. Patterson, a licensed judge by the A. K. C., our national dog organization, a farce. But then, knowing that this was the first time the owner of Tock ever showed a dog we can appreciate the authority with which the owner speaks.

I do not know just what the owner means by my Brunolf of Pine Tree being something "made over." But I do know that he is the result of honest effort to improve the breed, and I challenge anyone to question his breeding. We would like very much to know the name of this man who "knows a German Shepherd where he sees one." Perhaps he may care to answer my letter.

I can excuse Tock's owner's criticism of Brunolf and our licensed dog show, but I can not excuse her mistaken ideas concerning her own dog's ancestors. For such seems to be the case. It may be true that Tock's ancestors went over the top, but not with our boys.

We agree with Tock's owner that she entered her dogs "for the joke of the thing" and that she "still considers it a good joke." We consider it a good "joke" too, and also poor sporting spirit. I do not see why Tock's owner should begrudge my dogs what honor they may have won at the dog show. Surely it cost her nothing.

However, everybody loves his or her dog best and no one need be ashamed of that. Please do not think me too severe in this letter for I admire Tock's owner's faith and loyalty to her dogs.

With this I close: To my friends and foes alike, more friendly competition, more sporting spirit, best wishes to you all, and let the best dog win.

Transatlantic Plane

Estimating that a speed of 200 to 250 miles an hour would be necessary to make transatlantic airplane flights commercially attractive, Walter G. Brenner, a German inventor, has prepared plans for a giant ship which would utilize the decreased air resistance at very high altitudes to make such speed possible. The enormous resistance encountered at low altitudes at high speed would require engines out of all proportion to the plane to overcome it, he believes, but by ascending to between 26,000 and 32,000 feet, the density of the air would be so reduced that its resistance would be correspondingly lessened.

At such heights the passengers, and the motors, too, would have to have air supplied at normal sea-level pressure, so the entire ship as designed is airtight, the atmosphere being supplied by pumps. His plan calls for a light duraluminum body and wings, designed along the same lines as those of the all-metal Junkers plane, but greatly magnified.

The passenger cabin would be located in the wings, now utilized in many metal ships for gasoline tanks. The leading edge of the wings would have glass windows. Control and crew quarters, freight space and additional passenger quarters would be located in the hull. The fuselage plan differs from the usual flying boat type in that it is fitted with two wings, a metal pontoons, one on either side. Although the ship is designed as a monoplane, in the air the set of pontoons would give additional supporting surface.

Herr Brenner's design is based on the fact that a large part of the power developed by a flying machine's motors is used to overcome the air resistance. Without increasing the consumption of fuel, he believes he can double the speed at high altitudes, as that ordinary motors would be large enough to power it.

Too many friends in need will keep an easy man broke.

BURGESS BEDTIME STORIES

Tattler Is True to His Name

A tattler sometimes has his use,
And for his being there's excuse.
—Old Mother Nature.

Danny Meadow Mouse had just made the acquaintance of Tattler the Yellowlegs down on the salt marsh where Danny was now living. That is, he was spending much of his time on the marsh, although his home was on the high land close to the marsh. Danny quite admired Tattler. "Do you know," said he, "I thought you were a giant? Yes, sir, I did. I thought you were a Giant Sandpiper."

Tattler laughed. "We do belong to the same family," said he, "and I suppose I do look a good deal like a Giant Sandpiper. However, my name is Yellow-legs, so don't forget it; Tattler the Yellow-legs."

Just then Tattler stretched his neck

So away he went, as fast as his short legs could take him up and looked over the marsh. Then hastily he took to his wings and away he went, whistling as only he can whistle. Danny could hear that whistle when Tattler was so far away that he couldn't be seen. Everybody else heard it, too. That is, everybody around that part of the marsh heard it. Up from the bed of a creek a short distance away flew Longlegs the Great Blue Heron. A little farther along Blackcrown the Night Heron flapped his way up into the air. Peep and his friends came skimming past just over the tops of the grass. Without being told, somehow Danny knew that it was all on account of Tattler's whistle. Being so little and short himself, he couldn't see over the grass, so he couldn't know what was the cause of it all. But he had a feeling that Tattler had seen danger of some kind and had given warning.

This is just exactly what had happened. Tattler is the watchman of the marshes. Wherever he goes he is always on the watch, and the instant he sees anything suspicious he gives the alarm. Because his whistle can be heard so far all the marsh folk have learned to look on him as a sort of watchman and to be on guard whenever they hear that whistle. So Tattler is true to his name. It is, of course, a nice kind of tattling, because it is doing his neighbors a good turn. It has, however, made him greatly disliked by some who miss a dinner because of his tattling.

Danny himself decided that as long as he didn't know what the danger might be, the wisest thing for him to do would be to get back home. So away he went as fast as his short legs could take him. Just as he reached the hollow log in which he had made his home a familiar voice said "Hello! So this is where you are living."

Danny gave a little squeak of startled surprise. Then he found his voice. "Hello," said he. "Yes, this is where I am living. My, how you startled me, Jimmy Skunk!" For it was his old friend of the bathhouse, the black Jimmy Skunk.

"What were you running so fast for?" inquired Jimmy.

Danny looked a wee bit foolish. "I don't know," he confessed. "Tattler the Yellowlegs gave an alarm and everybody seemed to take it as a danger signal, so I ran home."

Jimmy grinned. "If you run every time you hear Tattler down there on the marsh, you'll spend a good deal of your time running," said he. "Tattler is a good watchman all right, but he whistles when there is no need of it. He is such a timid fellow himself, and so very watchful, that he whistles an alarm at the least unexpected or unusual thing. He's a great traveler, that fellow is."

"Is he any greater traveler than the other feathered folk who go south in the winter?" inquired Danny.

"He travels twice as far as most of them do," replied Jimmy. "At least, that is what I have been told. I am told that there are very few birds go as far south as he does in the winter. In the spring he goes almost as far north. Perhaps it is the dangers of these long journeys that make him so watchful and suspicious. By the way, I thought you were going to let me show you things. Why not come over the beach with me tonight?"

OBITUARY

Mrs. J. Oliver Armstrong

Word was received in this city shortly after nine o'clock Tuesday evening, of the sudden death in West Hartford of Eleanor Gebrath Armstrong, wife of J. Oliver Armstrong, formerly of Norwich, and daughter of Alderman Henry Gebrath. The sad news came entirely without warning to members of the family and a host of friends in Norwich and many expressions of sympathy were voiced for the bereaved family. Meager information gained was that death occurred shortly before Alderman Gebrath was notified by phone and that heart trouble was the cause of death. Mrs. Armstrong was born in Preston, March 23, 1887, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Gebrath and most of her life had been spent in this city. She was educated in the school at Preston and was a graduate of the Norwich Free Academy.

In April 1915 she was united in marriage to J. Oliver Armstrong by Rev. Joseph F. Cobb, then pastor of the Church of the Good Shepherd, Universalist. For a number of years following their marriage, Mr. and Mrs. Armstrong lived in Norwich, later moving to Philadelphia and then to West Hartford, where they had resided for a number of years.

While in Norwich Mrs. Armstrong was a member of the Universalist church and previous to her marriage held a responsible position with the old Norwich Nickel and Brass company. Hers was a charming personality and in her business, as well as social life, she gained many friends who will learn of her sudden death with sincere regret. A loving wife and mother and a considerate daughter, her death leaves a break in the family circle which can never be filled.

Mrs. Armstrong is survived by her husband and two children, J. Oliver Armstrong, Jr., and Kendal Armstrong, both of West Hartford; her father, Alderman Henry Gebrath, and two sisters and one brother, Mrs. Theodore Pike of Norwich, Mrs. Ray Christopher of Syracuse and Albert H. Gebrath or Groton; also several nephews and nieces.

Immediately upon receiving notice of the death of his daughter Alderman Gebrath left for West Hartford to make arrangements to bring the body to Norwich for burial.

PERJURY CHARGE MADE OVER AUTOMOBILE LICENSE

As a result of a family quarrel over a new automobile, Russell Morgan of East Great Plain, son of Thompson apent Tuesday night at the police station and this (Wednesday) morning will be presented in court on a charge of perjury in obtaining a license to drive the automobile.

Morgan's license was taken out on April 29, 1926, with his age given as 19 years, but when questioned by Captain Thomas Murphy, Tuesday night Morgan admitted that there was an error of one year. His mother insisted that the boy was not old enough to drive a car and that he would not be 18 until February of next year.

The trouble evidently started when Morgan's mother, who claims the car was purchased for her by a son, Horace, who is in the Columbia theatre, New York, demanded the keys to the automobile and her son refused to give them to her. The police were appealed to and in the station Mrs. Thompson's statement was to the effect that the car, although registered in the name of her son, Horace, was purchased for her and that Russell refused to let her have the keys and learn how to drive.

The charge of perjury came after Morgan's mother made the statement that he was not yet 18, although his license claimed 19 years. Bonds were set at $500 which the young man's mother refused to furnish.

HIGH STREET RESIDENT HAD VERANDAH GARAGE

If you want to save garage expense when building a house make the veranda a wide one and have a sloping front on it so you can park your auto there. This would be great if it worked, but the firemen would soon see that it did not function properly.

The veranda parking stunt has been worked for some time past by a resident of High street. He got away with it nicely, escaping the notice of the police and the insurance companies, until Tuesday night. Then a complaint was made to the fire department that this habit was endangering nearby property especially the Jewish synagogue and Deputy Chief Henry A. Taft went to the High street house and informed the owner of the veranda and automobile that the twain must ne'er meet again or the owner would pay for his parking space.

It is understood that the man had a garage overtown but because he could drive from the street directly onto a wide veranda, he used this space as a matter of convenience.

Fourteen of San Francisco's wealthiest men, representing fortunes in excess of $100,000,000, met at San Francisco and formed a community foundation under which millions of the surplus wealth of the richer families will be donated to the future benefit of the community as a whole.

SEARCH FOR ASSAILANT OF LISBON YOUNG WOMAN

Throughout the day Tuesday numerous clues in connection with the brutal assault on Anna Donnelly, 14 year old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James W. Donnelly of Bundy Hill road, Lisbon, were run down by officers engaged in the case but nothing of importance came from any of them.

One suspect, found to be in Lebanon, was interviewed during the day but proved that he had not been away from Lebanon during the day Monday. Various other clues were run down but all of them came to naught. There was a report that one search had led to the room of a man in a certain boarding house where evidence of a hurried departure was to be seen, but this report could not be officially verified.

The investigation now evidently has settled down to running down all possible clues in connection with happenings before the assault took place and it is alleged that numerous other parties will be questioned today (Wednesday) to see if they can throw any light on the mystery.

At the Backus hospital where she has been a patient since she was found lying bruised and shattered behind a stonewall off the Bundy Hill road, the Donnelly girl continued to show signs of improvement Tuesday and by night was resting comfortably, although still suffering the pain of numerous cuts and bruises.

Questioning Tuesday failed to bring the needed information to the police for the girl stated that her assailant attacked her from behind and kept her eyes covered throughout the struggle. She stated that she screamed and struggled and that her assailant, a strong man, struck her with his free hand until she became unconscious. The fight lasted some minutes the girl stated and "he tried to get fresh with me—and nearly succeeded." Immediately following she said she was struggling to get away from the man who had then dragged her into the bushes. At this time she believed she was struck with a stone or some other heavy weapon and she lost consciousness.

The s ene of the struggle bore out the girl's story of her fight, her assailant having first attacked her on the right hand side of the road, then fought her across the road into a thickly wooded section. The bushes here were trampled down for a wide area and stones stained with blood bore testimony of the villainous assault.

How such a struggle could have taken place without someone in the vicinity having heard the terrified screams of the girl remains a mystery, yet residents nearby state that they heard no screams and there are a number of houses at a distance not too far for the occupants to have heard any screams.

No further clues relative to the tall stranger seen in that vicinity not long before the attack took place have been found. The whole attack remains a mystery but the one outstanding indication is that the assailant must have been familiar with the girl's habit of cutting across lots the time of her arrival at that locality and a fine knowledge of the layout of the land in that section, for it was this knowledge that enabled him to escape without being seen by residents of houses in that vicinity and destroy evidence of the struggle which he must have carried on his person due to the large amount of blood lost by the victim during her lengthy fight.

HORACE GREELEY LETTER PRIZED BY JUDGE McCLOUD

Reference was made Monday to an interesting experience of Judge Richard McCloud, now of Durango, Col., with famous Horace Greeley. One of Judge McCloud's treasured possession, is the following letter:

New York Tribune,
New York, Nov. 6, 1868.

My Dear Sir:

I rejoice with you over our great national triumph, while I deeply regret that New York has been debarred by fraud from her just participation therein.

Thanking you for your signal service to liberty,

I remain, yours,
HORACE GREELEY.

Richard McCloud, Esq.,
Norwich, Conn.

Judge McCloud made speeches for the election of U. S. Grant for president in the 1868 campaign—that was his "signal services to liberty." In 1867 he was on the stump for Marshall Jewell for governor of Connecticut for about three weeks prior to the election, making his first speech in Norwich. His speeches were reported in the New York Tribune by Barclay Gallagher.

About 1866, he got Horace Greeley to deliver his lecture on "Self-Made Men," at Breed hall, Norwich, also managed a reception for him at the Wauregan house during the day of his lecture. For his return to New York city he got the bridal chamber on the passenger and freight steamer that left the Norwich dock in the afternoon and arrived in New York city the next morning.

In the spring of 1869, when Mr. McCloud filed his application for a position in the New York city custom house, so that he could work his way through Columbia college law school, Horace Greeley walked with him from the Tribune office to the custom house, making a plea for him to the collector of the port, Hon. Moses H. Grinnell. The Norwich young man did not actually need the salary at that time, as he had just sold a three-story brick building which he owned on Water street, running through to Main street, but his industrious instincts moved him to neglect no opportunity which would aid in his advancement. He was appointed by Grinnell foreign export clerk, at $1,600 salary, which was increased to $1,800 after a few months. He resigned in 1872, after he had won his LL. B. at Columbia.

Judge McCloud owns coal land in the vicinity of Durago, also has lode mining claims which contain gold, silver and lead ores, near Silverton, Col.

His holdings include also town lots in Tagoen Springs, Col., and other places.

Although 80 years old May 17th last he continues in good health and is active in his daily duties.

He recalls that the cousin of Dr. Penniman, Prof. Charles R. Lanman of Harvard, was at Norwich Free Academy when he himself was a student there, mentions Prof. Lanman as an LL. D. of Harvard and as having collaborated with President Elliot in the Collier's library books.

COMPLETES FIRST MONTH AS HOSPITAL SUPERINTENDENT

Miss Lucy B. Abbott is completing her first month as superintendent at the William W. Backus hospital, where she took charge on June 15 succeeding F. Leo Hutchins, who is at his summer camp on Samoset island, Lake Winnepesaukee, N. H.

MISS LUCY B. ABBOTT

Following her appointment as superintendent Miss Abbott took a course at Columbia hospital administration as special preparation for assuming the Norwich position in order that she might have this technical training to add to her practical experience gained as a graduate nurse from the Massachusetts homeopathic hospital at Boston and war service, 1918-1919, during the World war.

STILL WITHOUT SITE FOR NEW SCHOOL BUILDING

Members of the town school board were unable to give out any information regarding the site for the new school building at Norwich Town following their meeting in the office of Superintendent of Schools E. J. Graham.

The meeting was in charge of Walter F. Lester, chairman of the board, and much routine business was transacted. The resignation of Miss Grace E. Dyer, teacher of grade three, Elizabeth street school, was submitted to the board and was accepted. A new teacher appointed was Miss Maybelle Scott of this city, but who has not been assigned to her grade and school.

Although no mention was made it was understood that the matter of price seems to be the point which is holding up action on the proposed school for Norwich Town. Information given out in the past has been of a nature such as to indicate that private spirited citizens are willing to sell property in desired locations in upper Norwich, but at such prices as would make a large hole in the sum appropriated for the purchase of a site and construction of the building. What action is to be taken by the board is a matter of conjecture at this time as whatever has been planned has been held as information for the sole knowledge of the school board.

WILL BE PRESENTED ON EMBEZZLEMENT CHARGE

Harry Beam, 29, of New Haven, is being held by the local police, under bonds of $1,000, on a charge alleging embezzlement of the sum of $25 from Max Bassenson of 235 Main street, Beam was arrested in New London Tuesday morning on a warrant issued by City Attorney Leo Rogers and Officer Michael Carroll was sent to New London to bring the young man to this city.

Beam will be presented in court this (Wednesday) morning to answer to the charge of embezzlement. It is also charged that he collected the amount for a similar claim of $25 in the case of Mapleville, R. I., which he also claims is for a sum approximately $200.

Beam is alleged to be connected with a contracting and building concern in New Haven which is said to hold contracts for work on roofs of local Catholic churches. It is also understood that the charges came through a misunderstanding and that certified checks to cover the amounts alleged to have been embezzled were at hand when court session opens in the morning.

Johnny Greene on the mound for the Power Co. pitched a strong game especially in the pinches holding the Taftville boys to six hits and walked one. DELANEY AND BERLENBACH COMPLETE THEIR TAINING

NEW YORK, July 13.—(AP)—Jack Delaney of Bridgeport, Conn., today put the finishing touches to his training for his 10-round engagement with Paul Berlenbach, light-heavyweight championship contender, in the second attempt to wrest the championship crown from the fugitive Pan Berlenbach of Astoria, N. Y. Both boys field Thursday night.

Battle plans of the New England challenger reaching New York ahead of his rival here tomorrow, promise an early effort for a knockout triumph. Profiting by his experience in their last encounter, when Berlenbach answered a four round knockdown with a stirring finish which saved the crown, Delaney announced his hope to terminate the struggle within the first five rounds in a finishing fight.

Information from camps of the two fighters today indicated that the champion would probably scale at not more than three pounds higher than his Bridgeport foreman. Berlenbach tipped the beam at 173, but expected to pare off three pounds tomorrow night in the steaming out process. Delaney's poundage was announced at 172 the mark at which he expects to enter the ring Thursday night.

Despite optimistic reports from the camp of the champion and his success in beating off the challenge of Delaney in their last encounter, wagers today continue to show the contender a slight favorite. As a matter of fact the betting was slightly greater than it had been last week, ranging from 11-10 to 6-5.

Failure of the weather man to look upon the occasion will postpone the match to Friday night, the New York state athletic commission said today. In the event that Friday night also brings rain, the bout will be staged Saturday.

JEWETT CITY

DEEP SEA FISHERMEN DON'T GLIMPSE A SWORDFISH

(Special to the Bulletin)

JEWETT CITY, July 13.—Charles Palmer, Ross Cook, Fred Condie, George Gutnecht, Doc. Wallace, Chet Geer, Harry Winchester and Fred Heulk the last two from Hartford, are back after two days' cruise for swordfish off Block Island. Although the boys caught over 200 fine mackerel, they didn't get a glimpse of larger fish. Not because Skipper Joe doesn't know the lay of swordfish water, and not because his vessel is not as fine a ship as ever cleft the sea, or ever spread a maintop sail unto a spanking breeze; but because a warning had evidently reached all swordfish in Block Island sound to "run submerged and carry no lights." The trip was not without its unfavorable features, for Captain Joe had to about ship and head for the mainland, with everything chawing on account of the terrifying mal-de-mer sufferings of two of his seamen (?)

In a 15 knot breeze off South Light, lemons and black jack plug were the only thing finding favor. The ships cook had a fine time but the doctor put in double service—and says next time he will carry a stomach pump operated by power.

Miss Lilian La Chapelle is at home, after a week spent in Wonsocket, and Boston where she was the guest of relatives.

Miss Ethel F. Main of Gales Ferry is visiting her aunt, Mrs. Walter L. Johnson at "Suncrest," Pachaug.

All day Tuesday, Chief Two Moon's traveling palace car was parked in Postoffice square, where it was inspected by more than a thousand natives and visitors to the borough.

The captain in charge was extremely courteous and explained to all who entered the comforts and practical workings of this wonderful car, mounted on a White chassis. It is 33 feet long by eight feet wide, with a clearing overhead of 11 feet. A hardly better explanation can be offered than to liken this coach de luxe to a half length Pullman convertable drawing room coach and sleeper, fitted with electric heat, light and fans, hot and cold baths and shower, fully equipped lavatory facilities, with all modern accessories. A Seth Thomas chronometer, an aneroid barometer, enables the driver to forecast approaching storms. A rear observation platform is not the least of the car's appointments, all of which cost $23,000.

Every bit of space is utilized. A modern ice making plant occupies a part of the central body, while hidden here and there are over a ton of storage batteries, so that light, even though the car be not moved for a day, is always available by throwing the switch.

The big machine has travelled 17,000 miles and can do 45 easy on a good road. En route, the cafe can furnish anything from a "long cold one" to a "double medium on brown."

Tuesday night wound up the third straight week, with practically no rain in this section. Farmers all through the outlying districts, kept their haying operations going Sunday, without delay. One farmer said Monday, that he must harvest his hay while he had any to cut. Some light upland redtop will not pay to run the machine over it. Swale, bottoms and herd's grass land are producing a two-thirds yield.

Friends of Mrs. J. P. Richardson and her daughter, Viva, wife and daughter respectively, of a former pastor at Pachaug, will be interested to learn that Miss Richardson has accepted a new position as teacher of music which is in the College of Music, Illinois Woman's college, Jacksonville, Ill. She commences her duties September 13. Her mother is to spend the school year with her daughter in Illinois. They are spending the summer at Pine Orchard, Conn., where Miss Richardson is playing for the summer. Mrs. Richardson will also visit her sister at Twin Lakes, Conn. She hopes to visit Griswold friends in August on her way back to Dorchester.

WESTERLY

PLEASANT VIEW FIRE DIST. HOLDS ANNUAL MEETING

(Special to the Bulletin)

WESTERLY, R. I., July 13.— The annual meeting of Pleasant View fire district was called to order Tuesday evening at 8:30 o'clock by Moderator Frank A. Sullivan, in the new parlors of the Wigwam hotel. Following the reading of the call, reports of various officers and committees were heard. As it is contemplated to erect suitable quarters for housing fire apparatus at Pleasant View Beach, a larger number of district voters than usual was in attendance.

By a vote of 29 to 11 the meeting adopted the resolution introduced by Fire Chief Charles M. Lamb, that the district appropriate $15,000 for the purchase of fire apparatus and to erect a suitable house, with the matter left in charge of the committee on fire protection. Authorization was voted the district treasurer, Arthur L. Perry, to hire such sums as might be necessary and to issue the notes of the district, countersigned by the moderator and clerk.

Officers elected were: Moderator, Frank A. Sullivan; clerk, George B. Utter, former clerk H. B. Clark having declined re-election; collector of taxes, Merton L. Stott; treasurer, Arthur L. Perry; assessors of taxes, Alfred F. Clark, William F. Saunders and James Collins; fire chief, Charles M. Lamb, who was voted authority to name his assistants. The fire prevention committee was the same as last year with the addition of the name of Raymond Reynolds. All other committees are the same as last year. The nominating committee was Clifford W. Campbell, Charles E. Fowler and George E. Phillips.

The report of the tax collector, M. L. Stott, showed taxes collected for the year 1925 amounting to $3,991.17; uncollected taxes for the year, $493.22; for 1924, $17.70, uncollected for sidewalks, $59.19; collected for sidewalks, $382.62. The report was voted approved and recorded as received.

The report of Treasurer Arthur L. Perry showed balance from previous treasurers, $1,647.46. Tax collections received from tax collectors for the years of 1924, 1925 and 1926, together with sidewalk assessments, interest on bank balance and notes of $4,000 made total receipts of $12,462.76. The disbursements amounted to $7,160, with a balance on deposit in the Washington trust Co. amounting to $5,302.58.

The report of the public improvements committee showed that sidewalks laid had been accepted and in cases where owners had laid their own walks, the refund of one-half of the cost was voted them. Approval was made of the renumbering of the houses in Pleasant View, which is to be completed by Aug. 1, 1926. As a result of their renumbering, letter carrier service is provided at the beach twice a day. A vote of thanks was given Highway Engineer A. L. Leon for his work on the sidewalks.

The report of Chief of the Fire Department Charles M. Lamb showed that nine fire calls had been responded to since the last report, eight in the district and one outside. Four new hydrants have been added, making a total of 33. The equipment is reported in good condition with two metal fire extinguishers and 750 feet of hose. The chief's report closed with an urgent request for better fire fighting apparatus.

The garbage collection contract showed $800 paid Frank G. Cahoone.

The salary of the tax collector was voted doubled, making it $200. It was voted that the treasurer pay bills on the approval of the moderator and clerk.

The tax rate for the ensuing year was fixed at seven mills, the same as the past year.

Capt. W. F. Saunders was voted thanks for his transfer to the district of a suitable site for the fire house, the only conditions being a refund to him of $300 paid for sidewalks.

It was voted to pay the yearly sum of $700 on the sidewalk construction account, on which the district now holds $3,300.

Under the head of new business, Moderator Sullivan made a lengthy argument for the purchase of new fire apparatus, stating as one reason, that on June 26 the Boston Fire Insurance exchange had increased the Pleasant View rate 50 per cent over that at Watch Hill. He said that when hydrants were installed it was understood by the underwriters that a suitable motor pump would be added and as this had not been carried out, the raise had followed. It would be necessary to have the district purchase a $750 gallon pumper like that at Watch Hill in order for the insurance rates to be lowered. Lengthy discussion of various rates resulted, when Mr. Sullivan said that in sending for Westerly aid in fire protection the equipment there was housed in a wooden building and on wooden floors. He said that Pleasant View could not go on forever as in the past without adequate fire protection and he didn't want to live on a beach which sponged on other people for its fire protection.

Fire Chief Lamb spoke despairingly of the time taken by Westerly apparatus to reach the beach, which brought a sharp rejoinder from Westerly Fire Chief George E. Egger. Horace E. Burdick, of the Watch Hill department, rose to the defense of the LaFrance pumper, which Charles E. Fowler had told the district meeting had been out of order.

George E. Phillips stated to the district that he was satisfied to have the apparatus housed in his building as in the past, but he thought a suitable pump should be procured and proper stations erected along the pond, with an intake pipe to the pond from which to draw water. It was voted that Moderator Sullivan represent the Pawcatuck fire district at the next budget meeting of the town of Westerly. A recommendation was voted for electric lights to be installed on Winnapaug road, also the meeting voted the charter of the Pleasant View fire district be amended and Westerly legislators instructed to see that voting power be given owners of property in Rhode Island, similar to that passed in amending the Watch Hill fire district charter.

Previous to taking the vote on the purchase of fire apparatus, Moderator Sullivan asked that those residing in Pleasant View fire district, although not eligible to vote, express themselves on the purchase of fire apparatus. The result was 32 in favor and 5 against.

A Buick coupe, 4Y 520, N. Y., driven by Mrs. Grace McClellan, of New York, who was accompanied by her sister, got out of control Tuesday afternoon about 3 o'clock on Granite street and came to a stop on the sidewalk just above the Granite street causeway entrance to the Westerly High school building. As the automobile was proceeding easterly on Broad street the silent traffic signal was rounded on to Granite street but the automobile did not straighten away to go up Granite street with the result that it became out of control in the deep gutter by the high school building. It may have been that the accelerator was stepped on for tire marks showed the power with which the machine mounted the curb, and bumping the end of the lower brick wall of the causeway continued on up the Granite street cement sidewalk and came to a stop against the iron railing of the school yard. The occupants of the car escaped injury. The forward right hand fender, and wheel of the machine were smashed and twisted and the axle bent.

Fire on Tuesday afternoon destroyed the Ford ton truck of Julius Gordon, marketman in Pawtucket, when it caught fire at the Gordon residence on the North Stonington road. A call came to Patrolman Wilson Brown that the fire had started and proceeding to the P. St. Barber hose house on Liberty street, enough firemen were summoned to man the truck and proceed to the Gordon place. When the truck arrived the fire had such a start that the firemen's efforts were of no avail.

The Memorial fund for the erection of a World War Memorial to Pawcatuck veterans, which is being sponsored by Harley P. Chase post, No. 1265, Veterans of Foreign Wars, has increased to $105 during the past two weeks. Added to the $540 previously subscribed, it brings the present total to $645. The committee in charge of the Memorial fund has again stated that when the Memorial is erected at the corner of West Broad and South Broad streets, the names of all Pawcatuck men who served in the World war will appear thereon. There has been an impression among some that only the names of those belonging to the Veterans of Foreign Wars would appear on the Memorial, but the committee wants to emphasize that this is not so and that every young wan of Pawcatuck who served during the war whether in this country or in France, will have his name on the memorial tablet.

The 36th anniversary of its graduation from Westerly High school will be observed today (Wednesday) by the class of 1890, at Weekapaug. The ten remaining members of the total number of 12, with their families will be present at noon and several will remain throughout the day. It has become the custom of this class to hold reunions every other year at various places. The graduates of 1890 who expect to attend the reunion today are: Drs. J. Devere Barber, John O'Connell and William A. Hillard, Mrs. Mary Lake, Mrs. Abbey Phelps, Allen Whitford, Aubrey Lewis, Henry Moore of Brooklyn, Hobart B. Ayers of Pittsburgh and Fred Allen of Boston. Drs. O'Connell and Hillard are the committee on arrangements.

Willard H. Bacon, superintendent of schools of Westerly, has been appointed by Walter E. Ranger, commissioner of education, along with Superintendent Everett C. Preston of Johnston, and Frederick H. Reed of Providence Commercial High school a commission duly authorized by the state board of education to obtain more comprehensive information of school records and accounting in the several towns and cities in the state. During the session of the legislature, Commissioner Walter E. Ranger was empowered to make this investigation, and he in turn has delegated this commission to obtain the facts necessary. Supt. Bacon, when questioned, said that the principal purpose of the survey to be made is to secure adoption of uniform blanks for school accounting, and also uniform blanks for other school records. The commission is already at work. They are consulting school superintendents throughout the state and clerks of school committees.

Reported in a critical condition at Westerly hospital the first of the week Louis Caspagna, nine year old son of Joseph Caspagna, 15 Central Park, is suffering from abdominal injuries. The boy was pinned between the rear of an auto truck and a stone post in the yard at 67 Pierce street, Sunday. Thomas Grispino, Pierce street, was playing with Caspagna. Grispino, it is understood, started the motor of the truck and shifted into reverse. The machine moved backwards, and Caspagna was caught between the tailboard and the stone post.

At the meeting of the Watch Hill Fire district Monday at Watch Hill, officers were elected as follows: Moderator, Henry L. Burdick; clerk, Reginald E. Peck; treasurer, Horace E. Burdick; health officer, Dr. John Champlin; member of park commission (for five years), Mrs. Davis C. Anderson; chief fire engineer, George W. Hoxie; first assistant engineer, Joseph Dussault; second assistant engineer, Reginald E. Peck; third assistant, Horace E. Burdick; collector of taxes, Reginald E. Peck; auditors Daniel F. Larkin and Albert L. Young.

A budget committee formed as a result of adoption of a new accounting system was named as follows: Horace E. Burdick, treasurer for three years; Daniel F. Larkin, chairman of the park commission for two years; and George W. Hoxie, chief fire engineer for one year. The report of the treasurer, Horac E. Burdick, showed the cash balance of the treasury at $4,271.76. A motion was carried that there be no taxe assessed this year.

An educational exhibit was opened this week at the Westerly Memorial and Public library in the art gallery. POETRY

A Storm in the Distance

I see the cloud-born squadrons of the gale,
Their lines of rain like glittering spears deprest,
While all the affrighted land grows darkly pale
In flashing charge on earth's half-shielded breast.

Sounds like the rush of tramping columns float,
From that fierce conflict; volleyed thunders peal,
Blent with the maddened wind's wild bugle note;
The lightnings flash, the solid woodlands reel.

Hal many a foliaged guardian of the night,
Majestic pine or chestnut, riven and bare,
Falls in the rake of that aerial fight
Led by the Prince of all the Powers of air!

Vast boughs like shattered banners hurtling fly
Down the thick tumult; while, with emerald snow,
Millions of orphaned leaves make wild the sky,
Or drift in shuddering helplessness below.

Still, still, the levelled lances of the rain
At earth's half-shielded breast take glittering aim;
All space is rife with fury, racked with pain,
Earth bathed in vapor, and heaven rent by flame!

At last the cloud battalions through long rifts
Of luminous mists retire:—the strife is done,
And earth once more her wounded beauty lifts
To meet the healing kisses of the sun.

Paul Hamilton Hayne.—

Ebb and Flow

I walked beside the evening sea,
And dreamed a dream that could not be;

The waves that plunged along the shore
Said only—"Dreamer, dream no more!"

But still the legions charged the beach
Loud rang their battle-cry, like speech;
But changed was the imperial strain;
It murmured—"Dreamer, dream again."

I homeward turned from out the gloom—
That sound I heard not in my room;
But suddenly a sound, that stirred
Within my very breast, I heard.

It was as my heart that like a sea
Within my breast beat ceaselessly:
But like the waves along the shore,
It said—"Dream on!" and "Dream no more"!

—George William Curtis.

The young rabbit seems to be in good health.

In February only eight and three during April, washouts resulting from heavy rains were the causes of most of the wrecks, but some were accredited to the negligence of employes of the railways and others to mismanagement.

TWO BODIES RECOVERED FROM S-51 BROUGHT TO NEW LONDON FOR BURIAL

(Special to the Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, July 13—The bodies of two of the men lost on submarine S-51 and among the 27 recovered at Brooklyn Navy yard were brought to New London this morning, reaching here on the 4:33 o'clock train. The bodies are those of John Joseph Sheehan, of Groton, motor machinist's mate, first class, and Franklin P. James, chief motor machinist's mate. Jame's home was in Maine, but his body will be buried in the naval plot in Cedar Grove cemetery. The funeral of both Sheehan and James will take place tomorrow, Sheehan's in the morning and James' in the afternoon. Definite arrangements for the funerals have not been completed by navy officials but it is known that both seamen will be given full military honors.

Two Groton young men were having a good time last night that ended in the police court this morning. They said they met Philadelphia friends in Groton and with them had a few drinks, an unusual indulgence for the young men. About midnight they were in New London operating an automobile. They hit a zigzag course that attracted the attention of Policemen John Sullivan and Frank Philopena, who decided that the occupants of the car were intoxicated. When they got out of the machine, by request, there was no doubt as to their condition. They could not explain in court today except to say that they were sorry for their conduct. One of the young men, employed in New London, was dismissed on a suspended judgment, while the driver of the car was fined $100. He raised the money to settle his obligation and was released without his license.

Peter Mross, formerly in the liquor business on Bradley street, made a great deal of money in that calling, but, the police say, he has gotten rid of all he amassed. He has been in the toils of the law several times, both in the municipal court and in the superior court and that experience has cost him a large sum of money. Today he was accused by his wife, who is the mother of several small children, of having abused and struck her. He was not prosecuted because his wife was magnanimous enough to ask that he be given a chance to do what he represented he would do, if he had the chance to be. The statement was made in the court that the woman is the mother of small children, she carried one in her arms in court, and that she was in need of what support she could obtain from her husband. Judge Prince considered that Mross might be sincere and he gave him the chance to make good, continuing the case till the 11th of October next.

Charles Brooks of Starr street was given a hearing on complaint of his wife, who alleged that he abused her and that he was not inclined to support her and his family. Brooks is represented to be an idler, worthless as a husband and father. He is declared to be without ambition. Perhaps he is mentally deficient. That, too, will be determined during today and Brooks will come to court again tomorrow.

Charles Meyers, another man of peculiar characteristics, is to be examined to determine his mentality. He threw a box through a restaurant window on Green street some months ago and explained then that his purpose was to get a "thrill" if he is desirous of a thrill now he is apt to get it for he has occasioned about all the trouble for the police that one man is allowed to create. He, too, will appear in court tomorrow.

This afternoon physicians pronounced Meyers mentally deficient following an examination of the man at the police station and ordered him committed to the Norwich State hospital. Meyers was taken to the hospital by Sergeant John Cavanaugh and Captain Charles Priner.

A drunk and a tramp made up the balance of the court's actual business this morning. They were told to start for some other town and agreed to do so. A girl of less than 18 was sent to the Florence Crittenton Mission. New Haven, as she is in danger of falling into habits of vice.

ANNOUNCEMENTS

Broadway Theater

After viewing the Tiffany production The Lodge in the Wilderness, which was shown for the first time here at the Broadway theater yesterday, we can safely say that there are moments in this thrilling photodrama that are as intense as ever witnessed on a screen. Coupled with the dramatic situations that arise through out the picture, there are exquisite pictorial frames that are beautiful to the eye.

The picture which is based on the story of the same name by Sir Gilbert Parker, tells in a vivid manner of the love of a handsome engineer for the girl who is the owner of a large forest tract. The manager for the estate also shows his love for the girl, but after he has sought every means possible to win the girl for himself, sees his rival the winner in the end.

The logging scenes and the great forest fire were really well staged and a great deal of credit for the smooth continuity and the interesting story should be given to Director Henry McCarty. The cast is headed by Anita Stewart and Edmund Burns, who were ably assisted by Victor Potel, Duane Thompson, Lawrence Steers, Eddie Lee and James Farley.

The Lodge in the Wilderness will be the feature attraction at the Broadway theater starting Thursday.

Five Keith-Albee vaudeville acts will also be seen, promising to make the program an outstanding one.

Breed Theater

Here it is again!

Everyone thought that Charley's Aunt was the last word, and you all laughed till you didn't have a laugh left in your system.

Now, here it is again in Seven Days, the latest Al Christie production, by the same director and staff who made the fun for Charley's Aunt, which heads a double feature bill at the Breed theater today and Thursday.

The story is from the famous Broadway success from the magic pens of Mary Robert Rinehart and Avery Hopwood. Lillian Rich leads the cast, with Creighton Hale, Lucien Tashman, Hallam Cooley, and a host of others too numerous to mention here.

It's hilarious: it's human—and it could happen right here in our own home town. Come prepared to laugh.

The time to go to the movies is when you are assured of seeing a perfectly entertaining film. This sort of assurance we feel secure in giving as far as regards The Girl From Montmartre, which is the second attraction on this excellent program.

The Girl From Montmartre is Barbara La Marr's last picture, and is said to be her screen effort.

NOANK

Ware the steamer Missouri tied up at the dock in Boston, Mass., after a trip to the Pacific coast which it took three months to make, on that ship was a Noank boy, Lyman Wilcox shipped as quartermaster and this was his third trip on the ship. He met a former Noank boy in Seattle, Washington, John McDoughty who left the village a few years ago. Mr. Wilcox was home over the week end while his ship is in Boston, visiting his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Sidney Wilcox.

Lewis De Biasi went to New Haven Thursday and passed the bar examnte become a lawyer. Only 30 passed out of 160.

Mr. DeBiasi graduated from Fordham university and while there he had been all his studies, during the four years' course. He expects to enter an office in New London for a year.

Joseph Butson of Essex was home over the week end.

Liberty council, No. 8 observed its Memorial day Sunday. Meeting at their hall on Elm street they marched to Noank Valley cemetery each member carrying flowers and some a little flag. Exercises were held and the graves of their departed members were decorated. The committee in charge was Mrs. Laurence Ashcraft, Mrs. Grace Bentley, and Mrs. Ernest P. Graves of departed members in cemeteries in this vicinity and New London were decorated also.

Two pewter chalices used in the observance of communion of the Rev. George Whitefield's tabernacle at Bristol, England, as early as 1740, have been presented to First Methodist church, in Des Moines, Ia. Two letters written by Charles and John Wesley, the founders of Methodism, accompanied the vessels, which bear the English pewterer's mark and that date.

SPECULATORS CONTROL PRICE MOVEMENT

NEW YORK, July 13.—(AP)—Speculators for the advance continued in control of the price movement in today's stock market, despite further profit-taking and short selling in some sections of the list. Closing quotations disclosed a long list of net gains ranging from one to nearly 10 points, with over a score issues attaining new high prices for the year or longer. Trading showed a moderate expansion in volume, the day's sales aggregating 1,602,000 shares, compared with 1,448,100 yesterday.

Stiffening price tendencies for certain basic commodities, particularly copper and scrap steel, apparently held out hope for further business recovery. Sharp rallies in wheat and cotton prices also had a bullish effect on speculative sentiment.

The tendency on the part of some professional traders to take profits was attributed to the hardening of the money rates, preparatory to the heavy demand for funds in connection with crop movements and to the belief, in some quarters, that the market was entitled to at least a technical reaction after an almost uninterrupted advance of over 8 weeks. Offerings generally were well absorbed, such recessions as occurred being small to fractions.

General Motors was again the outstanding individual feature, soaring nearly six points to 158 7-8, a new high record for the present stock, on total transactions of over 120,000 shares. Hudson was run up over two points to 56 1-2 at the expense of an oversold short interest and Studebaker and White each moved up over a point. Dupont, which has large General Motors holdings, jumped 8 points to a new top at 256 and Fisher body, which is controlled by General Motors, climbed 4 1-2 points to a new top at 106 1-2.

A steady investment demand also was noted for the railroad shares, the general average of which touched the highest level in over a decade. Chesapeake and Ohio common and preferred moved up to new maximum quotations at 144 7-8 and 144, respectively, but "nickel plate" yielded 3 1-2 points on selling presumably influenced by the growing opposition to the modified Van Sweringen merger plan.

Union Oil of California touched a new peak at 58 but most of the other oils were, backward, recent selling being influenced by years for another period of over-production of crude through the discovery and the development of new fields.

U. S. Steel common developed a sudden outburst of strength by moving up nearly 3 points to 142 3-4, losing within a fraction of the top.

Call money held steady at 4 1-2 per cent all day. The New York Stock Exchange reported that renewed calling by a few institutions caused a fair volume of transactions but that there was a fair supply of funds all day and at the close. A further stiffening took place in time money rates when some of the short maturities were quoted as high as 4 3-8 per cent and the ruling rate for the longer loans remaining at 4 1-2.

A rally of 4 1-3 to 6 cents a bushel in active wheat futures, based on the unexpectedly poor Canadian government crop report featured the commodity markets. Cotton advanced about $3.00 a bale on reports of unfavorable weather and insect damage. Sugar and coffee prices showed little change.

Sharp rallies in the principal foreign exchanges followed the announcement of a revised Franco-British debt agreement. Demand sterling moved firm around $4.85 13-16 while French francs soared 8 points to new records. Italian lire moved up 7 points to 3.44 cents and Belgian francs rallied nearly 15 points to 4 cents, buying of the last named being stimulated by the request of the Belgium cabinet for authority to stabilize currency.

THE BOND MARKET

NEW YORK, July 13.—(AP)—The establishment of time money rates on a slightly higher level restrained buying operations in the bond market today but brought about no significant change of trend. U. S. government issues, always sensitive to any alteration in underlying credit conditions, worked lower with treasury 3 3-4 and 4 1-4s suffering the heaviest losses. Selling of investment rails and public utilities was counteracted by the strength of semi-speculative liens.

News of the debt funding agreement between France and Great Britain as well as the accord with Spain on Moroccan affairs exerted a tonic influence on French bonds. All of the government's issues worked materially higher and the leading French Rail bonds were strong. Elsewhere in the foreign list trading interest centered mainly on German obligations. Berlin 6 1-2s reached a new high price and General Electric 6 1-2s gained nearly a point.

Few changes of importance took place in domestic bonds, the general average of these issues remaining unchanged. Convertible rails, including Delaware and Hudson 5s, followed the upward trend of carrier stocks, with a good demand in evidence for Frisco adjustment 6s, Ulster and Chicago and Alton 3s.

THE WHEAT MARKET

CHICAGO, July 13.—(AP)—Excited buying carried the wheat market suddenly upward today, 6 3-4c a bushel. Sensational reduction of Canadian government crop estimates took most wheat traders by surprise and brought about wild soaring of values, especially toward the last. Closing quotations on wheat were unsettled at 4 1-4c to 6 1-8c net advance, with corn 2 1-2c to 3c up, oats at 7-8c to 1 1-8c gain and provisions showing a rise of 10 to 32 cents.

A rush to the buying side of the wheat market opened as soon as business began. Notwithstanding that the consequent bulges in price led to an immense amount of sales to realize profits, the setbacks which resulted were for the most part transient, and near the end of the day quotations were at the topmost point touched for months past—in some cases a new high price record for the season. Official figures relative to 1926 Canadian wheat production showed a probable falling off of about 74,000,000 bushels compared with the 1925 yield. Meanwhile, other advices at hand indicated that the moisture supply in Canada has been far below normal.

Corn and oats owed their gains to wheat strength and to unseasonably cool weather in the corn belt.

Provisions reflected the advance both of hog values and of grain.

THE CURB MARKET

NEW YORK, July 13.—(AP)—Speculative interest in today's curb market was again confined to about a dozen issues, the general list fluctuating within narrow and irregular limits. Trading showed a slight increase in volume, compared with yesterday, but total sales were still well below 300,000 shares.

Selling pressure in the oil group was not as pronounced as that of yesterday, a few issues such as Standard Oil of Kentucky and Beacon showing net gains of a point or more. Most of the attractive issues showed small losses with liquidation inspired by fears that recently discovered oil fields would again disorganize the market for crude and refined products.

A jump of over 5 points by Brockway Motor Truck to a new high at 33 was the only development of importance in the automotive group. Glen Alden rallied over two points to 166 but the other coalers were quiet. Baking shares were slightly reactionary.

Sharp gains on small turnovers were recorded by the Alabama Great southern railroad, Broden's Bucyrus, Dresdner Bank of Berlin, G. and E. Kroger and New Jersey Zinc.

Except for a gain or over two points in United Gas Improvement, the public utilities were devoid of special features.
